Throne Speech

Dominion House Is Prorogued by Justice Rinfret

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Announcement that "within the limits of available manpower and materials, our munitions program has now reached full capacity," was made in the speech from the throne proroguing parliament this afternoon.

The speech, read by Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada, deputy for the governor-general, sketched briefly the progress of events since the session opened Jan. 22, 1942.

Stress was laid on "increased cooperation between the United States and Canada in defence of the western hemisphere."

NORTH AIR ROUTES

In addition to joint operations in the Aleutians and Alaska and highway and airport construction in that area, the speech commented on "co-operative development of northern air routes to Europe and Asia."

It reviewed the successes in North Africa and Russia, beginning with the autumn offensives on both fronts and the Allied invasion of French Africa, coupled with Allied gains in the South Pacific.

"Opposing forces are at last more evenly matched," the speech said. "The United Nations are beginning to wage offensive warfare."

Fighting men of Canada served in Europe, Africa, the Middle East and on all the oceans, while keeping vigil over the home shores.

TRIBUTE TO SERVICEMEN

"The valor and heroism displayed in the combined operations at Dieppe have added that name to the imperishable list of the battle honors of Canada.

"Our country gratefully remembers those in all the fighting forces and in all parts of the world whose lives have been given in its service and in the cause of freedom."

Brief reference was made to the financial measures adopted during the session just ended, to the measures adopted for curtailment of liquor consumption, cost-of-living controls, army pay increases and measures adopted for the rehabilitation of ex-servicemen.

BALANCED EFFORT

"A balanced effort in the prosecution of the war has resulted in steady increase in the proportion of the nation's manpower and material resources devoted to that purpose of war," the speech said.

"The armed forces have grown steadily in numbers, in strength and in trained efficiency. The production of the machines and munitions of war and of foodstuffs has risen to new heights."

The speech acknowledged the "unremitting work" being carried out on farms and in shops and offices, and to the part being played by women in the forces and in industry.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The Morocco radio reported today that Turkish sources said all Axis ships in Turkish and Bulgarian ports had been ordered to proceed to Novorossisk.

This Caucasian port on the Black Sea is the largest from which the Germans could effect a withdrawal of troops from the northwest Caucasus to the Crimea if land escape through Rostov were cut off.

The communique, recorded by The Associated Press, gave a blacker picture than ever before of the remnants of the German 6th Army trapped in the Stalingrad area.

"Parts of the 6th Army which still are capable of fighting are sticking to the debris of the town of Stalingrad," it said. "Utilizing all possibilities of defence against uninterrupted attacks by the Soviets on the ground and in the air, they are keeping engaged several Soviet armies."

German movements in the Kuban area, in the western Caucasus where the Nazi armies are withdrawing, "were continued entirely according to plan," the communique said.

NEW CHAPTERS WILL BE ADDED TO AFRICA MEET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said today the story of President Roosevelt's trip to North Africa will have "subsequent chapters."

"So far as it can be told at the present time," he informed reporters, "the story is complete. Subsequent chapters undoubtedly will be written as events unfold."

Allied Bombers Fire Enemy Ship In Rabaul Raid

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Allied bombers, striking again at Rabaul, set fire to a large enemy ship, the high command reported today.

Medium bombers attacked three enemy cargo ships in the Arafura Sea, between Australia and New Guinea, the communique said. Results were not observed.

In the Solomons area, medium bombers struck at night at the aerodrome at Buka, starting "substantial fires" in a supply dump area. The blazes were visible from a distance of 35 miles.

Announcement On Command in Africa Is Likely

By JAMES KING

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—It was widely accepted in informed London quarters tonight that announcement of the command set-up for the battle of Tunisia will be the first major strategic result of the Casablanca conference to be made public. The news may come within a few days, it was stated

Unofficial sources reported a full agreement had been reached on the overall Tunisian command and an R.A.F. commentator said an early announcement is expected on arrangements to co-ordinate efforts of three Allied air forces now hitting Tunisian targets.

ARMIES TO LINK UP

British military observers said they were unable to confirm that a full agreement had been reached but they assumed the subject had been fully explored and that clarification would be made public in due course. The same quarters said there was no doubt that Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery will move his 8th army on into Tunisia to join forces with the British, Americans and French there and that full, friendly co-operation will be a matter of course "because we are all working on the same job."

Members of parliament expressed confidence that developments of the utmost importance will appear — and unexpectedly soon — from the dramatic conference.

Rome Reports Naples Bombed

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Naples was bombed last night, an Italian communique reported today in a Rome broadcast recorded here by the Associated Press.

Messina, on Sicily, also was reported bombed yesterday morning and last night by four-engined bombers

The Italians said the Naples raid was carried out at dawn today by a single plane which dropped its bombs from great altitude, causing some damage.

This account was given of land action on the North African front: "In western Tripolitania there were repeated encounters between armored formations

"An attack supported by armored forces against our positions in a Tunisian sector was repulsed."

British and Soviet Post-War Problems Under Discussion

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the house of commons today that "certain questions of post-war reconstruction" are under discussion between the British and Soviet governments.

In response to question as to whether discussions had taken place with the Soviet government upon the unification of the various insurgent forces in Yugoslavia, Eden replied: "Yes, sir."

Agreed on 1943 Strategy

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, left, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt reached complete agreement on war plans for 1943, designed to bring about the "unconditional surrender" of Germany, Italy and Japan, it was announced following their historic meeting in North Africa.

Negotiating French Union

General Charles de Gaulle, left, leader of the Fighting French, and General H. H. Giraud, head of the Imperial French council in North Africa, are negotiating for a united French movement designed to put French armies, a navy and an air force again into the field against the Axis, it was announced following their meeting at the Allied conference in North Africa. However, it was indicated there is still a wide gap between their views for a complete political agreement.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Germany, enraged because it had been completely misled on the Churchill-Roosevelt conference, heaped denunciation on Roosevelt today and the Nazi Vichy radio echoed that "Frenchmen" had hoped they would be spared such new effrontery as an Allied meeting on French empire soil.

The London Daily Sketch, discussing the complete secrecy which protected the conferees at Casablanca, said Allied intelligence agents in the United States had given fake reports of a meeting in Washington to suspected Axis agents and as the result "an important group" of German spies had been arrested.

It was not until 6 a.m. (1 a.m. EWT), three hours after the news had been released to the world, that German radios heard here reported that Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt had met at Casablanca.

Great Offensive Mapped

"Tremendous Events" Looked for In Near Future From Conference

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The ten-day meeting of Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt at Casablanca was believed today to have laid the basis of a master war plan for 1943 designed to bring about the "unconditional surrender" of Axis forces in Europe.

Despite huge obstacles — particularly the constantly intensifying Nazi submarine warfare—it appeared obvious today that Allied plans were blue-printed at Casablanca for the purpose of bringing offensive operations against Adolf Hitler and his Allies to a climax within 19 months.

It seemed equally obvious that official communiques and reports have told only a small fraction of the decisions and events at Casablanca which some quarters believed may produce "tremendous events" in the near future.

NEWS EXPLODES ON AXIS

The Casablanca news broke on the Axis with the violence and suddenness of a bombshell, exploding at the darkest moment of the war—thus far—for Germany and Italy. Germany was echoing with tidings of disaster on the eastern front and Italy had not yet assimilated the stark news of the loss of her colonial crown jewel—Tripoli, the last bit of her empire that had remained unconquered.

There was confidence in Allied quarters here that Casablanca was only the beginning of an ever-accelerating series of surprises for the Axis.

DEVELOPMENTS SEEN

1—Full decision on an overall plan of offensive action against the Axis in 1943.

2—Presumable agreement upon a unified command in Africa with a view to quick liquidation of

By HENRY L. SHAPIRO

MOSCOW, Jan. 27.—(RUP)—Ambassador William H. Standley disclosed that he and a British diplomatic representative delivered a joint note from President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to Premier Joseph Stalin last midnight.

By WES GALLAGHER

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A master war plan for 1943 aimed at forcing the unconditional surrender of Germany, Japan and Italy has been mapped in a historic 10-day conference by Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and a score of top-flight military and supply leaders, and today the Allied heads had separated to put their global strategy "into active and concerted execution."

President Roosevelt, breaking tradition, flew 5,000 miles for the meeting that began Jan. 14 and ended last Sunday with a press conference on the sunny lawn of a villa in Casablanca's outskirts.

Mr. Churchill also flew to the rendezvous which found Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader, and Gen. Henri Giraud, French North African high commissioner, getting together for negotiations to put a French army, navy, and air force into the field against the Axis.

Leaders Map Impending Operations

Working day and night, the Prime Minister and President were attended by nearly the entire war staffs of both countries, and they reached "complete agreement" on their objectives, it was announced.

The presence of such a galaxy of British and American leaders, both strategists and field commanders, indicated that not only European invasion courses had been charted, but that field commanders had been decided upon for impending operations. Those who will command and where they will strike probably will remain military secrets for some time.

Here are the highlights of the conference which Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt, in a Sunday summary, agreed was unprecedented and will affect the course of the war:

1—Military and civil leaders of both countries agreed on a 1943 plan designed to retain the initiative in every war theatre.

Peace Only Through Axis Surrender

2—The Prime Minister and President, perhaps in anticipation of Axis peace feelers, agreed that peace can come only through unconditional surrender of the three major Axis partners.

3—Generals Giraud and de Gaulle met for the first time under sponsorship of the Prime Minister and President to negotiate for an effective union of their two forces.

4—Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia was kept informed. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt disclosed they had offered to meet the Russian leaders at a point "very much further to the east." But it was pointed out that because of the big Red army winter offensive Stalin was unable to leave the country. The two Allied leaders also communicated with Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek and "have apprised him of the measures which they are taking to assist him in China's magnificent and unrelaxing struggle for the common cause."

5—Maximum material aid to Russia and China will be one of the prime aims of Britain and the United States.

Utmost Secrecy at Conference

The conferences were held at a small hotel in Casablanca's suburbs under the greatest secrecy. Those participating engaged a cluster of nearby villas for living quarters and the area was guarded heavily by troops and was surrounded by barbed-wire.

Mr. Churchill flew from Britain in a four-motored bomber, the same aircraft he used for his August trip to Cairo and Moscow. Capt. William Vanderkloot of Sarasota, Fla., and the same crewmen of the previous flight, again were recruited.

Aside from the fact that he flew across the Atlantic, details of the President's trip still have not been disclosed.

Mr. Churchill arrived first. When the President landed he dispatched Harry Hopkins, chairman of the British-

French Chiefs Fail to Bridge Political Rift

LONDON, Jan. 27. — Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the Fighting French, and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, chief of the French regime in North Africa, failed to agree on major political issues in their talks held as part of the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Casablanca, reliable Fighting French sources said today.

They agreed on a certain number of points, chiefly that contacts should be established at once between the French National Committee of de Gaulle and Giraud and his French Imperial Council in Africa, informants said.

Agreement was reached also to co-ordinate French military operations and to co-operate in the economic and communications fields. They agreed also on various minor problems.

CAIRO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—British troops, sweeping after Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating army, made contact with Axis rearguards west of Zaula yesterday, a British communique said today. Zaula is 30 miles west of Tripoli.

The bulk of Rommel's army is believed to be well beyond the Libyan-Tunisian frontier, with some of his forces established in the Mareth Line which the British 8th Army is approaching.

The communique reported that air activity yesterday and during the preceding night was not on a large scale although low-flying Allied aircraft continued their offensive sweeps over Sicily and bombed the ferry terminus at Messina. All planes returned from these operations.

Many Rumors

Exciting Part of African Story Not Believed Told

By C. B. CUNNINGHAM

ALGIERS, Jan. 27.—Conviction grew today that the "unconditional surrender" pronouncement of Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt tells only a part—and possibly not the most exciting part—of the story of their 10-day meeting at Casablanca.

Correspondents who attended the historic Roosevelt-Churchill press conference which concluded the deliberations in the white-walled city on Africa's west coast believe that the official communique did not cover all the activity of those ten days in the sun-drenched Moroccan port.

Rumors of what occurred at Casablanca have run a gamut to end all gamuts and none, thus far, has taken any form of authoritativeness.

RUMOR ITALIANS THERE

These rumors had it that Italian, Spanish and even Finnish and Turkish delegates had representatives at the meeting.

The rumors were that these representatives were invited not necessarily to join the United Nations but to become convinced of the American munitions assignment board, to Mr. Churchill's villa, and the prime minister returned with him to begin the talks.

Planes Provide Protection

The first one began at 7 p.m. on Jan. 14 and lasted until 3 a.m. the next day. Military leaders participated, as did the field commanders of both countries charged with smashing the Axis-held strip of Tunisia preparatory to opening a possible second front on the underside of Europe.

First to arrive was Hopkins and the president's son, Lt.-Col. Elliott Roosevelt, who is stationed in Africa.

Then Generals de Gaulle and Giraud appeared from the president's quarters, followed by Mr. Roosevelt himself, clad in a light grey suit and with the usual cigaret holder. Hovering in the background was the president's envoy to North Africa, Robert Murphy, who did valuable contact work with the French before the Allied invasion.

French Generals Shake Hands

Mr. Churchill, smoking a cigar and dressed in a dark grey suit then appeared.

Gen. Giraud and Gen. de Gaulle shook hands for the benefit of the correspondents, then retired, as the conference got underway.

First Mr. Roosevelt expressed his own and Mr. Churchill's regret at the death of one correspondent, Edouard Baudry of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Baudry was struck by a machine-gun bullet over Spanish Morocco when the plane in which he was riding with other correspondents en route to the meeting lost its way temporarily. He died after the plane made an emergency landing in French Morocco.

The president explained the background of the historic meeting. It became clear, he said, when the North African campaign was launched that he and the prime minister would have to meet again.

Stalin had been cordially invited to meet the prime minister and president but was "unable to leave Russia at this time on account of the great offensive which he himself as commander-in-chief is directing."

SMASH AXIS PHILOSOPHY

Then, with Mr. Churchill nodding assent, Mr. Roosevelt said the 26-day conference ended in "complete agreement" on 1943 plans to bring about the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis. This did not mean, the president said, the destruction of the populations of Germany, Japan and Italy, but it did mean the smashing of the philosophy of these countries based on conquest and reigns of terror.

Here Mr. Churchill interjected "Hear, hear."

Allied determination to press the war initiative in every part of the world was stressed. Mr. Roosevelt said at one time by theatre survey, as the communique phrased it, was made.

This was interpreted to mean that all of military chieftains mapped invasion plans and probably also picked their generals for such posts.

MILITARY HEADS PRESENT

Allied military chieftains present for the meeting were: Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the Imperial Generas staff; Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, first Sea Lord and chief of Britain's naval staff; Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal, chief of the Air staff; Gen. George Marshall, Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army; Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander-in-Chief of U.S. Navy and Lt.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, Commander of the U.S. Army Air forces.

In emphasizing the aim of the Allied high command, the president suggested the entire meeting be called "The Unconditional Surrender" conference.

One of the main decisions reached was to lend all possible material aid to the Russians who are applying German manpower and raw materials, the president said. He added that China was to get a full measure to help end forever the Japanese attempt to dominate the Far East.

RECOGNIZE REDS' FIGHT

The communique of the meeting which today is being broadcast in a score of languages throughout the world, also called attention to Russia's great fight. It said:

"The president and prime minister realized up to the full the enormous weight of the war which Russia is successfully bearing along her whole front, and their prime object has been to draw as much weight as possible off the Russian armies by engaging the enemy as heavily as possible at the best selected points. Premier Stalin has been fully informed of the military proposals."

"The best selected points" at which to strike the Axis was not elaborated upon, but the president said all the resources of the United Nations had been pooled and would be administered by a central plan determined at the conference.

This was borne out by the scope of the personnel at the meeting. Aside from the supreme commanders, these men, including heads of the all important supply services, were either in steady attendance or visited the round tables.

For the United States—Lt.-Gen. B. B. Somervell, commanding general of the services of supply, U.S. Army; Lt.-Gen. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the Allied forces in North Africa; Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the U.S. 8th Army in Africa; Vice Admiral Harriman, U.S. defence expediter in Britain; and Lt.-Gen. F. M. Andrews, U.S. forces commander in the Middle East.

MONTGOMERY SAID THERE

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery whose British 8th Army now is pursuing Field Marshal Rommel's illtreating forces into Tunisia from Tripolitania, also was reported to be in attendance.

In telling Sunday of the flight of Marshal Rommel, Prime Minister Churchill puffed his cigar at correspondents sitting on the lawn and described the Axis desert leader as a fugitive from Egypt who would be gone as the deliverer of Tunisia. That he said would not happen.

Mr. Churchill described the conference here as the most important and successful war parley he ever attended and declared the results would be seen soon.

ENTIRE STRATEGY ALTERED

He said the Allied landings in North Africa had altered the entire strategy of the war, emphasized the clinching nature of conversations between him and the President in their friendship and said the Allies now had an initiative they never would relinquish.

The French generals themselves issued a terse joint communique which said:

"We have met. We have talked. We have registered entire agreement on the end to be achieved, which is the liberation of France and the triumph of human liberties by the total defeat of the enemy. This end will be attained by union in war of all free Frenchmen fighting side by side with the Allies."

REVIEWS U.S. TROOPS

(Dispatches from the Allied headquarters in North Africa, however, said it was going to be a long, laborious job to get these two French leaders into an effective union.)

The President took time out from the deliberations to award decorations to American troops, review troops in the field and pay visits to relations of ham and beans. He also visited Port Lyautey, 100 miles north of here, and placed wreaths on graves of American soldiers.

Curtin Warns Japan Must Not Gain Strength

CANBERRA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Prime Minister John Curtin warned the United Nations Tuesday night against allowing Japan to "build up her strength while very well make her impregnable" because of a policy of "too little—too late" on this front while the Allies are fighting Hitler in Europe.

"The southwest Pacific area is too crucial to be left to a force of caretakers," Curtin said in an Australia Day speech urging immediate increased efforts against the Japanese. The day marked the 155th anniversary of the founding of the first colony of white settlers.

New Meeting French Chiefs Will Be Sought

BY JOHN A. PARRIS

LONDON, Jan. 27—British and American leaders will make another attempt to bring together Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader, and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, chief of the French North African regime, who failed to agree on major political issues at Casablanca, well-informed sources said today.

A Fighting French spokesman disclosed, however, that economic, military and missions would be exchanged soon between de Gaulle and Giraud. It was understood that in their talks during the Roosevelt-Churchill conference the estranged French leaders had agreed on economic and military co-ordination and other minor problems.

It was understood that de Gaulle's French national committee would select the personnel for the missions probably on Friday. The de Gaullists then will leave for Algiers to work out military and economic problems.

The committee was reported reliably to be in session today to discuss the missions.

The spokesman said de Gaulle and Giraud each would be informed of the other's military manoeuvres. Although there would be an exchange of their forces. The economic consultations would include trading between North Africa and those parts of the French empire held by the Fighting French.

The mission will not deal in political problems, he said.

ed rapidly toward ousting the last enemy troops from within the Volga city.

The army newspaper Red Star said the Germans now had abandoned all the territory surrounding Stalingrad and were clinging to the wreckage of a few blocks of buildings within the city.

A last attempt was made a few days ago to supply the doomed German divisions west of the city —now split into two parts and numbering less than 12,000 of their original 220,000 men—but big Nazi air transports carrying arms and food were unable to find a landing place.

Between the time the German transports were sighted and the next hour they arrived, the Red army had tightened the noose about the 22 trapped Nazi divisions and had cupied all possible landing space.

GREAT MILITARY SACRIFICE

(British military observers regarded the liquidation of the trapped German Sixth Army at Stalingrad and Marshal Rommel's military sacrifice in history. They said Adolf Hitler's prestige as a leader appeared to be one of the main reasons for the sacrifice, that the strategic importance of holding railroads, which the Russians now had cut, was another factor. They pointed out that the lack of German efforts to relieve the trapped divisions made it clear that the Axis had failed to make a major counter-attack under such conditions.)

The entire German 534th Infantry Regiment surrendered in the Stalingrad pocket today and part of the 609th Regiment, including its staff officers, was wiped out by merciless Soviet attacks.

Group after group of Germans were reported surrendering on the Voronezh front, where innumerable Axis forces had been encompassed. The Soviet noon communique reported that 1,463 prisoners had been sent to the rear within a few hours.

Brig.-Gen. H. Wash Killed in Crash

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Brig.-Gen. Carlyle H. Wash, former commanding officer of the 3rd Air Force at Tampa, and nine others, seven of them officers, were killed Tuesday in the crash of an army transport seven miles from Plomaton, Ala., while on a flight from Drew field here.

Gen. Walsh, since leaving the 3rd Air Force command, had been commanding general of the 2nd Air Support command with headquarters at Colorado Springs. Four members of his staff also were killed in the crash.

Allied Fighters Hit Nazi Targets Across Continent

LONDON, Jan. 27. — (CP) — Squadrons of British, R.C.A.F. and American fighter planes made sweeps over Axis targets on the continent yesterday, the air ministry announced, while medium bombers raided railway installations at Bruges in Belgium. The Allied fighters in their forays over the Netherlands, France and Belgium knocked down three enemy fighters while themselves losing four planes. Operations which took place were carried out without loss, the ministry said.

might of the Allies. Then they could make their own choice.

(Walter Logan, British United Press correspondent, also present at Casablanca during the meeting reported having seen "consular baggage bearing Finnish labels.")

(G. Ward Price, London Daily Mail correspondent at Casablanca, reported "it may be said that the statements made here are only a partial revelation. It is obvious there may be additional activities which are unrevealable and may not be denied in the interests of the common cause.")

There were a welter of rumors regarding those who participated at one time or another in the meeting. The fact that correspondents were not permitted to go into any great detail of speculation as to the conferees aroused their suspicion.

First of all it is not believed that President Roosevelt would have cared to take the risk of a 6,000-mile airplane ride for nothing more than a "heart to heart" talk with Prime Minister Churchill.

Nor was it thought likely that he would embark on such a venture simply to review the events of 1942 or even to plan the events of 1943.

It was noted that the combined Allied chiefs of staff could have undertaken these tasks without the presence of either prime minister or the president.

AIR OF MYSTERY

What particularly aroused the interest of the correspondents was the complete air of mystery which surrounded the entire proceeding.

The records of the correspondents accredited to the North African field have been scrupulously studied and a considerable amount of confidential data placed in them. However, in the Casablanca instance they were given not the slightest inkling as to what was taking place until after they arrived on the scene.

During the press conference with Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt, the correspondents — contrary to the customary White House procedure — were not given any opportunity to ask questions.

Immediately after the session the newsmen were rushed to a telephone room where the Allied staffs had held their daily meetings and given a few hours in which to write their stories. Then they were brought back here.

CITY FULL OF RUMORS

Casablanca was literally saturated with rumors. Crowded as it was with special anti-aircraft emplacements, special guards, secret service men, and troops, almost any kind of report was passed avidly from person to person.

One of the most frequent of these reports was that the anti-aircraft batteries had orders not to fire on any planes—whether enemy or not —which might appear at certain hours of the day. The inference, of course, was that some sort of emissary from some belligerent state was expected.

Brazil Refuses To Grant Safe Conduct For Spy

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The foreign office announced last night that Brazil refused to grant safe conduct for the return to Germany of Capt. Dietrich Neibuhr naval attache in the German embassy here, and alleged spy ring leader.

Because of this last-minute complication after Britain and the United States had promised him safe conduct, departure of the Spanish liner Cabo De Hornos was postponed from Tuesday night until Wednesday morning. The foreign office hoped in the meantime to obtain Brazilian consent to his withdrawal from Argentina.

the fact of the Casablanca conference at 10:45 p.m. EWT yesterday in an English language morse code program—45 minutes after it was announced.)

All last night, in broadcasts in many languages, the German and other Axis radios had told in detail how Churchill had gone to Washington to confer with the president on how they said, had demanded new bases in the British Empire in return for supplies for Russia.

Germany's first broadcast putting the conference on the right side of the Atlantic merely quoted, in French and Germany, the fact that it had been held and the names of those who took part. It carried the news under an Amsterdam date, in keeping with the German policy of faking the places of origin of broadcasts on events in Allied countries.

VICHY ANNOUNCEMENT

Next the Nazi Vichy radio said:

"The general opinion was that Churchill had gone to Washington to confer with the President but this time the two statesmen met at Casablanca. The choice of Casablanca, the great city of our empire, deals a severe blow to the sentiments of Frenchmen, who had believed we would be freed such new effrontry."

At 9 a.m. (4 a.m., E.W.T.), Berlin gave its first comment on the official German news agency dispatch:

"Roosevelt's theatrical appearance in French territory, conquered without fighting, was symbolic of United States Imperialism."

"Roosevelt's statement regarding a desire to see the strongest coalition in world history destroyed, shows a lack of sense of reality for which he will be punished by the future course of events.

CALL F.D.R. "CRIMINAL"

"That he wishes the European peoples to bleed white while fighting against Bolshevism confirms that he is one of the greatest criminals in world history.

Germany quoted "political quarters" that the situation in North Africa and differences between the "invasion powers" there — British and American — and "French dissidents" had necessitated the personal intervention of Churchill and the president.

"Internal differences which can not be bridged have to be camouflaged by a bombastic meeting with the usual democratic propaganda bluff," this broadcast said.

Yanks Make First Raid on Germany

LONDON, Jan. 27.—American bombs from American planes crashed on German soil today for the first time in this war, carrying into action the promise of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt to batter the Axis into unconditional surrender.

The raid was made against German naval installations and presumably was a continuation of the round-the-clock assault of the Royal Air Force and the United States Army Air Force against German submarine bases and repair depots.

R.A.F. Bombs Jap Airfield at Toungoo

NEW DELHI, Jan. 27. — (CP) — R.A.F. Liberator bombers maintaining their relentless attack on Japanese installations and transport in Burma, bombed the important Japanese airdrome at Toungoo in Central Burma last night, blasting the runways and leaving a number of fires burning in dispersal areas, a British communique said today.

Aircraft on offensive patrol yesterday sighted small boats on the Chindwin river and damaged other craft on the Arakan coast, it was reported.

No planes were lost in the operations.

First transcontinental airplane flight was made in 1911 by Calbraith Rodgers.

Press Reaction To Conference Varies Widely

LONDON, Jan. 27—(CP)—London morning newspapers expressed widely divergent opinions on the import of the Casablanca conferences, some cautiously, and with restraint, hailing them as a forerunner of a vast offensive and an earlier Allied victory, while others expressed disappointment that the conferees failed to appoint a supreme war council and that the French situation in North Africa still was obscure.

All of them used their biggest headlines. They devoted the greater part of their four-page papers to telling the story.

"The inference to be drawn from the determined wording of the communique is that tremendous events are on the move and may break in the near future," said the Daily Mail.

HERALD'S VIEW

The Daily Herald said: "The conference certainly has fallen short of prophesies which have been coming out of Washington for a week or more. The grand strategic council' of the four great Allies has not been 'born. Nor is there any word in the communique about coordination of Allied post-war aims . . . 'Two countries' are too prominent in the communique to satisfy those of us who hoped that as a result of the conference machinery for uninterrupted collaboration between the western and eastern allies was set up and in motion."

The News Chronicle said: "Inflated expectations aroused by comment in America is likely to cause a feeling of disappointment in the light of known results.

"People are bound to ask why it is necessary for the heads of the United States and British governments to take very real risks involved in visiting North Africa in order to discuss strategic plans for 1943. Was the political situation in North Africa so deplorable that handshakes exchanged between Giraud and De Gaulle have been sufficient to unravel the disreputable tangle of Anglo-American French relations?"

The Manchester Guardian declared: "The reports (Casablanca) encourage confidence. They suggest closer co-operation among the principal allies than we have yet had . . . The subjects of discussion were plainly vast."

Said the Daily Express: "It is over a year since Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill sat through night in Washington and planned how their nations would arm in 1942 for victory . . . Great and glorious victories followed these meetings. Yet mightier issues depend upon Casablanca meeting. We have now reached the end of the beginning. In the work of preparation we have gone far beyond preparation."

LEADERSHIP OUTLINED

The Times said: "Allied leadership travelled far indeed from those frantic expedients of despair of men who had to improvise the elements of the supreme war council in Paris. Now the men of Casablanca have had time to make plans with authority, knowing it is in their power to dictate to the enemy the pattern of the coming war."

The Daily Telegraph: "We now have an assurance upon which we sharply questioned during the long years of disappointments. We know the Allies still are through with what they have means and skill to carry it out and they have the resolution to pursue it. . . .

Labor Official Is Given Police Guard at Coast

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, whose recent investigation of the Boilermakers' Union of Vancouver resulted in suspension of its charter, was given police guard last night after he reported receiving two threatening letters.

The first reached Conroy at a meeting of the Vancouver Labor Council, and later escorted him to the dock where he boarded the midnight boat for Victoria. He told the council the letters were anonymous and had been burned over to police, who said they appeared to be written by cranks.

Food Dropped to Stranded Airmen At Edge of Arctic

MONTREAL, Jan. 27. — (CP) — Royal Air Force Ferry Command officials at nearby Dorval airport announced food had been dropped this morning to Flt.-Lt. Al. Cheesman, whose R.C.A.F. bomber crashed recently south of Sandwich Bay, Labrador.

The fact the Ferry Command announced food had been dropped to him this morning indicated Cheesman had "still not been rescued from the isolated spot where he was forced down. The Ferry Command did not elaborate, and it was not known immediately what was being done to bring Cheesman and his crew from their snow and icebound prison at the edge of the Arctic.

Total Australian Battle Casualties Placed at 52,148

CANBERRA, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin told parliament today that from the outbreak of the war to the end of December total Australian battle casualties in all theatres were 52,148. The number comprised 6,626 killed, 23,802 missing, 9,059 known prisoners and 12,371 wounded.

The prime minister said last night he has decided to annul the defence act to permit the conscription of women for auxiliary services of the army, navy and airforce. Legislation for it will be introduced soon.

Satisfaction In Ottawa on Africa Parley

OTTAWA, Jan. 27. — (CP) — News of the meeting in North Africa between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt was received without comment last night in government circles.

With parliament resuming its adjourned sitting today and opening for a new session Thursday, it was intimated that anything Prime Minister Mackenzie King might wish to say would be held for the House of Commons.

But unofficially there were expressions of satisfaction among ministers and others in the diplomatic service that the meeting had been held.

In Ottawa there was particular interest in the news that the situation regarding French authority in North Africa was on the way to being settled.

Mr. King is expected to make a statement in the House of Commons within the next week on the question of Canada's relations with France, both Vichy France and the Fighting French led by de Gaulle.

Mr. King is also expected to make some statement on the possibility of Canadians getting into action somewhere in Europe this year.

Marseilles' Riots Silenced by Nazis

LONDON, Jan. 27.—German machine-gunners and sharpshooters have broken the last French resistance in the dockyard district of Marseilles, reports from the frontier of France indicated today.

The harbor district of the picturesque Mediterranean seaport had been quiet for 12 hours, according to word filtering into Switzerland, but fires still lay in the smouldering ruins from fires started by German field guns while the Nazis, including the dreaded SS troops, were driving defiant men and women from their homes in a sweeping evacuation order.

Unconfirmed reports reaching London said that at least 200 persons had been killed and that dozens had died of exposure while plodding the 70 miles or more of the concentration camp at Frejus.

Bachelor Farmer Is Dead at His Home

Lawrence Wakefield, 63, bachelor farmer resident nine miles east of Leduc, was found dead by his brother Tuesday afternoon, R.C.M.P. headquarters were informed Wednesday.

Wakefield was found dead in a kneeling position in front of his stove. He was dead for about eight hours.

Following investigation by Corp. Stewart, R.C.M.P., and district coroner, Dr. C. B. Kidd, it was found that Wakefield died from a heart attack as he was attempting to start a fire. Foul play is unnecessary, R.C.M.P. declared.

Raymond Is Read Out of Party by Prime Minister

OTTAWA, Jan. 27. — (BUP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King has read Maxime Raymond out of the Liberal Party along with two other members who supported him.

CABBAGE AND WATER

LONDON. — (CP) — Harry Heinson, a London sailor, lived for 18 days on an invasion barge in the Atlantic after his ship was torpedoing six feet and by subsisting on two gallons of distilled water and kept from freezing to death by rubbing his feet and body with lubricating oil.

Rhode Island has had an automobile death per person last longer than any other state of the Union.

Army's Quota Unfilled by Draft Calls

OTTAWA, Jan. 27. — (CP) — Compulsory mobilization delivered 107,678 fit men to the Canadian army in the period from March 20, 1941 to Dec. 26, 1942, against army requisitions for 150,390, it was shown by a statistical analysis of the operation of the mobilization machinery released jointly last night by the defence and labor departments.

Up until May, 1942, it was shown the number of men accepted by the army kept well abreast of requisitions but in later months there was a marked falling off.

UNDER PRESENT PLAN

These figures are for the period in which the present call-up system of putting men called into home defence service for the duration of the war was in effect. They are in addition to operations from Oct. 9, 1940, to March 19, 1941, when men were called for 30 days' compulsory training and then permitted to return to civilian life pending futher calls.

During that period 88,000 were requisitioned and 81,893 were accepted. The two sets of figures, it was explained in a statement, cannot be lumped together because men called in the earlier period were later recalled for home defence service in the active army.

Lumping together enlistments in the three armed services and the number of men accepted at training centres up to Dec. 31 last, the statement reported a total intake of 732,022 men or 38 per cent of the male population of Canada between the ages of 19 and 45.

R.A.F. Resumes Bombing Attack On French Ports

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The French port of Bordeaux and the U-boat base of Lorient were bombed last night by the R.A.F., resuming its offensive after a moonlight lull, it was announced today.

The R.C.A.F. took a big part in hammering Lorient. An R.C.A.F. headquarters communique said: "Our Wellingtons made up a substantial force from the bomber command" on this raid.

At the same time R.C.A.F. Halifaxes operating with the coastal command attacked targets at Bordeaux.

The air ministry said the dock area in Lorient was set afire.

MUCH ACTIVITY

South coast observers said there was much air activity during the early morning with planes crossing and recrossing the channel.

In daylight yesterday, R.C.A.F., R.A.F. and United States fighter planes attacked airfields in northern France and Belgium three enemy fighters were shot down but the Allies lost four themselves in the sweep against northern France. A raid by medium bombers on Bruges in Belgium was carried out without loss, the air ministry said.

The raid on Lorient was the fifth this month and the 62nd of the year by the R.A.F.

It was believed it was an attack of considerable proportions, employing four-engined bombers and possibly two and four ton bombs.

Attempt on Life of Nogues Reported

Hopes Inspired At Casablanca Said Premature

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune said editorially today that the Casablanca meeting between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt was sounded with all the dramatic decoration which such an occasion could suggest" but added that the announced results "are somewhat less impressive."

"The allied publics," said the newspaper, "can only hope that the military decisions, which for 10 days engrossed the two chiefs of state and all the highest officers of both the British and American services, were of that far-reaching, definite and massive character which alone could justify a conference of this kind.

HOPES "PREMATURE"

"It is evident that some of the hopes inspired by the unofficial comment of the last couple of weeks were premature. No allied supreme war council has emerged from the conference, nor is there any hint of one. The problems of every theatre of the war were canvassed, but there was no one present who was primarily identified with the conduct of the war in the Far East. . . .

The New York Times saw Mr. Roosevelt's visit to Casablanca as "a bold and brilliant stroke of leadership" with the immediate results of a "new unity on the part of our French allies and 'complete agreement' between the British and American war staffs on the campaigns which will be undertaken in every theatre of war in close association with our friends, the Russians and the Chinese."

"But beyond this there are even larger implications," said the Times. "There is fresh evidence in this dramatic meeting, held within a few hours' airplane flight of the African battlefront, that the initiative, and with it the capacity for sudden telling moves, has indeed passed into the hands of the United Nations."

Plain Speaking Order of Day At Conference

LONDON, Jan. 27—(CP)—Formality was brushed aside and "freedom of speech was the order of the day" for Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt at Casablanca, the ministry of information said today in its account of the meeting, which included some hitherto suppressed details.

It also disclosed that Mr. Churchill went to North Africa in the same Liberator bomber in which he flew to Cairo and Moscow last August.

"Opinions were frankly expressed and as frankly discussed" at the meeting, the ministry said.

Mr. Churchill took off from an R.A.F. station in the south of England the night of Jan. 12, with William A. Harriman, United States defence expediter in Britain, Sir Charles Wilson, president of the Royal College of Physicians and his personal physician, Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal, and three members of his personal staff.

UNEVENTFUL TRIP

They arrived at Casablanca after an "uneventful" trip, which fact is worthy of note itself.

President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins arrived the second day after the Prime Minister. Then, said the official account, the "tempo of the conference speeded up" with a minimum of formality.

"Work came first, second and third, and protocol nowhere at all."

Mr. Churchill's plane was piloted by Capt. William Vanderloot of Sarasota, Fla., and had the same ferry command crew that carried the Prime Minister to Moscow.

IN GOOD HUMOR

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt were both in high good humor.

The Prime Minister, wearing a soft felt hat, suggested the President ought to wear one too, but Mr. Roosevelt, enjoying the tropical sun, quipped that he was born without one and didn't see any need for one now.

The Prime Minister recalled that Hitler once declared he had difficulty in estimating the war plans of the Allies because they were formed by "military idiots and drunkards"

Probably, remarked the Prime Minister, he will offer a similar explanation for being hoodwinked and caught napping by the rendezvous in Africa.

Roosevelt Made Historic Journey Entirely by Air

CASABLANCA, Jan. 24—(Delayed)—(BUP)—President Roosevelt made the trip to his historic conference with Prime Minister Churchill entirely by air.

He flew by clipper to a point in North Africa where he transferred to a four-motored bomber that had been especially outfitted for his comfort.

The President reached Casablanca late in the afternoon and went immediately to his villa Churchill had arrived first, and the President sent Harry Hopkins to the Prime Minister's residence to arrange a conference. Churchill went to Mr. Roosevelt's villa and they talked until 3 o'clock the following morning. During the 10 days they were together almost constantly.

Hopes of Britons Soar For Final Blow at Heart Of Hitlerism This Year

By LEW HAWKINS

LONDON, Jan. 27—(AP)—The Churchill - Roosevelt rendezvous in Morocco sharply boosted British hopes that the final blow at the heart of Hitlerdom would be struck in 1943.

The dramatic dispatches telling of the Casablanca war council stirred a deep satisfaction in both official and unofficial circles, with all convinced that the results of the talks would be making the blackest news for the Axis before the year's end.

Word that "complete agreement" had been reached was accepted in military and diplomatic circles as meaning that detailed plans for the defeat of the Axis on all fronts had been shaped far into the future, with blows to Hitler-held Europe almost certain for the current year.

HAIL "NO TERMS"

Confirmation that the "unconditional surrender" of the enemy governments remained a basic objective was hailed as a powerful reassurance to the British public which has taken too many blows to accept any lesser victory.

London found no happy portent in the fact that this Churchill-Roosevelt session had a brighter background than any of their meetings, recalling that during the Prime Minister's June call in Washington Nazi Marshal Rommel captured Tobruk and the Germans drove deeper into Russia.

In contrast, during the present talks Tripoli fell to a resurgent British 8th Army and the Red Army in Russia landed stunning new blows on the Germans.

However, while the general effect of the momentous conferences was to increase optimism and confidence, no responsible quarters here believe that the two leaders regard the discussions as a prelude to any easy, victorious wind-up of the war in a few months.

The North African situation remains to be cleaned up, the great German U-boat menace is mounting, Hitler still is unchallenged on his home grounds and Japan is solidly astride the bulk of her Pacific conquests.

OVER-CONFIDENCE FOLLY

The folly of over-confidence and impatience was warned against by observers who reminded that while the June meeting produced the later North African landing it required five months to prepare it and deliver it after the plans had been shaped.

It was held there is no reason to believe that the best fruits of the latest discussions will ripen any faster.

Even so, military men agreed that July, August or even September would not be too late for launching of the full-scale smashes at Europe which both leaders pledged will come as soon as possible.

Analyzing official announcements and correspondents' dispatches from Africa, informed Londoners were impressed by the comprehensiveness of the list of aides who surrounded the Prime Minister and President, and also by the length and intensiveness of the sessions.

The top chiefs of the British and American land, sea and air forces were there to help shape the long-range global strategy, and key supply men also attended to present problems and receive instructions for assembling war materials and shipping which must be marshalled months ahead of battles.

EXCHANGE IDEAS

On hand also were operational commanders from the African fighting theatre for a full exchange of ideas on the best means to speed the cleanup of that continent so that they can get along with larger tasks.

In the latter connection it was assumed the question of a unified direction of the Tunisian operations was clarified, and would be one of the first decisions disclosed since air operations in that area already are being shared by three air forces without a single commander.

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army also is rapidly moving toward southern Tunisia which is under Lt-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's command at present.

The matter of the ultimate overall command for an assault on Europe also was believed to have been considered—even if not settled, but the name of the man to direct this offensive may not be disclosed immediately

Informed sources here said it was likely that progress was made toward creation of some permanent council to exchange ideas between the Allied armies, but pointed to the obstacles of naming any general command of all forces everywhere in Russia, for example, is not fighting Japan, and Russian operations are wholly self-contained as far as men and strategy are concerned, and there is no disposition of the Allies to try to share in a direction of Soviet operations except as asked.

Communique Issued by Churchill, Roosevelt

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

CASABLANCA, Jan 24—(Delayed)—The following is the text of the communique issued at the joint press conference of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt:

The President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain have been in conference near Casablanca since January 14th. They were accompanied by the combined chiefs of staff of the two countries, namely, for the United States:

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U.S. Army; Admiral E. J. King, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Navy; Lieut.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding U.S. Army Air Forces; and for Great Britain:

BRITISH OFFICERS

They were assisted by:

Lieut. Gen. B. B. Somervell, commanding general, services of supply, U.S. Army; Field Marshal Sir John Dill, head of the British joint staff mission in Washington; Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of combined operations; Lieut. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, chief of staff officer to the minister of defence, together with a number of staff officers from both countries.

They have received visits from Mr. Murphy (Robert Murphy, the President's minister to North Africa) and Mr. MacMillan (Harold MacMillan, British minister to Allied force headquarters); from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the Allied expeditionary force in North Africa, from Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Cunningham, naval commander of the Allied expeditionary force in North Africa; from Gen. Carl Spaatz, air commander of the Allied expeditionary force in North Africa; from Gen. Mark W. Clark, U.S. Army, and from Middle East headquarters, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander; Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, and Lieut. Gen. F. M. Andrews, U.S. Army.

The President was accompanied by Mr. Harry Hopkins and was joined by Mr. Averill Harriman. With the Prime Minister was Lord Leathers, British minister of war transport.

For 10 days the combined staffs have been in constant session, meeting two or three times a day and recording progress at intervals to the President and Prime Minister.

The entire field of the war was surveyed, theatre by theatre, throughout the world and all the sources were marshalled for more intense prosecution of the war by land, sea and air. Nothing like this prolonged discussion between the two Allies has ever taken place before.

COMPLETE AGREEMENT

Complete agreement was reached between the leaders of the two countries and their respective staffs upon the war plans and enterprises to be undertaken during the campaign of 1943 against Germany, Italy and Japan with a view to drawing the utmost advantage from the materially favorable turn of events at the close of 1942.

Premier Stalin was cordially invited to meet the President and Prime Minister in which case the meeting would have been held much farther to the east. He was, however, unable to leave Russia at this time on account of the great offensive which he himself as commander-in-chief is directing.

The President and Prime Minister realized to the full the enormous weight of the war which Russia is successfully bearing along her whole land front, and their prime object has been to draw as much of that weight as possible off the Russian armies by engaging the enemy as heavily as possible at the best selected points.

Premier Stalin has been fully informed of the military proposals. The President and Prime Minister have been in communication with Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek. They have appraised him of the measures which they are under taking to assist him in China's magnificent an unrelaxing struggle for the cause.

The occasion of the meeting between the President and Prime Minister made it opportune to invite General Giraud to confer with the combined chiefs of staff and to arrange for a meeting between him and General de Gaulle.

The two generals have been in close consultation.

The President, Prime Minister and the combined staffs having completed their plans for the offensive over which they will preside, General Giraud and General de Gaulle met and conferred with the President and Prime Minister.

Elaborate Precautions Taken to Ensure Safety Of Churchill, Roosevelt

By WALTER LOGAN

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

CASABLANCA, Jan. 20.—(Delayed)—G-2 (Military Intelligence) called me to headquarters and told me I would be shot if I tried to go near a certain villa.

(Later Logan found out why. The villa was the private place of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt.)

That was how thorough were the precautions taken to protect the President, Prime Minister and other dignitaries during their conference.

MANY PRECAUTIONS

The precautions were evident from the time of arrival of correspondents. There was an unusual number of planes of all types scattered about at almost every airport. Airport guards were increased and many officers, who usually aren't armed, were carrying sidearms.

New anti-aircraft batteries dotted the landscape at strategic points—informants said Casablanca had been thoroughly fortified against air attacks—and all night officers went on guard duty with tommy guns.

Casablanca was a fountain of rumors. One of the most recurrent was that anti-aircraft gunners at the airports had been instructed not to fire on any planes under any circumstances at certain hours.

There was an influx of strange baggage labels. Some consular baggage bore Finnish labels, and there were many from other capitals.

Most conversation concerned the extraordinary precautions around Casablanca's beautiful residential district. Scores of people, noting my correspondent's insignia, volunteered information that barbed wire barricades surrounded the area that extra shifts of guards were doing 24-hour duty and that nobody could approach the district without "all sorts of special passes."

GUESTS "MOVED OUT"

Hotel employees said that guests had been moved out of 50 rooms to make room for residents of villas which had been vacated.

After a day or two, Casablanca's rumor mongers quieted.

I had asked many questions when I first arrived, but I quit and my behavior became circumspect after G-2 talked to me.

The meeting place itself was protected by armed guards patroling a barbed wire obstruction and the president was guarded by his own bodyguard, armed with tommy guns, and two companies of troops.

Woman Is Blown From House by Gas Explosion

MEDICINE HAT, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Blown out of her house with part of the kitchen wall by an explosion at noon yesterday, 70-year-old Mrs. William S. Dawkins was reported "resting quite well" in General hospital here last night.

Mrs. Dawkins is reported to have opened the door leading to the basement of her home when an explosion, presumably gas, occurred in the cellar and a sheet of flame, coming up the stairs, ignited her clothes. Dr. D. N. MacCharles, who was called to the scene, stated she suffered from shock and severe burns to the face, hands and neck. The Dawkins' home was completely razed by a fire which followed the explosion.

War News Summary

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27

Russia: For the bulk of Hitler's siege armies before Stalingrad, originally estimated at 220,000 troops, the hours of "defence" were all but ended.

Only 12,000 Nazi survivors remained in the Don-Volga trap, caught in two tightly-sealed pockets.

"Both of these groups are doomed and their liquidation is only a question of two or three days," the Russian command said.

Capping a week of gloom broadcast, the Berlin radio quoted Capt. Ludwig Serterious, Nazi military commentator, as saying that each Axis soldier still trapped at Stalingrad "probably has forfeited his life."

North Africa: Montgomery's 8th Army resumed contact yesterday with the rearguards west of Zauia, 30 miles beyond fallen Tripoli.

This indicated that Gen. Montgomery was stepping up his pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's tattered Africa Corps, whose main forces had been apparently escaped into Tunisia.

In Tunisia, tank-led U.S. infantry were reported to have clinched their hold on the strategic Gusselitia Valley, 65 miles below Tunis, after capturing a mountain pass commanding the valley plain.

Other American forces in the region of Maknassy, 35 miles inland from the Gulf of Gabes, poised a threat to the rear of the French-built Mareth Line which lies near the Libyan-Tunisian frontier.

Europe: In the western air war, Britain's bombers renewed the assault on the German U-boat nest at Lorient, France, ending a two-night lull, and this morning the English channel skies were alive with planes crossing and recrossing the coast. R.C.A.F. bombers took part. Other R.A.F. planes pounded the French port of Bordeaux. Allied bombers last night raided Naples, a chief port of reinforcement and supply for Axis forces in North Africa.

Pacific Theatre: There are reports of new Allied thrusts and land successes on Guadalcanal.

United Nations airmen have intercepted and shot down four of a great force of Jap planes that attempted to break through for a bombing attack on Henderson Field. On land Allied troops are pounding away relentlessly at the Japs after consolidating their newly-won positions seven miles west of Henderson Field. Allied heavy bombers meanwhile have raided the Jap base of Rabaul, New Britain Island, for the sixth consecutive night. At the same time medium bombers raided the Jap airfield at Buka in the northern Solomons. A few Jap planes tried to raid Port Moresby, New Guinea, but without effect.

Allied Chiefs Met Newsmen In Heavily Guarded Villa

By C. R. CUNNINGHAM

They met the correspondents in the rear garden of a luxurious white villa on the outskirts of Casablanca. The whole area for blocks around was filled with troops and anti-air-craft equipment and barbed wire.

The correspondents assembled at noon. In the garden were two white leather chairs with microphones before them. Through the big windows overlooking the Atlantic Harry L. Hopkins and his son, Corp. Robert Hopkins, a photographer stationed in Tunisia, making final arrangements for the conference, could be seen.

Lieut. Col. Elliott Roosevelt, the president's son, appeared with two more chairs which he arranged in the garden.

Then the president came from the villa. He wore a gray business suit, a black tie, and had, as usual, a cigarette in the long holder.

CHURCHILL APPEARS

Churchill appeared next, wearing a gray, pin-striped suit, his traditional gray hat and with a cigar in his mouth. He wore black shoes fastened with zippers. Gen Charles de Gaulle and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud came next. Giraud sat on the end seat on the president's right, de Gaulle was on the president's left and to his left sat Churchill.

Mr. Roosevelt asked whether Churchill would take off his hat for the photographers but the prime minister said he wore it to keep the sun out of his eyes and suggested that the president also should have worn one.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had been born without a hat and did not see any need for one now.

The two French generals, the president and the prime minister talked while the news reel cameramen and the still photographers made innumerable shots. At Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion, de Gaulle and Giraud posed shaking hands.

De Gaulle and Giraud then left, and the president asked the correspondents to come closer. We pushed close to the white chairs and Mr. Roosevelt suggested that we sit in the grass at his and Mr. Churchill's feet.

He remarked on the informality of the conference, saying that in Washington there usually was a big crowd of correspondents contrasting with the small group here.

Statement by French Chiefs

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, Jan. 26—(AP)—Text of the communique on the conference between Gen. Henri Honore Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle:

"At the conclusion of their first conversations in North Africa, Gen. de Gaulle and Gen. Giraud make the following joint statement:

"We have met. We have talked. We have registered entire agreement on the end to be achieved, which is the liberation of France and the triumph of human liberties by the total defeat of the enemy.

"This end will be attained by union in war of all free Frenchmen fighting side by side with all allies."

Diet to Reconvene

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Japanese diet will reconvene Thursday, resuming its 81st session which was postponed because of illness of Premier Hideki Tojo, the Tokyo radio reported yesterday in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press. Tojo now has recovered, it said.

To Our Policyholders

At our ninety-sixth Annual Meeting we were able to report another year of most satisfactory progress during 1942.

The report showed that the great stability of your Company which has been such a satisfaction to all policyholders was still further improved.

Once more great numbers have been helped through distressing circumstances because of their co-operation with the many thousands of others who constitute this Company. At the same time the funds which have been accumulated on your behalf are being employed very largely in your country's war financing.

A complete annual report is available at any of our offices.

F.D.R.'s Trip One of Best Kept Secrets

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(BUP)—The capital's usually well-informed press corps last night conceded that the site of President Roosevelt's momentous discussions with Prime Minister Winston Churchill ranks as one of the better kept secrets of the war.

The fact that Mr. Roosevelt was absent was well-known to newspapermen and numerous officials. The office of censorship advised editors and radio stations on Jan. 9 that he was on a "trip" but requested that nothing be published pending an official announcement.

No one could have said that Mr. Roosevelt was in Casablanca even if he wanted to, because no one knew. When he had been gone for four or five days, the capital's rumor market, always good, became bullish.

THEY SPECULATE

The chief executive and Churchill, some said, were meeting again. Others believed the conferees included Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Russian Premier Joseph Stalin.

The fact a meeting was in progress was confirmed when the censorship began to pass dispatches in lumps to reach.

The speculation over the site touched almost every continent. Some of the more prominently mentioned places were Miami, Fla., the high seas, Pearl Harbor, Alaska, London, Hyde Park, Cairo, Algiers and even Casablanca. But none who mentioned Casablanca was sure enough to wager on his choice.

News for Hitler et al

If nothing further was accomplished, the holding of a ten-day conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in North Africa would have been worth the trouble. That it was possible to hold such a meeting shows the falsity of the Hitler taunt that the democracies must "do everything in the open" and are therefore unable to outwit the treacheries of the Axis chiefs who do their plotting behind barred doors and in railway cars on isolated sidings.

It will interest the Fuehrer, though it will not comfort him, to learn that the whereabouts of the President and Prime Minister has been known to hundreds of persons on this continent, and by many others in Britain, Russia and elsewhere. But the secret was kept. Of the whole brood of Nazi spies, agents and sympathizers who have been "planted" in Allied countries, not one was able to inform Berlin that the conference was on.

So much for the notion that freemen cannot do together, even to the keeping of their tongues, in order to protect themselves against the gangsters who conspire in darkness.

But the conference was not a "stunt" arranged to disprove the theories of Hitler. It was an executive meeting, held to draft plans to bring about the removal of him and all that he stands for. Besides Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill it was attended by General Giraud, General de Gaulle, and the military, naval and air chiefs of the United States and Britain. The only reason Premier Stalin was not also present is that he is too busy directing the slaughter and capture of the fast diminishing Axis forces in Russia. Chiang Kai-Shek was also absent because conditions made it undesirable for him to leave Chungking.

The decisions reached will be known in due course. The objective at which they are aimed is of course to compel the unconditional surrender of the Axis powers, in 1943 if that proves to be practicable, in 1953 if the job should take that long. What particulars as to strategy the enemy may desire will be supplied by bombs, shells, bullets and bayonets.

—V—

The Ranks Are Closed

Obviously, one reason for holding the Roosevelt-Churchill conference in North Africa was that the situation in that area needed prompt but tactful handling. Conditions there and in the colonies in fact taken the pattern of conditions in France. All that Vichy could do to promote pro-Axis sentiment there has been done, by propaganda, bribery, coercion and murder.

The fact that General Giraud and General de Gaulle were brought together to ensure that the conference ended happily is assurance that North Africa is no longer a divided country and that the two branches of the Fighting French are now a unit.

What this means is indicated by current events. Giraud's forces in Tunisia have been fighting splendidly, while de Gaulle's army from Equatorial Africa led by General "Leclerc" has accomplished a feat of endurance and cleared southern Tunisia of the enemy. United, these forces will strengthen the Allies in the military sense, as the agreement of the two leaders will strengthen their standing with the native populations.

No worse news for the enemy, and no better news for the Allies, could come from North Africa than the announcement that the Fighting French have closed their ranks. While the cleavage existed full co-operation from both groups was impossible, and the Allied position there was compromised, politically and militarily. The breach healed, the full weight of both can be thrown into the scale, in an area where their aid must be peculiarly effective. The fusion is a diplomatic defeat for the Axis, of clear and far-reaching importance.

There will be rejoicing in France over this unification of French colonial forces for the liberation of the motherland. In Berlin and Rome it will be impossible to conceal the prospect that the Axis grip on Tunisia is doomed to be broken, and that when it breaks Axis-held territory from Spain to the Dardanelles will be open to invasion. Among Allied peoples everywhere there will be keen satisfaction that the conference was held, that it was held in North Africa, and that it resulted in unanimous decisions for pushing offensive war in every theatre.

—V—

Instruction Needed

Censorship restrictions have been lifted to disclose that southern Ontario was during most of last week in the grip of a storm said to have been the worst in fifty years. Seventeen lives were lost, and railway and road transportation has not yet been fully restored. One item in the news is of direct and practical concern to Albertans. Five of the seventeen storm-victims were smothered by coal gas fumes, thrown off by stoves or furnaces in which they were burning soft coal.

The very strong probability is that the coal described as "soft" was Alberta coal, which because of a scarcity of Pennsylvania anthracite is now being used for house-heating in sections of that province where it is little known and its proper use not understood. If so, these tragedies will occur in Alberta unless steps are taken to prevent them. Alberta coal is dangerous, black-list it on the Ontario market, and subject the people of that province to further fuel hardships.

Alberta coal is the best domestic coal mined on this continent. But it is not anthracite, and cannot be handled like anthracite with satisfactory results, or even with safety. Putting it the case the other way; if an Alberta house-holder filled his stove with anthracite and arranged the drafts as he does for ordinary Alberta coal, he would freeze. As with any other kind of fuel, the user must know how to handle Alberta coal.

The Ontario authorities and the Alberta coal-men have a mutual interest in starting a publicity campaign to teach people in that province how to use the Alberta fuel. If they are so instructed, there will be no leakage of coal gas from Ontario stoves and furnaces, and people there will find the fuel as completely satisfactory as Alberta people find it under climatic conditions no less severe.

"A Rumanian diplomat" is credited with saying Rumanian forces have suffered 380,000 casualties, out of 500,000 men sent to fight on Hitler's eastern front. The proportion is not out of the way, remembering that the Nazi aim is to so reduce all other nationalities in number that there will be no danger of revolt after the "new order" of German domination is established. The satellite states cannot expect to be exempt from the race-extermination policy they are helping the Nazis to apply against other countries.

When a government at war finds some place where it can cut down running expenses, that is news. Canadian taxpayers will be interested to note that the Dominion is putting through a refunding deal at New York which will save them $2,450,000 per year in interest. This sum is only small change in these days of multiple-billion dollar budgets, but it will gain in proportions when war-spending stops and tax-money has to be earned by producing things and selling them in peacetime conditions of supply and demand.

In all these matters he was either the chief factor or took a leading part. It is no exaggeration to say that Canada owes more to Judge Macleod on account of the North-West than to any other living man, and no more fitting method of acknowledging the indebtedness could be taken than to make him Governor in name of the country of which he was so long governor in fact.

Roosevelt, Churchill Formulate Grand Strategy

Every Detail for Victory Was Worked Out by Two Leaders

By HAROLD L. WEIR

There are so many facets on this jewel of Casablanca that the commentator, still startled by its brilliance after 48 hours of it, finds confidential revelation finds difficulty in estimating its value.

Some of the facets are more important than the others. Reflection will doubtless discover insufficiencies and even deficiencies in many of them.

But the likeness of this historic meeting, between the American President and the British Prime Minister, to a jewel still persists because of its representation as first bit of positive scintillation Harold L. Weir the United Nations have permitted themselves in the war.

We have been courageous. We have been generous. We have even been clever upon occasion. This is the first time we have been brilliant.

For this meeting at Casablanca in French Morocco was not merely a conference between the political heads of two powerful states. It was the intellectual spearhead of all democracy.

Every question and every decision were approved by the millions of China and the millions of Russia. The views of every small despoiled nation was taken into grave consideration.

It was the first time in the history of the world that all the democratic-thinking peoples of the earth have joined together, in perfect agreement, for the accomplishment of a common major aim.

And out of that conference emerged, again for the first time, not a group of diverse nations loosely held together by a common hope, but a single composite figure of Democratic Man, with tangible eyes fixed on a tangible end.

Accomplishments

The President and the Prime Minister, with all their high-ranking officers, met at Casablanca where Mr. Churchill must have felt at home—the name of the place meaning "white house."

Among the concrete work done were these items:

1. A decision that only the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis could end the war.

2. The reconciliation of Generals de Gaulle and Giraud, guaranteeing political single-mindedness in French Africa.

3. The final, detailed plans for the eventual invasion of Hitler's Europe.

4. A decision to render maximum aid to Russia, including the full formulation of concrete methods of rendering that aid.

5. The formulation of a complete grand strategy.

These and other items of decision and agreement might be interpretively summed up under four heads of accomplishment:

1. The achievement of maximum efficiency in the prosecution of the war.

2. The revelation of a hope for continued democratic co-operation beyond the period of the war.

3. The emergence of a likelihood of a sane and lasting peace.

4. Possibility of a German surrender and an early end to the war.

Efficiency

Efficiency in waging a war is more than a matter of nicely adjusted plans and co-operation between military commanders. If the forces of more than one nation are engaged together in a common campaign, as in the present case, the measure of their success will be closely related to the degree in which they are able to achieve a spiritual cohesion.

It is not enough that they should fight as a unit. They must be able to think and feel as a unit.

And that, of course, is the chief significance of the Casablanca meeting. For it has accomplished, to some extent, this very thing.

Its accomplishment of this feat is revealed by the fact that it was necessary for President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to take part in it in person. If the conference had been a mere blueprint festival whose sole purpose was the aligning of all the forces to a single military plan, the experts and possibly have worked it out much better without the amateur assistance of Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill.

But these two men occupy a unique and potent position in their countries and in the world. For the moment, at least, and, sadly enough, perhaps only for the moment, they represent the respective souls of their countries. For the purposes of this meeting, Mr. Churchill was the British Empire; Mr. Roosevelt was the United States.

This, then, was the spiritual factor that was considered essential to the conference. That is why I am tempted to call it a "fusion" of the democratic forces rather than an agreement betw en them.

With the personification of the British Empire sitting down with the personification of the United States, and the personifications of China and Russia and all the other Allied nations receiving hourly reports, this occasion far transcended politics.

It was an international marriage bed. And over it all hovered the composite offspring in the likeness, as I say, of the true Democratic Man.

Keep your eye on that composite Democratic Man. For he will play a tremendous part in the war and in the peace. Upon his waxing and waning health will depend the fortunes of our lives. Upon our ability to see him and feel his presence will depend our ability to fight together and live together.

He is the heir to all men's efforts to work together in amity, the successor to the League, the forerunner of the Brotherhood of Man.

Crisis

The meeting at Casablanca was the fruition of the inescapable conviction in the minds of all the United Nations that the crisis of the war was at hand.

But if the signs of crisis were apparent enough to the United Nations to bring the heads of two great governments together on the North African battlefront, they might be apparent enough to the enemy to cause chiefs to plot them to make efforts to save the situation for themselves by compromise or even outright surrender.

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt did not talk about "unconditional surrender" without knowing that "unconditional surrender" was a possibility.

Capitulation or partial capitulation might come in one of at least two possible ways. The Nazi party, with or without the reluctant consent of Hitler, might open negotiations. Or the people might be driven by the terrified apprehension of the German public that the Russians might gather momentum sufficient for a terrific drive into the very heart of Germany. They might feel that British and American victory would be infinitely better than Russian vengeance.

On the other hand, the Prussian military caste, the generals might independently open negotiations, because their knowledge of war would show them that the game was lost.

I do not believe that either of these things will happen immediately, although the latter proposition is the more likely of the two. Hitler is aware that he has destroyed every vestige of common ground upon which he might have compromised with the Allies.

The generals might feel that they could play on Allied compassion and present a sentimentally convincing alibi as they did at the close of the last war.

But, as I say, I do not think that either of these things will happen in the near future. If they did happen, the Allied leaders declare they would reject everything but a complete surrender.

This latter is the most important assurance to come out of the momentous North African conference.

Our military leaders have assured the victory. This decision tends to assure the peace. It is the nature of a general guarantee that three years of bloody conflict will not be thrown away in a surge of stupid political idealism.

Industrial Lay-Offs

Reduction in Personnel May Occur in Any War Industry

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—A statement made by Mr. Howe the other day in regard to layoffs in war industry drew attention to the fact that war production in Canada has entered a new phase in which striking new factors operate. Mr. Howe disclosed that lay-offs had occurred and will inevitably occur in future.

There is more in this than the routine adjustment of production programs to war needs which, as everyone knows, will undergo change from time to time. One of the major factors beginning to operate in Canada's war industry, as it gains momentum and efficiency, is the displacement of labor through technical improvements. The result is small pools of unemployment here and there on the industrial front. The cause is familiar under the name of technological unemployment.

In the case of a Canadian factory that employed 2,000 workers on a war contract may be expected to continue manufacture or production in future with a few hundred fewer workers. If this did not happen, there would be no surprise. The surprise for this has been the record of mass production industry for many years. Production has been required to produce an automobile declined sharply as the automobile industry geared itself to turn with increased skills and increased efficiency of methods. The same thing, in time of war, in terms of a machine gun, an artillery piece, or a tank.

These circumstances serve to solve a mystery that may otherwise be confusing. The layoffs in war industry, as now reported by the Department of Munitions and Supply, exceed 1,000,000 workers. The actual results in 1942 were the production of munitions to the value of $2,500,000,000 when the year ended the rate of production of values was around $2,700,000,000.

The problem of the staff to make this production possible was reported by the Bank of Canada last September, when the growth of war employment was shown as follows:

September, 1940	200,000
March, 1941	387,000
September, 1941	550,000
March, 1942	735,000
September, 1942	915,000

The significant point is that in 1941-42, the third year of war employment in war industry was increasing at a rate greater than 30,000 new workers each month, or 365,000 for the year. It is likely that thinking about the manpower problem has been conditioned by the fact that the rate of increase in war employment has been 1,000 workers a day for many months. Projecting this into the future would lead to the conviction that Canada would soon exceed the physical limits of employment.

But the outlook for 1943, as explained in the department, is quite different. It is predicted that the rate of war production can be increased this year to the level of $3,700,000,000 in value. This is a billion dollars above the level attained in 1942. Yet the department's calculation of new labor requirements are around 100,000 or 110,000 new workers. The major factor in this difference is obviously, is that increased skill and efficiency will produce a greater number of units of production with relatively fewer man-hours per unit.

The field will be open for Selective Service to handle the redistribution of workers where technological unemployment results in some layoffs.

"We have arranged," said Mr. Howe, "with the department of labor and national selective service for the setting up of machinery which will arrange the orderly transfer of persons laid off to other war and essential industries, as required."

The answer to one of the paradoxes of Canada's war economy is also found in its situation. In certain districts the charge is heard that certain industry has been hoarding labor, that is, employing more labor than needed. It is possible that such employers have over-staffed as a precaution against being caught short of labor. They prefer to keep man-hours which the bombers took off.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Army has been willing to have the public know of the bombing story. The Navy is quite willing to have its side of the story given to the public. And Elmer Davis believes the public should know.

Inside word, however, is that the man at the very top is opposed. He once announced that the bombers came from Shangri-la and as far as the public is concerned that is still where they came from.

Here is the real reason why Senator Tom Connally of Texas and other Democrats are so sore at the Senate fight over Ben Ed Flynn's appointment as Ambassador to Australia.

They had hoped to railroad Flynn's confirmation through the Senate with as little hubbub as possible. Senators, especially administration Senators, don't like to wash dirty linen in public.

But Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire upset their plans by bringing the issue squarely into the open. Result is that the Senate will face another wave of public resentment and newspaper attacks, similar to the "pensions" furor, if Flynn is confirmed. Also, every senator who votes for him will be showered with vitriolic mail from home.

The Republicans aren't worried, because they will vote almost solidly against Flynn. However, every Democrat who votes for him will be on the spot for "playing politics."

That is the inside reason why Senator Connally attacked Bridges so savagely on the floor. And that

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Story of Tokyo Raid Not Told; Flynn Stories; Extradition

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—It now begins to look as if almost everyone knew about how Gen. Jimmy Doolittle bombed Tokyo except the American people.

The Japs long ago had access to U.S. prisoners taken after that raid. The world has now listened to Jap broadcasts that the airplane carrier Hornet was the launching base from which the bombers took off.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Army has been willing to have the public know of the bombing story. The Navy is quite willing to have its side of the story given to the public. And Elmer Davis believes the public should know.

Inside word, however, is that the man at the very top is opposed. He once announced that the bombers came from Shangri-la and as far as the public is concerned that is still where they came from.

Here is the real reason why Senator Tom Connally of Texas and other Democrats are so sore at the Senate fight over Ben Ed Flynn's appointment as Ambassador to Australia.

They had hoped to railroad Flynn's confirmation through the Senate with as little hubbub as possible. Senators, especially administration Senators, don't like to wash dirty linen in public.

But Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire upset their plans by bringing the issue squarely into the open. Result is that the Senate will face another wave of public resentment and newspaper attacks, similar to the "pensions" furor, if Flynn is confirmed. Also, every senator who votes for him will be showered with vitriolic mail from home.

The Republicans aren't worried, because they will vote almost solidly against Flynn. However, every Democrat who votes for him will be on the spot for "playing politics."

That is the inside reason why Senator Connally attacked Bridges so savagely on the floor. And that also, is why Senate Republicans are laughing up their sleeves.

It didn't leak out, but that hot tiff between Senators Connally and Bridges over Flynn, didn't end on the Senate floor.

There was another flareup when Bridges repeated his charges against Flynn at a closed-door meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Senator Connally called the meeting to order, he gruffly inquired of Bridges:

"Have you have made some pretty serious charges about Mr. Flynn's alleged associations with a former Nazi? Are you trying to attack his loyalty to the United States?"

"No, I'm not accusing Flynn of disloyalty," shot back Bridges, "but I believe that any man who had such associations prior to Pearl Harbor has disqualified himself for diplomatic service in an area where we are fighting the Japs."

Well, I have no objections to any objections to Mr. Flynn coming from Australia," drawled Connally, "The President has approved him and will serve if confirmed, apparently like him all right."

"No, and you haven't heard them shouting for anyone about his nomination, either," countered Bridges, "The Australian people probably feel that Flynn is in a position to object to anything the president does concerning them, because American soldiers are defending their shores and they are getting lend-lease aid from us. But that doesn't mean that they are happy about having this ward politician foisted on them."

All during the meeting, Democratic Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, a party regular and an old crony of Flynn, kept demanding a showdown.

"The senator from New Hampshire has made some very serious charges," he repeatedly yammered over and over again. "Mr. Flynn or his lawyer should be here to answer them before we proceed."

Democratic Majority Leader Barkley finally quieted the agitated Pennsylvanian by assuring him that Flynn's lawyer will get an opportunity to defend himself at public hearings later.

Good Neighbor

For months, the U.S. Government has been trying to beguile good neighbor Canada into ratifying a treaty by which Canadians charged with swindling the American public through phony stock and bond deals could be extradicted from Canada. But the Canadian Government won't budge.

Canada has resisted blue sky laws of her own. So also has the United States. But a Canadian can come to this country and sell phony gold bricks, or dupe widows and orphans to make rockets to Mars, or put across any shady stock and bond deal he wishes, and as long as he stays under U.S. securities and exchange laws, he simply skips back to Canada. There he is quite safe. Canada won't relinquish him.

Recently, a treaty was signed between the two countries permitting each to extradite swindlers of this kind. The U.S. Senate has ratified, but the Canadian parliament hasn't.

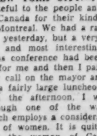
My Day

BY

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT



NEW YORK CITY—I am most grateful to the people and officials of Canada for their kind welcome in Montreal. We had a rather busy day yesterday, but a very pleasant one. Most interesting one, a press conference had been arranged for me and then I paid a courtesy call on the mayor and attended a fairly large luncheon.

In the afternoon, I was taken through one of the war plants which employs a considerable number of women. It is quite evident that the women of Canada are meeting the challenge in the same way the women are in the United States. Since Canada is part of the British Empire and many Canadian families travel back and forth to England and are closely tied to relatives in Great Britain, the reality of the war is even more poignantly here than in the United States.

I occasionally feels this tie even in the United States, I feel that I had stepped into a church club in Scotland the other night when I went to a USO club called "The Thistle." Open to British sailors and merchant marine officers, as well as our own men in the services, I found that the women acting as hostesses were all Scotch, with good Scotch accents which had not worn off with their years in the United States.

That same thing might happen anywhere in Canada. I am sure they sing "Auld Lang Syne" with as much feeling as they sang in this little club in New York City the other night.

After the great evening meeting in the interest of Russian war relief, at which Mr. Mackenzie King and the people responded generously to the appeals made, we caught the train and arrived in New York City this morning. We shall proceed to Washington in the course of few hours.

I have noticed lately a number of articles in the papers, and even some cartoons on the subjects, as to whether we should lower the voting age, since we have lowered the draft age. This question has been academically discussed for some time, but now it becomes more than an academic question.

If young men of eighteen and nineteen are old enough to take part in the political life of their country and to be full citizens with voting powers

In That Last Hour

A LETTER TO THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

Dear Editor: No man knows when the last hour of the war will come. But it will come sooner as war production is increased tonight and tomorrow and tomorrow. If this be not so, then all talk of production is folly. Ending the war depends on getting it closer to us even by an hour—can mean life or death to thousands.

If one tank or machine gunner can deal out more than 10,000 bullets. In one hour an anti-aircraft gun can fire more than 500 shells. In one hour a group of 1,000 bombers can drop 2,000 tons of bombs, badly damaging a city the size of Cleveland or St. Louis or Los Angeles or even Philadelphia or Chicago. Every hour of the war is important, but ending the war even one hour sooner can be your goal and mine.

No one knows exactly what happened in World War I, in the last hour between 10 and 11 a.m. on November 11, but throughout the morning of November 11, according to the casualty lists published in the New York Times, 1,021 American boys were either killed in action or seriously wounded. And the tempo of this war, compared with 1918, is like a tropical hurricane compared with a March wind.

Tonight and tomorrow, the hours we put in speeding production are the most important hours in our service to our country. They may be the most important hours in our personal lives. Perhaps someone you know and loved was killed on the morning of November 11, 1918. Perhaps someone you know and loved will remain alive in the last hour of this war, because you did what you could tonight and tomorrow.

Lloydminster Beats Vermilion In Hockey Game

LLOYDMINSTER. — The arena was one of the few buildings in Lloydminster that had light on Saturday night so the scheduled hockey game between Vermilion and Lloydminster went on. In spite of the extremely cold temperature there was a good crowd on the old faithful present to root the locals on to their 9-2 victory over their old rivals from the west.

However, due to unavoidable circumstances the whole of the visiting team did not arrive and their ranks were bolstered with local players.

Beauty. Sunderland, Manners and Grant scored for the locals in the first period, and Killen Sunderland, and Grant notched one each in the second. Vermilion got their first counter in the game from Douglas Williams and Wallace on a three-man breakaway from their own end while the locals were playing all men up Their second tally came from the stick of Williams on an assist from Douglas early in the third period. Laird and Sunderland completed the scoring for the locals taking one each.

Referee, Gordon Dilling.

With Those In Uniform

CLIVE.—AC2 George Harrow, who was given six days leave, was forced to spend all but one day in Lacombe due to bad roads.

LACOMBE.—Len Douglas, member of the local volunteer fire brigade and superintendent of St. Andrew's church Sunday school, has joined the C.A.S.C. and is in training at Calgary. Don Sharp, high school student, is now in the C.A.S.C. . . . Marion and Doris Dickson of Joffre have joined the R.C.A.F. as hospital assistants and will leave shortly for training in Rockcliffe, Ont. . . . Paul David has enlisted in the R.C.A.F. after working for many years at the Dominion Experimental Farm here.

CADOMIN.—Well-known as a lacrosse player prior to joining the navy, Peter McKenna, Jr., R.C.N., has returned to duty after spending leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKenna.

RED DEER.—Sgt W. J. Dowler, son of Mr. and Mrs C. A. Dowler, has arrived home on a month's sick leave.

TOFIELD.—William Barrow, eldest son of Mr and Mrs. M. H. Barrow has joined the Canadian army. . . . Harris McClymont, R.C.A.F., spent leave at home.

Lacombe School Now Re-Opened

LACOMBE.—Lacombe school reopened Tuesday morning after being closed for two and a half days by the extreme cold weather. School board officials considered it unwise to try and operate the school with the small number of pupils who showed up for classes when the temperature dropped to 34 degrees below zero last week, and they also desired to conserve the coal which they have on hand.

One coal merchant and his teamsters, worked all day Sunday delivering coal in half-ton lots to many persons who were down to their last shovelful. Coal is still being rationed this week and there appears to be no immediate relief in sight.

Simple Funeral For U.S. Minister To Canada Tuesday

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—High officials of many nations joined with Ottawa citizens Tuesday in attendance at simple funeral services for J. Pierrepont Moffat, United States minister to Canada, who died Sunday.

The service was read by Canon H. H. Clark of Christ church cathedral. There was no eulogy, and no music.

Following the brief service, the body, in a casket draped with the United States flag, was taken to Union station, to be sent by train to Montreal for cremation.

Forms Available For Tax Refunds

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Revenue Minister Gibson announced yesterday that special forms now are available through income tax inspectors and employers by which application is to be made for refunds of tax instalments deducted at the source from persons who had wage or salary incomes of $660 or less if single or $1,200 or less if married.

The special form is known as form T.D. 20-A. Others with incomes over $660 or $1,200, but not subject to tax, will file the usual T-1 income tax form and receive their refunds at a later date.

Mr. Gibson said form T.D. 20-A can be obtained by employees who worked early part of the year 1942 and did not receive a taxable income, but only if their income was below $660 or $1,200, single or married.

"Such persons who worked for a short time may have been paid at a rate of wage which required employers to make deductions at payperiods in accordance with the table of tax deductions," Mr. Gibson said.

"It is intended to make the refunds to all such non-taxable employees as quickly as possible."

PROTECTION . . . BY THE PEOPLE . . . FOR THE PEOPLE . . .

"To love, cherish . . . and protect . . . that's what I said Ann, wasn't it?"

When the nurse came out with a big smile and said: "It's a boy," George could have kissed her. But later, when the doctor told him, with a grave face, that he couldn't go in yet, he sat waiting in a daze of fear.

Even when the danger was past and Ann came home with the "family," George kept talking of those awful minutes when he thought he might lose her.

"It would be worse if I lost you," said Ann, "and especially now."

"We'll simply have to save more, that's all," said George.

"But how can we, with all these bills coming in?"

"We've got to, Ann. On top of our insurance we'll have to put more into war savings. I can't remember the marriage service, but didn't I say, 'To love, cherish . . . and protect . . . till death us do part?'"

THAT'S the way a family man feels. He doesn't worry much about his own future. But when it comes to the future of his loved ones—that's another story. That's the story of life insurance. It came into existence because men and women and children needed it. It grew because people had to have it. It's the people's business; they own its assets—over two billion dollars of them.

Life insurance has been wisely administered to provide guardianship for the people, by the people. It is an ideal form of co-operative effort. It's a romance, really—a thrilling story of how the people's dollars co-operate in a democracy of protection within our greater democracy. And now that our democracy is threatened, millions of dollars of the people's premiums are being invested by the insurance companies in Victory Bonds. Our ultimate protection now depends on that . . . on a final and conclusive victory.

Churchill, F.D.R. Africa Meeting Most Vital Yet

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill have met about every six months since August, 1941, each time with spectacular and historic results. The meeting in Casablanca—their fourth—may well prove the most important of all.

In August, 1941, they met at sea off Newfoundland and drafted the eight-point Atlantic Charter, a document which since has served as a guide for the Allies in relations with each other as well as the point of departure for most of the post-war statements from Allied officials in recent months.

VISITS STATES

Shortly after Pearl Harbor Churchill visited the United States. He arrived in Washington on Dec. 22, 1941, and went immediately into a series of conferences with the president and Anglo-American military and naval experts.

During this visit the United Nations, under the impetus of the chief executive and the prime minister, became an organized reality. And, although the hour was dark and the United Nations were on the defensive, they talked of offensives. Churchill and the president, with their military advisers, decided it would be desirable to open a second front against Germany on the English Channel coast of Europe in 1942.

Top military and naval experts of both nations went to work on the monumental detail connected with such an operation. They decided after a time, however, that there was not then sufficient assurance of success to warrant a frontal attack that year upon the strong German defences in the occupied lowlands.

Churchill came back to the United States in June, 1942, for another series of conferences. This time, the President and the Prime Minister decided on the North African invasion which materialized Nov. 8. Mr. Roosevelt explained the behind-the-scenes aspects of his conferences with Churchill long after the African operations began.

HINT OF OFFENSIVE

When people in many Allied nations were clamoring for a second front against Germany last summer, the President and the Prime Minister made this public statement on June 27:

"While exact plans, for obvious reasons, cannot be disclosed, it can be said that the combat operations which were discussed in detail at our Washington conferences between ourselves and our respective military advisers will divert German strength from the attack on Russia."

Shortly before Churchill's June, 1942, visit, Soviet foreign affairs commissar, V. M. Molotov, flew secretly from Moscow to Washington for talks with Mr. Roosevelt.

"In the course of the conversations I understood that you reached with regard to the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in this year," the White House said after the Russian leader had flown back to Russia to report to Premier Josef Stalin.

At that time—June 11, 1942—the White House statement was widely interpreted as pledging a second front diversion front that year. As later events showed, the statement meant that the Allies had understood why a major second front in Europe could not be opened in 1942, regardless of the urgency.

NEW COMPLICATIONS

Recent months have produced new complications of the international scene in addition to increasingly momentous offensive problems in connection with spring and summer operations against the Axis. The occupation of French North Africa produced a delicate political situation. And there has been growing pressure for a United Nations council to give Russia and China a more direct and forceful voice in planning the downfall of the Axis.

Thus there was ample reason for another meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill. This time, instead of Churchill coming here, Roosevelt went more than halfway.

U. S. PRESIDENT PLEDGES TROOPS TO GET ACTION

BELFAST, Jan. 27. — (CP) — President Roosevelt in a message read here yesterday commemorating the first anniversary of the landing of United States troops in Northern Ireland, said: "Our troops and those of the United Kingdom, Canada and the other dominions of our allies have chafed at inaction. They will get action."

The message was delivered at a ceremony at city hall by Maj.-Gen. Russell P. Hartle, temporary commander of U.S. forces in the European theatre.

"From now on and henceforth we think of attack, determined unrelenting, smashing attack," the president's message said.

Known Last Monday

By ELMER DULMAGE

Hundreds of Canadian, United States and British newspapers and radio stations "sat on" the dramatic story of the Churchill-Roosevelt conference at Casablanca for more than 30 hours before it reached the public at 9 p.m. C.D.T. last night.

It was a secret known since late Monday afternoon to thousands of newspapermen and workers in radio offices. The general public only knew something big was going to be announced and when it would be announced. For that matter, the whole world knew "when"—but not "what."

There were "teasers" in many of yesterday's newspapers to build up interest. These merely said "An important announcement is expected to be made public" at 9 p.m. last night.

HINTS DROPPED

Radio stations in Canada, the United States and Britain tipped off their listeners that an "important announcement" would be made at that hour.

The BBC for hours urged its listeners to tune in on an American station if the BBC did not come in clearly, and United States stations made similar requests. Axis stations, anticipating a propaganda "beat" by the United Nations, had been jamming broadcasts from both Britain and the United States.

Here is the story of how the news from Casablanca was distributed over hundreds of thousands of miles of cable and wires, starting some 30 hours before it was to be made public, and without the Germans, Italians or Japanese getting accurate wind of it:

Let's go back to Saturday, Jan. 9 when Canadian and American newspapers were told—confidentially and not for publication—that Mr. Roosevelt was "taking another trip." Byron Price, director of United States censorship, gave the press and radio this information and asked that the voluntary United States censorship code, which provides that nothing be published which the President's movements, be respected.

The Canadian censors, in co-operation with the United States censors, made the confidential advice available to Canadian newspapers.

NAZI START GUESSING

The German radio took to guessing Monday and, probably fishing for information, broadcast reports that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt were meeting—in Washington. Since this Berlin broadcast, erroneous as it was, concerned movements of Mr. Roosevelt which were not open to speculation on this side, neither Canada nor the United States elated Press distributed the Berlin report.

Just three hours before last night's 9 p.m. deadline, the German-controlled radio at Calais, announced it was "well known" that Mr. Churchill was in Washington. Not only that, he had been confronted by the United States with "new territorial demands" in Trinidad and Jamaica as a result of which Viscount Halifax was supposed to have resigned as ambassador to Washington. So the 9 o'clock news was really news to the Germans.

Shortly before 3 p.m. C.D.T. Monday, the real story started coming into the New York offices of the CP, and AP, from Wes Gallagher, Associated Press staff writer.

DISPATCHES SENT OUT

Gallagher's dispatches, which passed the North African Allied censorship and were cleared and ready for release 30 hours later, were sent out immediately over Canadian Press and Associated Press wires to the hundreds of newspaper members of these news-gathering associations in Canada and the United States.

The detailed stories by Gallagher were in most newspaper offices Monday night. Radio stations were served similarly.

F.D.R. Confers Highest Award On U.S. General

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, Jan. 27—(AP)—President Roosevelt took time out from his 10-day conference with Prime Minister Churchill to decorate Brig.-Gen. William H. Wilbur personally with the Congressional Medal of Honor—the highest United States decoration—for his part in the landings on French Morocco.

The citation by Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief in North Africa, read in part:

"He prepared the plan for contacting the French commander in Casablanca and securing an armistice to prevent unnecessary bloodshed. He landed at Fedala with the leading assault waves. . . . Commandeering a vehicle, he was driven toward hostile defences under incessant fire. . . . He then proceeded in total darkness through 16 miles of enemy-occupied country intermittently subjected to heavy bursts of fire and accomplished his mission. . . . Returning toward his command, Wilbur detected a hostile battery firing effectively on our troops. He took charge of a platoon of American tanks and personally led them in an attack and captured the battery. . . ."

F.D.R.'s Africa Hop Breaks Old Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(BUP)—President Roosevelt's flying trip to Africa breached the secret service's long-standing policy of objective to air travel by the American chief executives.

The secret service, which is responsible for the president's safety, has frowned on presidential air travel since the days when airplanes were not as safe as they are now.

Presidents before Mr. Roosevelt have wished to make airplane trips but have yielded to the secret service's emphatic protests.

Mr. Roosevelt's last previous plane trip was in 1932 when he flew from Albany, N.Y., to Chicago to accept the Democratic presidential nomination.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill has not hesitated to use airplanes in previous visits with Mr. Roosevelt. He returned from the United States to Great Britain by air after visits last January and again in June, and had flown at least part of the way on the trips over.

Yank Troops in Africa Expected 'Brass Hats' But Got F.D.R. in Jeep

By WALTER LOGAN

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

CASABLANCA, Jan. 21.—(Delayed)—(BUP)—American troops in French Morocco lined up today expecting to be inspected by "just another bunch of brass hats" when to their amazement they were reviewed by the President of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt rode past the soldiers in a jeep, ate a field lunch and drove 108 miles north to visit Port Lyntey, scene of the hardest fighting in the North African campaign, and to lay a wreath at an American cemetery near the 400-year-old fortress of Kasbah Mehdia.

The presidential convoy formed at 9:30 a.m. It skirted the city of Casablanca and drove directly to the review area, several miles to the north. Mr. Roosevelt rode in the official limousine of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and was escorted by civilian limousines, armored scout cars carrying 50-calibre machine guns and weapon carriers with the photographers' corps. There were about 20 cars in the convoy.

SCORES OF PLANES

It drove past the airport where scores of planes took off, forming a vast umbrella that protected the President all day.

The morning was chilly and somewhat cloudy. Mr. Roosevelt wore a gray felt hat, a gray suit with white pin-stripes and a white pull-over sweater.

The convoy speeded through the winding Fedala roads on which soldiers, not knowing who they were guarding, were stationed at regular intervals, guarding every inch of the road with pistols and tommy guns.

Reaching the review area, where the troops were lined up for at least a mile in front of their tanks, half tracks, scout cars and cannon of all sizes, Mr. Roosevelt left the limousine and entered a jeep.

The jeep, driven by Staff Sgt. Orrin Lane of Kansas City, Mo., drove slowly in front of the soldiers after a band played the Star Spangled Banner.

Delegations in Ottawa Thursday For Conference

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and Alberta will have delegations in Ottawa Thursday for the Dominion-provincial conference on loss of provincial revenue resulting from the Federal government's policy of reducing consumption of alcoholic beverages in wartime.

Prince Edward Island and British Columbia are not sending representatives to the conference, it was learned today at Prime Minister Mackenzie King's office.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan were expected to be represented but it seemed possible, one official said, that those provinces would have their submissions presented by Premier Gordon Conant of Ontario.

Wilkie Regrets Chinese, Russian Leaders Absent

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, expressed disappointment last night that Russia's and China's leaders were absent from the North African conference of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt and that creation of a grand military strategy board was not announced. He spoke in a coast-to-coast broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System soon after the historic meeting was revealed.

Willkie said that the "skill, resources and fortitude" of the Chinese and Russian leaders could be utilized to great advantage in a grand United Nations strategy.

"We can be grateful that the British prime minister and our president laid out plans for 1943 with their military staffs timed at the surrender of the Germans, Italians and the Japanese," he added.

Grant's Axiom Only Terms to Axis Partners

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(BUP)—The "unconditional surrender" ultimatum of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, referred to by President Roosevelt in his announcement of the United Nations aims, was delivered to a strong Confederate force which he had trapped at Fort Donelson, Tenn., on Feb. 16, 1862.

On that day Brig. Gen. S. B. Buckner of the Confederate army dispatched to Grant a letter proposing that he appoint "commissioners to agree upon terms of capitulation of the forces and fort under my command, and in that view suggest an armistice until 12 o'clock today."

Grant's bursque reply almost broke the friendship he had enjoyed with General Buckner with whom he had studied at West Point.

"No terms except an unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted," he responded. "I propose to move immediately upon your works."

World Broadcast Tells of Meeting

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—United States short-wave stations lost no time in telling the world about the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences in North Africa.

Setting in motion advance preparations by the office of war information, stations on the east and west coasts started flashing the news promptly at 9 o'clock, C.D.T., last night, the exact minute was made available to the public.

Within 24 hours, it was hoped to broadcast the news to all corners of the world in 22 languages. The broadcasts will be repeated time and time again. In fact, all foreign broadcasts for a full day will be devoted exclusively to the Casablanca meeting and related developments.

Host Says Flynn "In His Company"

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Fred McEvoy, host at the dinner party in the fashionable Bel Air home where blond Betty Hansen charges Errol Flynn raped her, testified Tuesday the actor was almost constantly in his company that evening.

McEvoy said that at no time did Flynn go to the upstairs bedroom where Betty says the alleged offence occurred.

Flynn is on trial charged with the statutory rape of Miss Hansen, 17, and another 'teen age girl.

Pfc. Martin E. Ross, former bellboy at a hotel where Miss Hansen stayed, said she had denied any intimacies at the McEvoy party. He said he had questioned her because he felt like a big brother towards her.

HOW DO THOSE BRITISH WOMEN "CARRY ON"?

British women have shown they know how to "keep going!" And a survey recently made throughout Britain shows that they voted for Aspirin as one of the three drug items most truly needed for maintaining their health and morale.

Especially now, with so many millions in full-time war industries, Aspirin has become almost "standard equipment." Women know, from many years of experience, that Aspirin gives effective, dependable, speedy help against colds.

They don't have to wait for it to work. In less than 2 seconds, Aspirin is right on the job . . . starting to relieve fever and stuffiness, muscular aches, and the headache from colds. Aspirin is rated as one of the safest of all analgesics . . . yet it costs less than 1¢ a tablet in the economy bottle.

Be glad you have Aspirin here. Always keep some handy. Aspirin is the trade mark of The Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the Bayer cross on each tablet. If you don't see this cross, it isn't Aspirin.

Great Events Are Expected From Meeting

Axis forces in Tunisia and early attacks, aerially or otherwise, against Italy.

3—Initial steps toward a solution of the French North African political troubles but no great headway toward resolving the basic difficulties between Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud.

4—Hints of possible diplomatic manoeuvres of a magnitude yet unrevealed. North African dispatches mentioned rumors involving Finland, Sweden, Turkey, Spain and even Italy.

NO NEGOTIATED PEACE

5—Obliteration of any Axis feelers for a "negotiated" peace through the forthright declaration of Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt that the only terms acceptable to them were those of "unconditional surrender."

6—Complete strategic decisions designed not only to bring greatest possible pressure to bear upon the Axis in Europe but to enhance cooperation with Russia and China and maintain utmost pressure upon Japan in the Pacific.

Belief was expressed in Allied quarters that the most important events of the epic meeting were matters which could not be discussed until they occur.

There was no doubt that decisions were made on where and how Hitler is to be hit during the coming months. Speculation ranged over virtually the whole of the European continent with Norway, Italy and the Balkans in the fore.

INITIAL PROBLEM

However, the initial task was plainly the mopping up of the Axis in Africa—a task which military observers were, not inclined to minimize.

It was believed the first result of the meeting would be the early establishment of a new African command.

The names of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, the British Middle-Eastern commander, and Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were mentioned most frequently.

It was believed that one commander would be named to head up all operations in Africa, taking over the direction of the British 1st and 8th armies and the American 5th army and that another general would be placed in overall charge of the whole Mediterranean theatre.

One of these commands it was assumed, would go to the British and the other to an American, but setting varied as to which would to which.

FRENCH SITUATION

As for the French political squabble British opinion was cool to the results of the de Gaulle-Giraud conference as were ligulate French quarters. The de Gaulle group made a point of noting that their leader's agreement with Giraud was confined solely to the principle of fighting in indefinite liaison for the freedom of France.

Allied headquarters frankly stated that lengthy and possibly difficult negotiations lie ahead before full collaboration can be achieved among the French factions.

There was little but hints and rumors on the possibility that diplomatic negotiations of some nature occurred at Casablanca. However, dispatches from North Africa mentioned labels on the luggage of travellers indicating they had come from Finland and rumors spread that there might have been Swedish, Turkish and even Italian, participants.

FINNISH ACTIVITY

Some credence was lent to the Finnish rumors by signs that some Finnish diplomatic activity might be underway. Dispatches from Stockholm reported the presence there of an important group of Finnish officials, headed by V. A. Tanner. President Rysto Ryti, in closing a session of the Finnish parliament, expressed hope for improvement of Finland's relations with the United States.

There have been recurrent indications of Allied efforts to take Finland out of the war—long stalemated on the virtually inactive Finnish front—and within the past week a German propaganda broadcast alleged that Russia had made another peace offer to Finland which had been turned down.

The importance of Finland, it was noted, would be enhanced by any Allied invasion moves in Norway designed to clear the supply route to Russia.

ONE OF MAIN CONCERNS

The problem of increasing the flow of supplies to Russia and of co-ordinating Allied strategy on the European continent with that of the Red Army was officially stated to have been one of the major concerns of the Casablanca planners.

Despite rumors circulated in some quarters prior to the announcement of the Casablanca meeting, there was no indication of any move toward creation of a unified high Allied command in which Russia and China as well as Britain and the United States would be represented.

Indications in authoritative quarters were that, no particular emphasis was placed on the unified high command idea. Rather, decisions on specific military operations and closest collaboration of the United States and Great Britain were believed to have been the major concern of the confreres.

Aside from the actual decisions of the conference, it was believed certain that its dramatic setting on the African coast and its timing to coincide with Allied victories not only in Africa but in Russia and in the southwest Pacific would constitute a puzzling and morale factor of no mean consequence.

COMPLETE SHOCK

Allied quarters pointed out that the news came as a complete shock to Axis propagandists who had only belatedly got wind that a Churchill-Roosevelt meeting was afoot and had mistakenly guessed that it was being held in Washington.

It came also at a moment when the German public was being flooded with the gloomiest reports they had heard since the start of the war, telling of wholesale reverses on the eastern front.

The effect on Germany's satellites was expected to be even more telling. Dissatisfaction with the progress of the war has been reported widespread in such countries as Italy, Hungary and Rumania, particularly due to the heavy losses among their divisions fighting in Russia.

The full facilities of Allied broadcast facilities beamed to the continent was telling the dramatic story of the Casablanca meeting. It was held certain here that the news not only would fan further sparks of resistance in the occupied countries but would add to the discouragement of already disheartened Axis citizens.

BIG JOB STILL AHEAD

Some quarters emphasized that the location of the conference in Africa did not mean "necessarily that the Axis foothold in Tunisia will be wiped out overnight. They noted that the Axis had succeeded in uniting formidable forces on favorable terrain and that hard fighting lies ahead before they can be eliminated and the outright assault on the European fortress undertaken.

They also emphasized that the German submarine fleet remains a potent weapon against the huge movement of supplies, munitions and men needed for the offensives of 1943. It was noted also, that despite losses in Russia, the German luftwaffe and the German army remain formidable fighting forces whose full weight can be expected to oppose Allied landing efforts on the continent.

Protection of Canadian Armament Plants Urged At Opening of House

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Immediate consideration of protection of Canadian plants from air attack was urged in the report of a sub-committee on ammunition, chemicals, explosives and tank production tabled in the House of Commons today.

The report of the sub-committee, a unit of the house committee on war expenditures said: "The present position is better than ever it was, but your committee feels that greater protection should be given to certain material war industries in strategic locations.

"Your committee further feels that smoke screen operations are an effective protection from air attack and recommends that they be installed where deemed necessary."

The sub-committee, headed by Lionel Chevrier (Lib., Stormont), held 13 sittings and heard 10 witnesses since last August. It visited war factories in the course of its examinations.

COST PLUS CRITICIZED

In a previous report last June, the sub-committee criticized the use of the cost plus percentage contract but found it was inescapable where there existed a variation of a great number of parts on which no cost basis could be made.

In its new report, the sub-committee said that while at the outset of manufacture it was necessary to resort to cost plus percentage contracts these now should be replaced by fixed price contracts.

The fixed price contract it favored was based on a price not subject to change regardless of the manufacturers' costs. The committee felt that if this policy were carefully applied as many as 90 per cent of the contracts might be granted on a competitive basis.

Supporting a previous recommendation that larger numbers of cost accountants be employed in war plants, the sub-committee said its investigation had shown the work of such accountants is increasingly important.

"Your committee finds that the establishment of fixed price contracts is due in large part to competent cost accounting."

CANADA NOT IMMUNE

The sub-committee heard evidence of enemy air raids on the United Kingdom and reached the following conclusions:

1—"Canada is a war of extermination with air warfare centred on civilian population. Canada is not immune from aerial and submarine attack by the enemy. Attacks of this nature may be expected here and constant consideration should be given by the departments charged with the responsibility for the provision of adequate protection to vital production plants.

2—"North America now has become a great supply source for Allied nations in this struggle against the Axis powers with Great Britain an outpost which must be maintained and defended.

"Having regard to these conclusions it is apparent that too many precautions cannot be taken to safeguard all government controlled and other plants manufacturing war material."

The sub-committee said it approved of methods adopted to meet sabotage and recommended they be followed carefully. The report praised the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for their anti-sabotage work.

The report said "some hundreds" of Valentine tanks have been shipped from Canada to Russia, each trunked of tanks carrying several boxes of spare parts, ammunition and spare tracks. Each tank had instruction literature printed in Russian.

The sub-committee said Valentine tank production was being discontinued.

Ram tanks were being delivered to the Canadian Army in England and a considerable number had been provided for training in Canada.

The output shortly would exceed Canadian Army requirements and excess production would be available for Allies.

PARTIAL IDLENESS

In investigating gaps in the munition industry due to employees being temporarily not fully occupied, the sub-committee found that in the development of the munitions program short periods of inefficient work or partial idleness must at times ensue.

The sub-committee found that most of the early problems of tank production had been largely overcome and that "We have in Canada built up an industrial structure for the production of munitions which is apparently capable of absorbing all the available manpower of the country."

Economy in production of munitions would be promoted largely by:

1—"The success with which the army can reach and maintain a continuing strategic concept on which tanks and other munitions can be based.

2—"The alertness of those executives both in government and in industry charged with design of munitions to interpret this strategic concept in a way to fit our resources.

3—"The skill with which our programs and resources can be fitted into the structure of North America, so as to make our greatest contribution without delay in obtaining essential materials."

MORE SMALL ARMS

The sub-committee ffeit it "unwise to concentrate on what might seem to be small savings in the administrative routine when such enormous sums turn upon the proof whose column has reached Tripoli after an astonishing march through interior Africa.

The agreement provided only for an exchange of information and for consultations. For instance, informants said, if de Gaulle ordered Gen. Jacques LeClerc, commanding the Tripoli column, to carry out a certain operation he would inform Giraud, and would in turn be informed of any similar operation ordered by Giraud.

Informants said de Gaulle and Giraud were unable to agree on basic issues such as refutation of the Vichy regime of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and Pierre Laval, restoration of the laws of the French republic which Petain wrote off the statute books, and creation of a single French authority in exile to represent France.

De Gaulle has insisted consistently that these conditions are essential to complete French collaboration.

IN FAVOR OF UNION

De Gaulle and Giraud expressed to one another a strong desire to bring about union, it was said.

"This desire did lead to agreement on certain points which arise out of the common aid of the liberation of France," an informant said. "But basic political problems remained not settled, not even partly settled."

The London Daily Mirror published today a statement by one of its correspondents that at one point in the Casablanca conference it was suggested that a "high ranking, notoriously pro-Vichy" official be brought into the talks but de Gaulle refused to meet him or any other Frenchman who had served Vichy.

De Gaulle, back in London, issued the following statement:

"I was very honored to meet President Roosevelt in Africa.

"His friendship for France is a particularly comforting factor in the struggle which the French people are waging against the enemy within and without its own territory.

"It was an equal satisfaction to me to be able to renew conversations on this occasion with British Prime Minister Churchill.

De Gaulle conspicuously did not mention Giraud or express satisfaction of having met him.

COMMITTEES STATEMENT

"On the occasion of the inter-Allied conference in Africa, Gen. de Gaulle, accompanied by Gen. Georges Catroux and Adm. Thierry d'Argenlieu, met Gen. Giraud in French North Africa.

"With a view to assuring unification of the efforts of the French empire and its forces on land, at sea and in the air it was decided that the necessary liaisons should be established immediately.

"Moreover, in course of the conversations preliminary examination was made of the conditions under which French effort in the war of liberation could be developed, taking into account the new situation in French North and West Africa. Exchange of views on this subject will be continued.

"Complete union of the empire and its armed forces in conjunction with the movement of resistance in France, to be accomplished under conditions consonant with the will and dignity of the French people, remains the immutable aim of the de Gaulle national committee."

REMAINS UNCHANGED

On the basis of known facts from reliable sources, the North African political situation remains unchanged.

De Gaulle and Giraud met, talked and agreed on some points which did not touch basic issues, thus leaving the situation much as it was before the Casablanca conference.

Even British and American sources said it would be "foolish" to take the line that the North African situation had been solved.

Down 14 to One

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—United States fighter pilots in China are shooting down 14 Japanese airplanes for each of their own planes lost, Col. Robert Scott, former commander of the 23rd Fighter Group in China, said today.

"National wisdom and maturity of those who administer the system, I offer, therefore, no specific recommendations."

The report said Canada was turning out more small arms ammunition in one work shift than all Canada's peacetime plants could turn out in two months, with rifle and machine gun bullets being produced at twice the 1941 rate.

Production of Sten carbines would be quadrupled this year.

Canada's explosives production now was nearly as large as that of the United Kingdom.

Axis Guessed as Usual—And Bad—On Churchill, Roosevelt Meeting

By British United Press

The Roosevelt-Churchill conference in North Africa kept the Axis guessing and, as usual, the guesses mostly were inaccurate.

Actually the Axis radio stations made fewer broadcasts relating to the meeting than they have to earlier conferences involving Mr. Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Josef Stalin, possibly because their past efforts fell so short of the facts.

The Berlin, Rome, Vichy and Paris radios all broadcast that the two leaders were meeting in Washington, and agreed that the North African problem would be first on the agenda of the conference, followed by the question of relations with the Soviet Union.

Only broadcast that approximated the fact that the conference was taking place in North Africa or that Mr. Roosevelt had left Washington.

The Paris radio reported under a Washington dateline that "an official communique is to be published one of these days on the conferences now taking place in Washington between the representatives of the United States, Great Britain, China and the Soviet Union."

Raiders Broke Through While Balloons Down

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair told the House of Commons yesterday that barrage balloons were down in part of the London area during the German daylight attack last Wednesday because of maintenance work.

"This work could only be carried out in the daylight," he said. "There is no question of negligence."

Six German raiders got through the defences to drop bombs in the city.

2 Nippon Planes Believed Downed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(RUP)—An American aircraft on a reconnaissance mission over Japanese-held Wake Island are believed to have shot down two of eight intercepting Zero fighters, the U.S. Navy announced today. All American planes returned safely.

A FACT OR TWO about WAR PROFITS!

FROM 1939 to 1942, our wage bill increased from $4,511,433 to $9,379,203, due to additional employment given by the war. But also because the average hourly earnings of plant employees, inclusive of cost-of-living bonuses, are 33.2 per cent higher than in 1939.

WAGES 1939 1942

In THE same period, our income taxes rose from $244,514 to $8,000,000. The tax load is now 32 times what it was in 1939.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

HIL SONTAG'S feat at Westglen last night in boosting the scoring record for the Men's Basketball League to 33, one better than his former mark, was really something, but the shooting accuracy figures reveal a truly remarkable performance.

The Saints' ace dropped in 15 field goals out of 29 shots at the basket for a percentage mark of 51.89, which constitutes a real achievement. In addition he missed just one out of four chances for foul goals.

Sontag's best work was in the second quarter when he fired eight field goals out of 13 attempts. In the opening session he rang up six points from three field goals in seven tries. He missed on a foul shot.

Only on the floor a short time in the third quarter, Sontag tried for the basket twice and registered once, but he made good on two successive foul shots. Three field goals out of seven chances and one foal goal were the final quarter figures.

EXCELLENT SHOOTING

IT WAS however not only Sontag who turned in a good average last night. For the rest of the Latter Day Saints were just as good as they were bad in their previous game.

All of Hon. Solon Low's club had their sights beamed right on the basket, for out of 67 attempts they rang the bell 31 times, which was quite a help in compiling the highest score in league play during the entire season. Their accuracy percentage was 46.2 per cent.

The Saints best showing was in the second quarter when they made good 11 times out of 18 chances. They clicked six out of 13 times in the fourth.

The City Police on the other hand were decidedely off their usual shooting form, for they made only seven field goals out of 39 chances for a percentage figure of 18. In the first quarter they had success just once in 10 tries and in the third once out of 11. They made three out of 10 in the second and two out of eight in the final chapter.

One Point from Saskatoon

Flin Flon Wins 6-4 Against Regina Army

SASKATOON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Flin Flon Bombers defeated Regina Army 6-4 here Tuesday night to move within a point of the second place Saskatoon R.C.A.F. Flyers in the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League.

Bob Wiest led Bombers with two goals and an assist. Jack McDonald, Sid Brown, Harvey Fraser and Walt Cunningham got the other counters for the winners.

Cpl. Murray Armstrong, with two, L.-Cpl. Sandy Sandelack and Cpl. Butch MacDonald scored for Regina.

Bombers, playing like the team that for years had been a threat in the senior loop showed plenty of speed and back checked tenaciously. They took a three-goal lead in the first six minutes with Wiest scoring twice and McDonald once.

The Army, consolidated in first position one point ahead of Saskatoon, failed to cut down the lead by more than a goal in the remaining two periods.

The game was Bombers second of home games on "foreign" ice. They take the first in Moose Jaw against Army.

Simpson, in goal Jimmy Skinner and Cunningham on defence were the most effective players for the winners. Cpls. MacDonald and Armstrong were outstanding for the Army.

Lust Arrives Today

Saturday's Fight Last For Duration for Lindsay

A.C. KENNY LINDSAY, of Vancouver, bantamweight champion of Canada now at the "M" Depot here, stated on Tuesday that Saturday night's six-round fight with AC2 Hugh Sloan will be his last for the duration.

The Lindsay-Sloan bout is on the same card as the services championship fight between Sgt. Dave Castilloux of Montreal, Canadian welter weight title holder and Pte. Al Lust of Calgary.

In addition to asserting that he did not intend to enter the ring any more after Saturday until the war was over, added "I'll be giving away a few pounds to Sloan too, but I'll get along alright."

Lust, who will be upholding the Army's end of the big night's show at the Arena on Saturday night, is expected to arrive in the city sometime today and will be quartered at the Prince of Wales Armory, where he will put on the finishing touches for the affair.

Castilloux is in top shape on his own admission and although he will be several pounds heavier than the Calgary heiter is quite confident of the outcome.

Referee Arthur Donovan, world's foremost fight referee, will arrive on Friday and will be the third man in the ring for both the Castilloux-Lust and Lindsay-Sloan bouts. He is making a special trip here from an eastern U.S. coast port to handle the fights.

Castilloux and Lindsay, along with the several who will appear in the preliminaries will hold a public workout at the "M" Depot this afternoon at 2:30.

Seek Five Weeks Of Trotting Races

GOSHEN, Jan. 27.—(AP)—In an effort partially to settle the shipping problem, the trotting horse club of America has applied to the Ohio racing commission for dates for five weeks of trotting and racing at North Randall, near Cleveland, starting June 28.

Will Gahagan, secretary of the horse club, said it was desirable to keep the horses in one spot as long as possible and also to have a place where the club car run off the stakes it sponsors.

Gahagan said he does not know what effect the meeting will have on the Grand Circuit. Probably, however, the North Randall meeting will be made a part of the Big Time League.

Will Cane said the Hambletonian will be held as usual at Goshen and back around the traditional date.

Coast Cage Star Killed in Action

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27.—(CP)—P.O. George Pringle, former basketball star who forsook the pulpit for a pilot's seat, has been killed in action overseas, his father, Rev. George Pringle, was advised officially yesterday.

P.O. Pringle, 25, played for the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds and Vancouver Westerns when they won the Canadian men's basketball title in the 30's. Before he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. nearly two years ago he was a minister of the United church at Armstrong, B.C. He was killed Jan.

Saints Go Farther Ahead in Hoop League

Phil Sontag Bags 33 for New Record

MAKING their place on the top rung of the Men's Basketball League still more secure, Latter Day Saints piled up a 68-17 count against City Police at Westglen gym on Tuesday night. Alcans not being able to floor a team defaulted the first of the scheduled doubleheader to Air Transport Civilians.

Phil Sontag bettered by one point the existing scoring record held by himself when he rang up a total of 33. Ken Shaw was high for the Police with six points, while Henry Martell's quota was five.

Contrary to their previous appearance which was against Varsity, Hon. Solon Low's Saints were all "on" last night and their figure of 31 field goals out of 67 attempts sets a new high for shooting accuracy in the league.

The hoop circuit leaders went right to work in the first quarter and ran in a total of 17 while the Police only had Ken Shaw's field basket to show for their efforts. Of the 17, Harold Francis contributed four, Blayn Stevens five, Alan Pendleton two and six went to Sontag.

With the Saints' ace sharpshooter doing basket business in wholesale fashion which added up to 16 points, the score was boosted to 36 at the half-way mark. Bert Kirkham made five points and Pendleton again sank a field goal.

Police points in the second session went to Paul Kirk who dropped in a pair of field baskets and Martell who added another.

Saints out-scored their opponents 15-3 in the third quarter with points going to Sontag (4), Pendleton (2), Wood (4), Francis (2) and Kirkham (2). Benny Wheatfield with two points and Martell with one registered for the Police.

Their seven points went to the Saints in the final canto and of these Sontag made seven. Pendleton two, Stevens two, and Aldage still also added a field goal.

Ken Shaw made four more for the Police and Martell came up with two.

Detroit Now Close to Top

Red Wings Take First Game In Five Years on Boston Ice

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Detroit Red Wings out-scored Boston Bruins 5-3 last night to gain their first regular scheduled National Hockey League triumph on Boston ice since Dec. 7, 1937. By so doing, the Red Wings pulled to within a half game of the top-place Bruins before a crowd of 12,646.

The Red Wings, who did collect two playoff victories here last season, lost little time establishing their supremacy by scoring three times during the first 18 minutes of play.

Don Grosso beat Goalie Frankie Brimsek at 2:41 and before the opening session ended, Mud Bruneteau and Carl Liscombe blazed close-up shots into the Bruins' cage

Buzz Boll then inspired the Boston stickmen to smoother efforts by scoring twice in less than eight minutes of second-period action. Late in that session, Eddie Wares registered while Bep Guidolin and Cully Simon were serving major penalties for fighting.

Flash Hollett in the third period broke up a four-man rush and rushed the length of the rink to score around Defenseman Johnny Orlando. During the last 15 minutes the Bruins fought valiantly for a tie, only to have their hopes dashed by Liscombe, who collected his second goal of the game 45 seconds before the final bell clanged.

The reversal was the second the Bruins have suffered in their 17 home starts this season. The only other team to win here was New York Rangers. The victory was the third straight triumph for the Red Wings, who now have gone six games without defeat.

Expect Athletics Not Affected by Calls This Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The United States Army announcement that enlisted reservists soon will be called for active duty from the colleges doesn't necessarily mean that intercollegiate athletics will be halted or even greatly curtailed in the near future.

An Associated Press survey yesterday of the major institutions throughout the country indicated that there won't be any major changes before the 1943 football season comes around.

Except in a few cases, they are just starting new terms that will keep most of the members of winter sports teams in school until the season's end. The reservists won't be ordered up until the end of the first college term after Dec. 31, 1942, and even then it may take some time before they are actually inducted. Advance reserve officers training corps men, engineering and medical students and other specialized groups are excepted and so far there has been no change in the procedure of summoning air corps reservists, navy "V-7" men or Marine corps reservists.

With these to form the nucleus of their teams, college athletic authorities figure they'll be able to keep going for some time.

The big exodus is expected either at the end of the winter terms in late March or April or when school year ends in May or June. Indications are that in most cases about one-third of the football players who otherwise would be eligible for 1943 will be called for duty by the army. The other services may take more, but there's the possibility that many of the army men will have finished their 13-weeks basic training and will be returned to the colleges for further training by next fall. In that case they may be eligible to play on the college teams.

American Hockey Player in Crash

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Sgt. John J. Mikolich, listed among 11 killed in the crash of a heavy bomber north of the Alamogordo, N.M., air base Sunday, is believed to be the first American-born professional hockey player in the United States armed forces to die during the war.

Joseph Farrell publicity representative of Chicago Black Hawks, said yesterday that Mokolich was the property of the Hawks and had played two years for the American Association Kansas City team, a Hawk farm.

Mikolich, 22 years old, was regarded as promising left winger and came from the vicinity of Hibbing Minn., where such National Hockey League stars as Frankie Brimsek, Sam Lo Presti and Mike Karakas were developed.

Horses Haul Fans to Races

Old Grey Mare Laighs Last

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The old grey mare has a loud horse laugh on the automobile yesterday as word got around that all four of New York's Metropolitan district race tracks are considering using horses to get fans to and from race tracks this year.

Reports of this means of getting the bettors and the mutuel machines together turned up the same time as the State Racing Commission announced a full 180-day racing season this year for the five New York state tracks, including Saratoga. Up state, Saratoga was given customary mid-summer month from July 26 through Aug. 29.

Commission chairman Herbert Bayard Swope suggested the "best way" out of transportation difficulties now besetting race tracks because of the ban on pleasure driving "would be to get horses own vehicles at work again."

As a result, Belmont, Aqueduct, Empire City and Jamaica, 3 of which are located within reasonable distances of regular transportation lines, are looking to the plan of hitching up horses and wagons to get the cash contributors from the stations on these lines to the horse parks and back again.

The schedule the commission announced has Jamaica opening the seven-month show here April 5. After Jamaica winds up May 8, it's Belmont, May 10 through June 5, Aqueduct, June 7 through June 26, and Jamaica, June 28 through July 24. After Saratoga, comes Aqueduct, Aug. 30-Sept. 18; Belmont, Sept. 20-Oct. 9; Jamaica, Oct. 11-Oct. 30, and Empire City, Oct. 21-Nov. 3.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Joe Choynski, famous old-time California fighter who died this week in Cincinnati, was a principal in the most celebrated grudge fight in ring history—his "battle of the barge" with the late Jim Corbett.

Choynski, the good little man who beat many good big men, made several other notable contributions to pugilistic history, but he will be remembered longest for his bloody barge brawl with "Gentleman Jim." That was the ultimate in grudge fights.

Corbett and Choynski were reared a few blocks apart in the Hayes Valley section of San Francisco, and as each progressed pugilistically they became bitter rivals for the admiration of the city's fight fans. They fought five times, but four of these feuding engagements were minor meetings compared to that thundering melee on the barge.

The feud started when both were amateurs, Corbett boxing for the Olympic club and Choynski for the rival California Athletic Club. Brothers of both boxers worked in the gold mines. They argued and their arguments spread to admirers of Irish Corbett and Jewish Choynski. After various "spats" Jim and Joe fought with their bare fists in the sand hills outside the city one Sunday morning in 1883. Corbett knocked out Joe in the first round.

TURNED PROFESSIONAL

A YEAR later they met in an amateur tourney and Corbett won a three round decision. Choynski turned professional and enjoyed such success that he decided to tackle his arch-enemy again. Members of Choynski's club goaded Corbett, through their newspapers, into accepting a match-for-stakes or profe-sional bout with Joe. Corbett, instructor at the Olympic club after quitting his job as bank teller, was an amateur. It required much persuasion before his father, Pat, consented to the professional match, but he did it out of family pride.

Corbett and Choynski met for a finish fight in a barn near Fairfax, Cal., on May 30, 1889, with a $1,000 bet at stake. The sheriff and deputies stopped the bout in the fourth round. Hence it was shifted to a barge, anchored in the Strait of Carquinez, near Benecia, on June 5.

A broiling sun beat down on the barge as Corbett and Choynski were rowed out from shore. More than 200 spectators were aboard. Corbett fought with two-ounce pad gloves, and Joe used teamster's gloves because he had lost his two-ounce mitts. Corbett out-weighed Joe, 178 pounds to 170, and had advantages of height, reach and speed.

DETERMINED TO WIN

CORBETT won the opening rounds with masterly boxing, but injured his left hand in the third round. His dread was handicapped by a broken right thumb, suffered in the brief barn engagement. Choynski, the harder puncher kept boring in with his seamed gloves, and by the fifth round both were bleeding profusely.

In the 16th, Joe exploded a left hook on Corbett's right eye, almost knocking him out. Corbett staggered about the deck but didn't go down. Jim rallied in the 18th and they continued fighting furiously.

As the deck became slippery with blood and some of the spectators sickened at the sight of the gore Referee Patsy Hogan wanted to stop the brawl and call it a draw, but neither principal would permit it. Both men were in terrible shape in the 25th. Corbett's eye was completely closed and his hann injuries forced him to hit with his wrists.

WENT 28 ROUNDS

IN the 28th Corbett summoned all his strength and drove a right to Choynski's jaw. Joe went down for the count, and Jim almost fainted from the pain in his right hand. He didn't know the fight was over while his brothers helped him to his corner.

(Corbett always described the ending of this barge bout as a full-count knockout in the 28th round. However Nat Fleischer's Ring record book, in listing Choynski's fights, says it ended in the 27th when Choynski was unable to continue.)

Choynski and Jim met again on July 15 that year in a four-round bout at the Olympic Club, with Jim taking the decision. But this was an anti-climactic engagement.

As Corbett went on to become heavyweight champion and Choynski also carved out a career with his fists, their feud apparently passed into history. But the embers still smouldered in Choynski's heart, even when he was an old man. At times he would express great admiration for Corbett's feats on other occasions he would unleash withering blasts against "Pompadour Jim" and he would snarl like Joe of the barge.

Always With Yankees

Lefty Gomez Goes to Braves for $7,500

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, strikeout king of the American League in his younger days, finished a 12-year tenure with the only major club of which he ever was a member Tuesday when New York Yankees sold him to Boston Braves.

Purchase price for the 32-year-old left hander was not announced but it was believed to be in the neighborhood of the waiver price of $7,500-considerably below his 1942 salary, which was estimated at $12,000.

Since the baseball season closed last fall Gomez has been employed in a defence plant at Lynn, Mass., where he started at $40 a week.

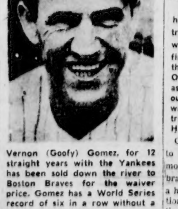
After winning 18 and losing five in 1941, with Johnny Murphy finishing many of his games, the veteran southpaw found rough going last season. He won six and lost four but was knocked out of the box in 11 of 13 starting engagements.

Lefty reached his greatest heights in 1934, when he led the leagues with 26 victories as against only five setbacks had the lowest earned-run average of 2.33, was No. 1 man in strike-outs with 158 and innings pitched with 282.

At his peak he received $20,000 a season under a two-year contract in 1935 and 1936.

Although he didn't appear in either the 1941 or 1942 world series when the Yanks opposed the Dodgers and Cardinals, respectively, Gomez compiled an enviable world series record of six wins and no losses in six years winning two each in 1936 and 1937.

Sold



Vernon (Goofy) Gomez, for 12 straight years with the Yankees has been sold down the river to Boston Braves for the waiver price. Gomez has a World Series record of six in a row without a loss.

Hank Gowdy Is Now Army Captain

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Hank Gowdy, first major league ballplayer to enlist in military service during the first Great War, was notified Tuesday he has been commissioned a captain in the United States Army and to report next Saturday at Fort Benning, Ga.

Gowdy, 53 years old, thus will break a 13-year association with Bill McKechnie, manager of Cincinnati Reds.

Strikes Referee: Player Suspended

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association announced last night that Harold Johnson, high scoring defenceman for Aces in the Winnipeg Senior Services League, has been suspended for one game for striking Referee Dick Davis in a recent game.

Frank Hannibal, M.A.H.A. president, said Johnson will not play when Army and R.M.C.S. Chippawas meet Friday night. Johnson formerly played with Yorkton Terriers in the Saskatchewan Senior League.

Garrison Loses Service Cage Game to Navy 48-18

In the only game of the Inter-Service Baseball League played Tuesday night the Navy trounced the Edmonton Garrison squad 48-18 on the latter's home floor.

Reg. Robertson and Bruce Hembling with 14 points each sat the pace for the Navy as they easily won over the Army.

Jack Robertson, Bill Mayson and Bennie Furyarchuk, scoring a like number accounted for 21 of the winners' counters. Pete Danylowich tallied the remaining six.

Murray and Kuhn with four points each, Freeze, Ferguson, Harris, Martell and Cordell with two each were the scorers for the losers.

The Navy took an early lead and had very little trouble in holding it throughout the game. They out-counted the soldiers 11-2 in the first quarter an 8-6 in the second to lead the half time score of 19-8.

The sailors continued to out-pace the losers in the last half by counting 13 points in the third frame and 16 in the final one while the Army could only hoop a slim 10 in both sessions.

Highlands Team Wins Six Straight

In view of the recent cold weather several games in Community League midget hockey were postponed, necessitating a revision in the schedule.

Highlands are the present leaders with six straight wins, Ritchie second with five points and Cloverdale and Forest Heights tied for third position with four each.

Jan. 28—Ritchie vs Highlands; Cloverdale vs Forest Heights.

Feb. 2—Forest Heights vs Jasper Place; Cloverdale vs Highlands.

Feb. 4—Ritchie vs Forest Heights; Cloverdale vs Jasper Place.

Feb. 9—Ritchie vs Cloverdale.

Engineers Eke Out 2-1 Victory Over Ag-Com-Law

The Engineers came from behind to defeat Ag-Com-Law 2-1 in a Varsity Interfac Hockey League game played at the Grid rink Tuesday night. The result put the Engineers in first place, one point ahead of the idle Arts.

Jim Taylor and Gus Younger of the losers and Lucien Lambert of the Engineers were the outstanding players in last night's contest.

Both teams played close hockey throughout with no scoring in the first or second periods.

The Ag-Com-Law opened the counting after seven minutes of play in the third frame when Bob Schrader scored on an assist from Gus Younger. The winners tied the score six minutes later by a goal shot into the top corner of the net by Jack Simpson on a relay from Bill Dimock.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Britain's "First Lady" of the turf, Mrs. Ellen Chaloner celebrated her 97th birthday at her Newmarket home by going for a ride in a bath-chair. She can't walk far any more.

Only woman in Britain to have held a jockey club licence to train horses, Mrs. Chaloner is the widow of Tom Chaloner who finished second on Pell Mell in the 1872 derby, and sister of John Osborne, famed in others years as jockey and trainer. She has outlived four of her sons, all of whom were either jockeys or trainers. The youngest son, Harry, is in Australia.

One son, George, was apprenticed to her when she was saddling mounts and from this arose a celebrated case. George won a race on a horse named Jacob and an objection was lodged on the grounds that the jockey was not "lawfully apprenticed." The adjudicating stewards were in a dither until a barrister recalled a court case in which a boy had been apprenticed to a woman ploughed and this had been accepted as a good legal custom. The stewards overruled the objection.

Mrs. Chaloner still takes a keen interest in turf affairs. A favorite memory of her girlhood days is a visit to Doncaster race track in 1857 to see her brother, John, win the 2,000 Guineas on Vedette.

Lawn tennis brought romance as well as fame to 20-year-old Jean Nicoll, one of the greatest court and table tennis discoveries in years. Her engagement is announced to 1937 to use her brother, John, with Bostock of the Royal Navy and they'll be married in London.

The couple met four years ago when Bostock was a spectator at a tournament in which Miss Nicoll participated.

A 21-year-old blonde Danish swimmer whose nickname is "The Golden Torpedo," Ragnhild Hveger has, according to the Nazi-controlled Netherlands radio, dropped training because of a slightly-paralyzed arm. Holder at one time of 14 women's free-style world records, she broke all but two of them between 1937 and 1941.

Leg Injury Was Murphy's Trouble

ST. PETERSBURGH, Jan. 27.—Johnny Murphy has discovered what was wrong with him last season. It was a bone out of place in the Yankee relief pitcher's right instep. A St. Petersburg doctor located the trouble by X-ray and remedied it with a cast.

The previously dependable Murphy finished last season with a nine-game losing streak, did not score a victory after June 13, when he hurt his foot in a misstep on the mound.

Plastic Golf Ball to Soon Be on Market

The newly developed pellet already has been put through exhaustive laboratory and field tests and has proven itself 90 per cent. as efficient as the present rubber, core-wound ball.

And there's nothing in the rule book which prohibits the new ball's use except the law of supply. It probably won't be manufactured for general distribution until after the war.

Joseph Dey, executive secretary of the United States Golf Association, said yesterday that a ball was legal on the golf course as long as it didn't exceed 1.62 ounces in weight, 1.68 inches in diameter and didn't travel faster than 250 feet a second when tested on the U.S.G.A. machine.

Nowhere in the rule book is the ball's composition outlined or defined. After all, the early golf balls were made of packed feathers.

"The U.S.G.A. thought of naming the component parts of the ball five or six years ago but then someone suggested we hadn't reached the ultimate in ball construction and we decided against it. I think golf is unique in that the ball's construction, contents and methods of manufacture are not in the rule book," Dey added.

Possibilities of the new pellet were discovered when a chemist made up some of the plastic and molded it into balls "just for the fun of it."

Some of them were sent to golf professionals, including Horton Smith. The pros posted their usual low scores but commented on the explosive noise made when the ball was struck and the "sting" felt in the hands when an off-line shot was hit. The two complaints virtually have been eliminated in the newer models.

Manufacturers feel that if the plastic ball proves popular it can be sold for as little as 15 cents.

Rangers Lose Jimmy Franks

DETROIT, Jan. 27. — (AP) — Jimmy Franks, goalie for New York Rangers National Hockey League team, is out of the game for the rest of the season.

That was the verdict of Dr. C. L. Tomsu last night after X-rays of Franks' right wrist disclosed a fracture suffered in a game with the Detroit Red Wings there Sunday. Detroit won the game 7-6.

Bill Beveridge called up from Cleveland Barons, will replace Franks in the lineup when the Rangers play Chicago Thursday night Manager Lester Patrick said at New York Tuesday.

Frank Calder Must Take Rest

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Dr. J. Hepburn said Tuesday night there has been no change in the condition of Frank Calder, 65-year-old National Hockey League president who suffered a heart attack Monday while presiding at a closed meeting of N.H.L. governors.

Sources close to the Montreal executive who has been titular head of the N.H.L. for 25 years said "complete rest and relaxation" for two or three months will be necessary.

Postpone Fight

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The bout between lightweights Bob Montgomery and Lulu Constantino announced Monday for Feb. 8, has been postponed to Feb. 22, promoter Herman Taylor said yesterday. He said Constantino's left hand was badly injured in his recent fight with Ray Lunney.

'Op' completed --listening out

The boys on a bombing flight listen to the radio, too—but not to swing music. Their wireless gives them vital information to guide them to their target and home again. And their "sparks" is the Wireless Operator. An expert in radio signalling, he keeps in contact with their fellows and the home base. And when the need arises he mans a gun to fight off enemy planes.

The Wireless Operator is the ears and the voice of the air crew, playing his part, as do all the others, in dealing devastating blows to shatter the enemy. The air crew is a group of specialists, each trained to do his own job well, and all fused into a smoothly working team. They share alike in the great deeds they are performing today, and they will share also in the future that awaits them after Victory is ours.

The expanded Air Training Plan has room for more men who want to be with these fighting comrades of the skies. Right now applications are being accepted for air crew at R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centres throughout Canada.

WOMEN TOO —join "that mess of fly." Canadian women fill vital jobs in the R.C.A.F. Women's Division, releasing men for air crew duties. Recruits are needed, age 18 to 40, physically fit, with at least High School entrance. Many useful and fascinating jobs await you. No experience needed. The Air Force will train you quickly to take your place with Canada's airwomen. Full information at any R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, or write address below for explanatory booklet.

If you are physically fit, mentally alert, over 17½ and not yet 33, you are eligible. If you are over 33, but have exceptional qualifications, you may still be considered. Lack of formal education is no longer a bar to enlistment.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—A firm undertone was maintained on the stock market today with prices generally higher at the close.

International Securities encountered good demand in the wake of the Casablanca conference. British funds were quiet.

In stocks, industrials, home rails, Kaffirs, oils and diamonds were bought mostly at higher prices. Rubber and tea shares also tended to improve selectively.

Mills Buy 300,000 Bushels of Wheat

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27—(CP)—Mills took 300,000 bushels of wheat on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today in the May future which dropped ⅛ cent to 92½ cents a bushel. Wheat in Chicago was unchanged.

No export business was confirmed in Canadian wheat or flour.

Pit trading in coarse grains was light. Mills, shippers and southern houses offered fair support in oats and barley but trade was restricted by limited offerings. There were no trades in rye.

Taggart Does Not Seek Premiership

OTTAWA, Jan. 27—(CP)—Hon. J. G. Taggart, retiring foods administrator and minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan, said yesterday he wished "to state emphatically" that newspaper stories to the effect he would be a possible choice of Liberals of Saskatchewan for the premiership of that province are "wholly without foundation."

"I am returning to Saskatchewan to resume my duties as minister of agriculture, which position I have not relinquished," he said. "The Saskatchewan department of agriculture has undertaken, with the federal department, to manage a large food production program this year.

"The premier and other members of the government have already been called on to carry extra responsibilities as a result of my absence and that of the Hon. E. M. Culliton, provincial secretary, who is in the army."

Cadet Corps To Be Organized in City High Schools

Board Votes Unanimously To Co-Operate on Scheme As Proposed by Dominion

It was unanimously agreed by members of the Edmonton School Board that full co-operation would be given to the scheme by the Dominion government for the forming and training of military cadet corps in the city high schools.

After listening to a plan outlined by Capt. G. H. Ritson-Bennett, D.C.O., officer in charge of cadet training for military District No. 13, the school board agreed to a plan whereby cadet corps would be formed at Eastwood and Strathcona high schools and the present corps at Victoria high school extended.

The uniforms, Capt. Ritson-Bennett explained, would be of the regulation military style and would compare favorably with those worn by the air and naval cadets. He stressed the fact that boys of 16 and 17 would in all probability be in the war before it was over and that suitable training during their school terms would be of great benefit to them.

COST OF UNIFORMS

The uniforms, he explained, would be supplied at a cost of $15 each, of which half would be supplied by the government with the school board paying the other half, the amount to be spread over a period of three years.

Instruction would be given by fully trained military instructors and at such schools where no suitable instructor could be found, M.D 13 would supply an instructor.

Continuing, Capt. Ritson-Bennett stated that the Catholic schools in the city had five cadets corps while the Protestant schools had only one, which he declared was not a good showing for the latter. Calgary, he said, had wholeheartedly supported the idea and the training of military cadets was going forward vigorously.

There would be camp training at Sarcee Camp at Calgary during the summer which would last 10 days and at which all expenses of each boy were paid, he said. Last year there were 1,000 boys at camp, he explained.

TRANSFER ASKED

Other business discussed at the meeting was a request to the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training organization that it transfer its headquarters from the old Glenora building at 128 St., in order to allow the building to be taken over by the Metcalfe and the Hamilton Construction companies and the Kansas Bridge Company. It was further carried that the Dominion Provincial Youth Training organization be granted the use of accommodation in the Technical School building.

The present coal situation was reviewed by the board and it was agreed that should another emergency arise that the board be given ample notice and the schools be closed should it appear that citizens were going without fuel. Superintendent of Plant, J. McAfee, stated that the past few weeks had been a continuous struggle to keep going.

Provision of fire exits at Garneau school gymnasium was referred to the property committee.

ASK DEFERMENT

After dealing with several letters from members of the teaching staff who had applied for leave of absence to join the W.R.C.N.S it was moved that the board write to officials of the naval service asking that the call-up for those of the teaching staff who had applied for enlistment be deferred until the end of the teaching year.

It was also moved that members of the teaching staff should be asked to consult the superintendent of schools before entering into negotiations with authorities of any of the three services.

It was decided to grant the facilities of certain of the public schools for the distribution of the No. 2 ration book during the last week in February.

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

Now that the lid is off, how well did you do in the guessing game of what the big news was? Guesses ranged all the way from the "war is over" to "Italy sues for peace."

Those who argue that the airplane is getting the better of seapower have a good talking point today. The last great conference between Churchill and Roosevelt took place on one of the world's greatest battleships. This time the two leaders travelled by air to their place of meeting.

It seems that air travel is now the safest form of war travel over the oceans.

The conference was dramatic, but it would have been far more dramatic had Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia been in attendance. We don't think it is stretching the truth a bit to say that only the heroic resistance of the Red Army and the equally heroic struggle of the entire Russian people, made the conference possible.

The press was "in" on the great secret for more than a full day before they released the news, proving again that the press of the democratic countries can be trusted with the biggest stories of all.

Some weeks ago, daily newspapers all over the United States stating that President Roosevelt and Canada received brief notes was to shortly take a journey of importance. No mention of the journey, or its purpose, was to be made in the press, the note directed.

Of how well that secret was kept the public now is aware.

Even Berlin was caught completely off base as to the place of the conference. The Axis capital had guessed that there were Roosevelt-Churchill talks in progress but they had referred to them as Washington talks.

Conscientious Bulletin Carrier Boy Rescues Couple Overcome by Fumes When Ice Blocks Chimney of Home

When 14-year-old Walter Bazar, Polish-born Bulletin carrier, conscientiously delivered The Bulletin at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Wylie of 7705 112 avenue, in the biting cold of last Friday, his sharp young ears detected a faint cry for help. With both doors of the house locked from outside, young Bazar secured help from the home of T. M. Collingwood, next door. The Wylie home was entered and on the floor beneath a table lay Mr. Wylie, 72, unconscious from gas fumes resulting from an ice-blocked chimney. In bed in a bedroom was Mrs. Wylie, 72, also unconscious and near death. A doctor was called and the couple rushed to the Royal Alexandria hospital. Responding rapidly to treatment Mr. and Mrs. Wylie were able to leave the hospital Monday and are now at the home of their daughter, Mrs. R. M. Henning, 10629 83 avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Wylie and their daughter, Mrs. Henning, heaped lavish praise on young Bazar for his alertness. "He saved the lives of my parents and is my hero today," Mrs. Henning declared. Mr. Wylie has a dim recollection of getting up early in the morning Friday with the gas fumes choking him. He pulled on his trousers and tried to reach the door but collapsed in a few steps. Young Bazar's rappings at the door aroused him somewhat, after the two had lain in a stupor all day. He tried to callout to Mrs. Wylie that "someone is at the door," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Wylie celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in December of 1941. They were both born in Scotland, near the birthplace of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth. Until two years ago they farmed in the Bittern Lake district. There are six children in the Wylie family. The couple is shown seated contentedly in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Henning. Between them, at the back, stands their boy rescuer, Walter Bazar, who is in Grade Nine at Parkdale school. He lives with his parents at 12917 87 street. Three-year-old Puggy, the Henning family Boston bull terrier, is on guard in front, as if to say: "We won't let such a thing happen again."

Druggists Hear About Wartime Restrictions

Victor Hessels, Okotoks, registrar of the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Edmonton Retail Druggists' Association at the Macdonald hotel Tuesday night.

H. L. Christie, vice-president and manager of the Alberta National Drug Co., Ltd., presided and Frank Lee, president of the Edmonton Retail Druggists' Association, was in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

C. H. Lander, Montreal, senior vice-president and general manager of the National Drug and Chemical company, was guest of the meeting and spoke briefly.

Also present was G. E. Griffiths, comptroller of the National firm.

GIVES DATA

Mr. Lander is also a representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and in this capacity he was able to give the druggists valuable information about wartime restrictions in various drug lines.

Mr. Hessels devoted most of his address to the problem of keeping the drug shelves replenished with drug supplies under wartime restrictions.

Many centres are organizing housing bureaus, according to Mrs. Frank J. Conroy, regional chairman of the women's advisory committee in Alberta, who has just returned from a survey of branches in Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. Registries are being organized in Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, she said. In addition to this questionnaires are being submitted to each of the 1,000 liaison officers in Alberta in order to gain a more complete picture of what women are accomplishing. These are already in circulation in Edmonton, she explained.

Real estate associations throughout the Dominion have long felt the need of a national organization and a decision to form such a body has been reached, according to officials of the Edmonton Real Estate Association. It will be known as The Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards. The acting secretary in the meantime is John B. Laidlaw, 56 Adelaide Street, E., Toronto, who is also executive secretary of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards. The aims and objects of the new body will be to deal with matters pertaining to real property which are national in scope.

Payments on licenses in 1943 amounted to $18,729 compared with $23,301 for last year. The number of general licenses taken out this year total 800, bicycle licenses 209, and dog licenses 345.

Claude Finlay, manager of the Macdonald hotel, will show members of the Edmonton Optimist Club through the hotel following their regular weekly luncheon meeting at the hotel Thursday. This is a postponed engagement. He will show them through the various operational departments of the hotel.

Dr. W. H. Swift, recently appointed chief inspector of schools, Wednesday, announced a conference to be held in the legislative buildings Feb. 4 and 5, to be attended by 40 superintendents of rural school divisions. No agenda has been prepared for the conference, Dr. Swift stated, but the problem of teacher supply, and matters concerning rural school supervision will be discussed.

Mark C. Wright, 40 Years Here, Dies at Home

A life member of the Northern Alberta Pioneers and Old Timers' Association, and a prominent Liberal organizer in the early days, Mark C. Wright of 9908 115 street, died Tuesday evening at his home here. He was 82 years old.

A native of Wakefield, Que., Mr. Wright was born in 1860 and made his first move west in 1879 when he went to Portage la Prairie, where he had the distinction of being the first telegraph operator.

Later he decided to make a move still further west and came to Edmonton about 40 years ago.

Mr. Wright was well known not only as a member of the Old Timers' Association, and for his political work but also as a member of the A.F. and A.M. of which he was a past master.

He was secretary for many years of Patricia lodge and served in the same capacity with the Ivanhoe lodge, which he helped to organize.

He is survived by his wife.

Funeral services will be under the auspices of the A.F. & A.M. They will take place Thursday at 2.30 p.m. in the funeral chapel of Howard & McBride, funeral directors.

Improvements To North Line Being Pushed

The joint owners of the Northern Alberta Railways - the C.N.R. and C.P.R. - are doing everything possible to strengthen that line with men, equipment and facilities to meet the unprecedented traffic that is developing over the line due to developments in the north, W. R. Devenish, Winnipeg, vice-president and general manager, C.N.R. western lines, stated on his arrival here in the course of an inspection trip.

He had no comment to make on the oil drilling development in the Vermilion field other than to say that it would be proceeded with as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Devenish said there had been some wheat movement to the lakehead, and that with the return of fine weather there would be a resumption of that movement, and also the movement of coarse grains to eastern points.

He said that the usual maintenance program would be carried out this year, having due regard to war time necessity. The program will include ballasting, renewal of rail, and other essential work. The program will take care of essential needs, he stated.

Mr. Devenish conferred with local railway officials, and inspected terminals here. He left Edmonton Wednesday morning.

11 Car Owners Fined in Court

Each of 11 car owners was fined $1 and costs in city police court Tuesday after pleading guilty to storing vehicles on city streets. They appeared before Magistrate Harold Hawe, K.C., Tuesday afternoon.

Police reported that the 11 owners had neglected to remove their cars off public streets and had allowed them to remain for periods of time much longer than the 24 hour maximum allowed under parking regulations.

Hollis Tuck, truck driver, was fined $5 and costs for a similar offence. Tuck, however, was forewarned by traffic police.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

THE ANSWERS

S. R. McCULLOUGH, traveller: I hope it won't be necessary. I'm looking for airplane development after the war that will make the railway extension unnecessary. It will suit me fine if airplane travel becomes more popular for everyday use, when the war is finished.

JACK HERRY, railroad employee: I think the railway should be continued, with either of the two Canadian railroads taking it over. These two railway companies developed the line. They should retain control of it.

JOHN McCLARY, chartered accountant: I would say the value of the territory should be proven first. If the land can be developed, then let's go ahead with the tremendous expense that will accompany extension of the line. The Alaska highway will answer the purpose till a population that would support a railway has moved in.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Dilatory Sweetheart Too Fond of Himself

Girls in Factories Create Domestic Problem Called a Casualty of War; Slacks Are Better Than Getting Pneumonia

DEAR MISS DIX: I have going with a man for the past fourteen years, since I was 17 years old. During the first year of our acquaintance he suggested marriage, but due to economic conditions at home I decided to wait. Since then we have continued our company keeping, but when the question of marriage arises he always offers some excuse for putting it off. First he was waiting for a better position. Now that he has a big job in the defense he still evades the issue.

He has always been good and kind to me and says that he loves me, and has given me many beautiful and valuable gifts. And he still comes to see me every night. I love this man very much, but do you think I am wise in continuing to hope that some day he may ask me to be his wife?

WINIFRED.

Answer: All things are possible and miracles do happen and some day some unforeseen circumstances may induce your boy friend to totter to the altar with you, but it is not a chance to gamble on, and if you have any sort of self-respect I would certainly advise you to look up some more likely prospect.

Evidently your dilatory sweetheart is one of the men who are allergic to domesticity. He probably loves you next to himself, who is the only person in the world he will ever care for. Obviously he finds your society more to his taste than that of any other woman else he wouldn't have hung around you for fourteen years. But he just does not want to be tied down by marriage. He wants to be free. He wants to come and go as he likes without having to give an account of his movements. He wants to spend his money on himself for taking a girl a few presents that keep her pacified is a lot cheaper than having to support her.

Probably he doesn't like children and doesn't want to be bothered with a lot of noisy brats about him. So he just rings changes on you year to year, enjoys your society, flattered by your devotion and the fact that he is keeping you from marrying some other man and having a comfortable husband and home and children, instead of a spot of dreary menage, doesn't cut any ice with him.

The only active means you can take to rouse him is to give him a jolt. Tell him you are tired of waiting for him to make up his mind about whether he wants to marry you or not, and if he is not ready to sign on the dotted line to please discontinue attentions that are without intention. In other words, as gamblers say, to put up or shut up.

Every man knows within six months after he meets a girl whether he likes her enough to marry her or not. If by the end of that time he hasn't, at least, taken an option on her heart and hand, she wafts him into the outer air, if she is a smart girl, and leaves the way open for suitors who mean business.

BOOTLEG LOVE-MAKING

DEAR MISS DIX: So many women are going into the defense plants now and working side by side with the men that it is making a big domestic problem. When my husband came home one night and told me that they were taking on girls at the plant he was disgusted. Then he was pleased. And now he is downright satisfied. When I say I don't think it is a good plan, he says: "What are you going to do about it?"

Of course, I don't see how a man can mess on any love affair in a modern factory, but how about smoking down the line when the boss isn't around and having a little chat with some cutie, meeting her for lunch and swapping cigarettes? Don't you think that putting young girls in sweaters and slacks to work beside our men is asking for trouble?

Some of these girls have husbands who are away at camp, and they like to show off their power to attract men. Believe me, Miss Dix, I think that the government putting these women to work beside men is a mistake and is going to make plenty of trouble. I think it is better for a married man to have a happy home life than a happy shop life. What do you think?

A WORRIED WIFE AT HOME.

Answer: Well, you know, when the ca it's away the mice will play, and when you put men and women together there is bound to be a certain amount of boo-boo love-making. But the government claims that it is necessary to put women in factories in order to get certain important work done, so we will just have to be patriotic about it and charge up the shop flirtations to the casualties of war.

Perhaps the matter isn't as serious as you think it is, and after the novelty of having pretty girls in sweaters and slacks working with them has worn off, the men will cease to notice them any more than if they were male snipers. That is apparently what happens in big offices and stores where both men and women are employed.

And another thing is going to work in the wives' favor. When the pretty girls cease being learners and look up to the men and say: "Oh, you big, wonderful, smart man, will you please show me how to do this?" and acquire enough skill to tie rivals the men will begin to slack them instead of making love to them. For no girl is allurring to a man who is just as good a man as he is.

WEAR SLACKS

DEAR MISS DIX: Our high school is very patriotic in conserving fuel and keeping the temperature down to 65 degrees. The girls have cannot wear as heavy underclothing as the boys just scoop fleece. Some of the slimmer girls get around this by wearing slacks under their skirts, but some of the older members of the school and the fatuary and the fat girls object. The boys don't care whether the girls wear one or not. Do you think the girls should freeze or wear slacks?

MAXINE.

Answer: Well, I think that slacks are the most hideous garment and the most destructive of all feminine appeal and charm that has ever been devised. But when it comes to a choice between looking like heck and getting pneumonia, the slacks win.

The English "home counties" are those nearest to London—Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, Essex, and sometimes Sussex and Hertford.

Minute Make-Ups

Chin line too heavy? Camouflage it by the clever use of a makeup trick. A rose toned face powder, carefully blended around the chin line OVER your chin muscling shade of powder, seems to fade out the too-heavy chin—and in a few minutes time! Of course you will begin to reduce your chin by patting with astringent and by throat exercises to tone up muscles—but that does take more than a minute.

Use Protein Base For Hearty Soups

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Hearty soups can serve as main dishes. They should contain a protein such as fish, dried peas or beans, poultry or cheese. Include a salad and a dessert in the menu.

HEARTY CHOWDER
(Serves 6-8)

Three strips bacon, 1 large onion, chopped; 1 cup green split peas, 1½ quarts water, 3 cooked carrots, diced; 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 2 cups cooked rolled oats, salt, pepper.

Fry bacon crisp, remove and add onion to fat, cook until brown. Cook split peas in 1 quart of the water until tender, adding more water if necessary. Add chopped cooked bacon and other ingredients and cook for 20 minutes.

CHOPPED MEAT POTPOURRI

One tablespoon butter, ¾ lb. hamburger, 3 onions sliced, 1/3 cup barley, 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, Grade C, 1½ quarts water, ½ teaspoon whole black pepper, 3 carrots sliced, 3 potatoes diced, 3 stalks celery diced, 1 teaspoon A-1 sauce, 1 tablespoon salt.

Brown meat lightly in butter, crumbling constantly with fork. Add onions, cook 5 minutes. Add barley, tomatoes, water, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer gently for 1 hour. Add vegetables, A-1 sauce, and simmer 1 hour longer.

CHEESE POTATO SOUP

Three medium potatoes, 3 cups milk, 3 tablespoons chopped onion, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon pepper, dash paprika, 1 cup grated American Cheddar cheese, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cook potatoes in boiling water until tender; put through ricer. Heat milk and 1 cup water in which potatoes were cooked, add potatoes and strain. Add onion to melted butter and simmer until tender. Stir in flour and combine with potato mixture. Add seasonings and simmer, stirring for 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in cheese, beating smooth.

Tomorrow's Menu

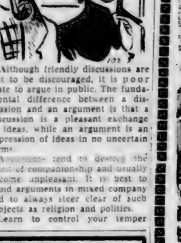
Debunker

Since ancient times, weights and measures have had different values in different places. Though uniformity is the eventual goal, the truth is that even such a measure as one foot is not the same in all places where it is employed as a measure of distance. Only in the United States of America do twelve inches make a foot. In Canada, the French foot is employed, which is 12.8 inches. In South Africa, a foot is 11.147 inches by the old measure system; and in Old Rhenish, it was 12.356 inches. If we take up the question of how long is an inch in various places, we have still more complications. Adoptions of the metric system of weights and measures throughout the world would be a great improvement over present systems.

What To Do



Although friendly discussions are not to be discouraged, it is poor taste to argue in public. The fundamental difference between a discussion and an argument is that a discussion is a pleasant exchange of ideas, while an argument is an expression of ideas in no uncertain terms.

Arguments tend to destroy the sense of companionship and usually become unpleasant. The best to avoid arguments in mixed company and to always steer clear of such subjects as religion and politics.

Learn to control your temper and your tongue and you will probably avoid arguments. If you are clever you will be able to turn the conversation that may lead to dissension into safer and more pleasant paths.

He led a low trump to the pack in order to lead the last diamond, which he ruffed with the ace. South's last trump was overtaken by the queen, the nine-spot took out West's last trump, and dummy trashed three good clubs.

Of course trump leads by the defense would have spiked the declarer's guns. Ollie might have tried setting up the spades by ruffing, but he thought that the defense would then surely shift to trumps.

Jessie Morris, AC. MacKay Are Wed Here

First Presbyterian church was bright with bouquets of spring flowers Tuesday evening, in setting for the wedding of Jessie Christina Morris, eldest daughter of Mrs. J. G. Morris and the late J. G. Morris of Edmonton, to AC. Donald Murdoch MacKay, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. George MacKay of Edmonton. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. J. MacBeath Miller.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Donald M. Harrold of Namao, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white chiffon, featuring a high shirred waist and square neckline, embroidered chiffon bodice and bishop sleeves. Her full-length veil of white silk embroidered net was held in place by a halo arrangement of tulle with a dainty wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of deep red roses.

Miss Jean Morris was her sister's only attendant. She chose a slipper length dress of azure blue chiffon, fashioned with a round neckline, full bishop sleeves, draped bodice and gathered skirt. Silver braid embroidery accented the neckline and on her head she wore a tiny coronet of matching blue flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers.

Best man was LAC. Fred Dewis, R.C.A.F.

Wedding music was supplied by Mrs. Clarence Pullyblank and during the signing of the register, Miss Agnes Morris, sister of the bride, sang "O Promise Me."

Following the ceremony a reception to nearly 100 guests was held at the Masonic Temple. Mrs. Morris, mother of the bride, received in a floor-length gown of black sheer, styled on classic lines and featuring gold sequin embroidery on the collar and panels. She wore a large picture-hat of black felt and her flowers were red roses, en corsage. Mrs. MacKay, mother of the bridegroom, chose an ensemble in British blue, with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink delight roses.

Centering the bride's table, which was set with a white linen cloth, was a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by bouquets of pink carnations and tall white tapers. Toast to the bride was proposed by James Sutherland of Namao.

Presiding at the tea urns were Mrs. Margaret Bennay and Mrs. Lloyd Crozier. Servitleurs included Mrs. Walter Crawford, Mrs. Roy Davis, Mrs. Kenneth Pullyblank, Miss Barbara Harrold, Miss Dorothy Hope, Miss Janet Harrold, Miss Christine Miller, Miss Maxine Harrold and Miss Doreen Hope.

AC. and Mrs. MacKay left later for a wedding trip to the Pacific coast, where they will take up temporary residence. Travelling, the bride chose a two piece wool suit of Chinese earth, topped by a black seal coat with Persian Lamb trim and beige accessories. Her shoes and bag were of matching spakeskin.

Miss Edwards, Curtis Neilson Pledge Vows

The Rev. J. MacBeath Miller officiated at the wedding which took place Tuesday evening in the social room of First Presbyterian church, when Phyllis Elizabeth Edwards, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Edwards of Edmonton, became the bride of Curtis George Neilson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Neilson of Edmonton.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Samuel J. Millar, wore a tea-length gown of English rose sheer, fashioned with a Peter Pan collar, bracelet-length sleeves, pearl-filled bodice and full gathered skirt. A crown model of matching rose felt trimmed with tiny cut flowers of velvet formed her headdress, and she carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers. Dainty silver slippers completed her ensemble.

A reception to 50 guests was held later at the Corona hotel. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by silver baskets of daffodils and tall white tapers.

Toast to the bride was proposed by E. O'Callaghan.

Mrs. Neilson, mother of the groom, wore an afternoon ensemble of British blue silk crepe, with a shoulder corsage of American Beauty roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Neilson will make their home in Edmonton.

Mrs. Agnew Is Homemaker Home-Builder

By MARGARET ECKER

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Little Mrs. Harvey Agnew is a homemaker from the word go. She hammered the nails and sawed the wood to build a house of her own once.

And that little house, high on a hilltop in Ontario means so much to her that she wants to help Canadians without homes find some places to hang their hats, whether they're plain felt, air force blue, navy blue or army khaki.

Mrs. Agnew is supervisor of national housing registration for the Prices Board, and sometimes even she is a bit shaken by her job.

"It's tragic," she told a Canadian Press reporter. "In 100 places in Canada there is a very serious shortage of homes, both for war workers and the men in the services and their families. It's a good-sized problem finding out what can be done about it."

Every community has pretty well got to tackle its own difficulties, Mrs. Agnew discovered, because:

"Only a group of people who live in a community can tell what the problems there are and what provision can be made for people without homes."

Consumer advisers' panels of the Prices Board, already set up in large Canadian communities, shouldered the job. In many communities there were church groups and social service organizations struggling with the problem as best they could. The groups have been called together and have pooled their resources—their lists of available living space. But there was and is a lot of work to be done, too. Mayors have to be sold the idea. Real estate men have to be convinced their fees won't be stepped on. Co-operation of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce has to be sought. Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen with a large home have to be convinced to share their roof with a stranger, or a family of strangers and some cities—Ottawa, for instance—haven't responded to the appeal very quickly.

"So many people vow they'll do anything for the war, and make any sacrifices—as long as they're not asked to open their homes," said Mrs. Agnew.

COMMITTEES AT WORK

Now housing committees have been formed in 38 centres and eight housing registry bureaus have been set up; but it's too early to tell what the results will be.

If Mrs. Agnew had her own way, and enough lumber, hammer and nails, she'd build for all the homeless people a cosy little place like she and her husband and two young sters built a few years ago near Aurora, Ont.

"It's only 22 feet by 16, but it's the cosiest little place," she said. "It sleeps six and has a complete kitchen unit. We crammed 10 in for tea after skiing there last Sunday.

That's the kind of person Mrs. Agnew is. The kind of mother whose children bring home their friends for a snack, the kind who can always find time to help out in the community.

STUDIED, WORKED HARD

Ask Mrs. Agnew what her profession is and quick as a flash she says "Housewife." She has studied and worked as hard to be a good housekeeper as some women do to be doctors or engineers.

Mrs. Agnew was born and raised in Toronto, graduated from Toronto university, and almost at once married a young doctor. Then she discovered that an honors course in History and English isn't much use in managing a house.

"I made up my mind I wasn't going to be bogged down by it all," she said. "I wasn't going to be one of those bedraggled, worn-out mothers with never a minute of her own. So I started to study the best way to run a house how I could organize so it wouldn't take me 24 hours a day, how I could get a half-day or week off like any other worker—and I did."

When her children, Phyllis, 19, and Arnold, 17, grew up Mrs. Agnew turned her energy to university women's clubs and later the Y.W.C.A. for which she now is president of the National Council.

Girl Guides Volunteer for Post War Duty

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

LONDON, Jan. 27.—When the Allied armies of liberation march into Europe's Nazi-wrecked countries, they will be followed closely by teams of green-clad Girl Guides. The young women, volunteers for the task of alleviating suffering and starting rehabilitation, will form the advance guard of most specialized humanitarian legions who will lift the pall of Nazi conquest from the prostrated nations.

Although the plan has just been made public by the British Girl Guides' Association, over 500 women have already volunteered. Organized into teams of 20 to 30 girls, each group including five expert linguists, they will be known as the "Guide International Service."

Their training—already started—will be rigorous, for candidates are warned that they must be prepared to live under the toughest camp conditions and even to risk their lives because of the dangers from dirt, disease and possible civil disturbances.

Guide International Servicers must be experienced campers, used to live in extremes of climate with a minimum of equipment. Outdoor cooking in a party work will mean cooking, organizing camps for repatriated refugees, helping on farms. In addition, they must have a sound working knowledge of nursing, sanitation, disinfection and general hygiene. Women under 21 will not be accepted, but there is no maximum age limit.

Because about four-fifths of the British Isles' 500,000 Girl Guides are now engaged in war work of one kind or another, volunteers must take their training in spare time or on leave.

As the first step, a camp is being held on the moors, where candidates will live under truly Spartan conditions. They will live there, rain or shine or snow or sleet. Recently the first field cooking experiment was staged in the London area. The guides did everything they will be expected to do in any ravaged European country, from building fires to preparing and serving the canned and compressed foods which each team will carry as standard equipment.

Although all volunteers must produce a certificate of complete physical fitness, this isn't sufficient. In addition, each volunteer will be required to prove that her "character, disposition and technical ability" are such as will enable her to live and work among adults and children who have borne constant mental and physical shocks.

Greece was the first country to apply for the services of Girl Guides because Yugoslavia, Poland and Albania are also on the list. Classes are already being held in the languages of these countries, and to some extent, in their history and customs.

Daintiness, War Work Do Not Mix

By MARGARET ECKER

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—They look like women from Mars with grotesque helmets on their heads, blow torches in their hands. And they are daughters of Mars—Canada's women brought from their homes, their gentle office jobs, to build the machines, the tanks, the ships, the guns of war.

Canadian women have put on trousers, rolled up sleeves and got grease splotches on their noses. They're doing a mighty fine war job, says Mrs. Rex Eaton, director of the women's division of the National Selective Service.

The cartoonists are having fun with women welders, lumberjacks and machinists, but Mrs. Eaton doesn't think it would be very funny for industry if the girls stayed at home, looking feminine and fragile by the fireside.

In Vancouver and Victoria, for instance, between 3,000 and 4,000 women are working in war industries alone. High up on the hull of a ship like will carry munitions to Britain or Russia, a girl boilermaker wields a welder's torch.

In Halifax and dockyards on the coast between 300 and 400 women operate cranes, steam hammers and work at riveting, welding, drilling, polishing, rope-splicing, floating rivets and passing them too. Boeing Aircraft at Vancouver employs 1,000 women and the number will be doubled by spring.

RIGHT ACROSS DOMINION

The story is the same the Dominion over. In a Montreal ship-building plant a girl operates a five-ton crane. In Pictou, N.S., women have taken over all manner of jobs in a shipyard. In Toronto women are building corvettes and minesweepers to keep the enemy from these coasts. In Halifax women are learning to make patterns for Tribal class destroyers now building, the biggest fighting craft in Canada's navy.

And now it's "lumberjills." This summer women worked in the lumbering industry all over Canada. In Hearst, Ont., French-Canadian and Indian women worked as pulp-cutters, averaging a cord of pulp a day. Women took over some of the toughest jobs in Saskatchewan's largest sawmill and Crooked River. They were paid the same wages as the men. In British Columbia, more than 1,000 women are working in shingle mills and woodworking plants like planing mills and veneer and plywood factories.

MAKING BOMB-THROWER

The battle of Egypt is a personal thing to 100 girls working in a one-time laundry in central Ontario. They are making a secret bomb-thrower which has been an aid to British tanks advancing across the African desert.

Women aren't afraid of getting their faces dirty any more. In Florence, N.S., at the Bras d'Or mine, they work at the bankhead cleaning coal. Near Edmonton, a woman operates a tipple, device which unloads cars of coal.

At the International Nickel Co. mines at Sudbury, Ont., and Port Colborne, Ont., women are working on the surface, oiling machinery and working on the sorting belt eliminating waste rock from the ore.

Women are working at a steel plant in Hamilton and many of them do such heavy jobs as moving bricks and mortar and cleaning up the plant yards. For Algoma Steel Corp. they work as laborers, recorders and inspectors.

Workers in cafeteria have even invaded the masculine stronghold of the railroad roundhouse. At railway terminals at Vancouver Island women are doing engine-wiping, boiler-washing and car inspection. They are doing the same in Toronto railway yards as well as clean pullmans and stock up dining cars.

CONSTRUCTION JOBS

All over Alberta women are working on war construction jobs. Calgary women moved lumber and shovelled gravel for new hangar buildings there, while women carpenters are working on houses and buildings.

Women are working as gas station attendants and garage mechanics all over Canada. They are doing a good job as taxi-drivers in every large city. In some of the coldest parts of the country they drive milk trucks and bread wagons. They're running their own laundries, replacing men as bakers, butchers, replacing men as bakers.

Service Centre First Duty Is More Salvage

Mrs. Jack Moar announced today that first duty of the Citizens' Volunteer Centre of which she is chairman, will be the stepping up of salvage collections! Under the reorganization of National Salvage in Edmonton, with women from all over the city appointed as officers, the committee will commence operations with a drive in the West mount area on Saturday morning, Jan 30.

Details of the plans will be issued on Friday, and in the meantime housewives in all districts are urged to have salvage ready for collection. Salvage needed includes: fats, bones, bottles, paper, rags, metals and rubber. Grease and drippings should be rendered and placed in a clean, tightly-covered container. Pieces of fat can be placed in a paper bag. Newspapers must be bundled tightly and tied with strong string. Loose waste paper should be placed in a firmly covered box.

DISTRICT APPOINTMENTS

Whist was played during the afternoon, with honors going to Miss Irene O'Neil. Miss Strong was presented with several pieces of blue Mikado china. Club members present were Mrs. C. B. Strong, Mrs. Jack Beirne, Miss Betty Kidd, Mrs. Irene O'Neil, Miss Lillian Plewes, Mrs. G. Little, Mrs. Ruth Winteringham, and Miss Lenore Whitby.

C.G.I.T. Leaders Hear Miss Simpson

Speaking to C.G.I.T. leaders on Monday at First Presbyterian Church, Miss Maimie Simpson stressed the importance of personality and psychology with regards to C.G.I.T. leadership. She also outlined different courses each leader should take.

Miss K. Broad, president of Leaders' Council of C.G.I.T., presided.

The girls divided into three discussion groups and they decided that they would hold their meetings every two weeks at 7.15 p.m. instead of the usual 7:30 p.m.

In aircraft and munitions factories they are doing yeoman service.

In Saskatchewan war contracts for threshing outfits and taken over every rugged job there is to do on farm or ranch, including the ringing of drainage ditches. Civilian women as well as women in uniform are working in Canada's airports as wireless operators and meteorological observers. Women tramp smiley streets as mail carriers.

There seems no ends to the jobs women are doing today to relieve men for active service and the heaviest jobs in war industries.

Mrs. Strong Is Hostess At Reception

Home of Mrs. Constance H. Strong, 10665 80 avenue, was arranged tastefully with cut-spring flowers and vases of Necklace Vine for the afternoon and evening when guests gathered for a housewarming in honor of Miss Norma Marjorie Strong whose marriage to Dr. Neil Elliott takes place on Saturday at Vegreville.

Receiving with the hostess and the bride-elect were Mrs. A. L. Elliott, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, and Mrs. F. Crocker Strong of Vegreville.

The bride-elect was smart in an ensemble comprising a navy blue tailored suit with matching accessories and a corsage of carnations. Her mother, Mrs. Strong wore a two-piece ensemble of black with accessories to match and white trim to suit. Her rose carnations were pinned at her shoulder.

The tea table was arranged with ivory tapers in crystal holders, an ivory lace cloth and forming the centrepiece, a low crystal bowl of rose carnations.

Presiding at the tea urns were Mrs. N. Struthers of Calgary, Mrs. M. G. Christie, Mrs. D. H. Christie, Mrs. I. Saunders, Mrs. H. Duggan, Mrs. D. D. White, Mrs. Erin McAllister and Miss Vera Wilson.

In charge of the dining room in the basement were Mrs. V. McIntyre, Mrs. A. J. Hammond and Mrs. H. Verbin.

Ushering from the dining room to the tea room were Miss Odessa Christie and Miss Allan Edmond. Servitleurs included: Mrs. H. Hollingsworth, Miss I. Hooper, Mrs. I. Ingram, Mrs. H. Reynolds, Mrs. H. H. Crawford, Miss Lenore Whitby, Miss Gwen Christie, Mrs. J. Parsons, Miss Kathryn Small, Miss Vera Claxton, Mrs. J. Beirnes, Miss Alma Boyd, Miss Mildred and Margaret Heywood and Miss Ruth Jenkins.

Showing the trousseau were Mrs. Douglas Christie, Mrs. H. E. Weaver, Mrs. O. Stewart, Mrs. James Ashbridge and Mrs. W. G. Heath.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Syrup at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough mechanics usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make in your own kitchen. Take a cup of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking. Put together in a pint bottle and you have enough syrup to make 16 ounces—as much as you get from 2 large bottles of cough syrup.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, a concentrated compound of proven cough elements, known the world over for their prompt action. Mix Pinex with Sugar Syrup and you have a full pint of cough syrup that for real quick results, will be difficult to equal or even approach. It is truly astonishing how it loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You will be delighted with its pleasant taste. It keeps perfectly.

Pinex is a special compound of pine extract with other soothing elements. A well known reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased. Please you in every way.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It always seems unwise to add any strong-tasting food to a milder-tasting one. Such a food as cod liver oil whose flavor is so perverse, should not be allowed to alter the taste of fruit juices, in an attempt to lure the baby to take it. And as for adding it to the baby's milk, later when cod liver oil may be out of the picture, the baby won't enjoy milk. It will never taste as baby thinks it should.

On the other side—and also undesirable as a result—is baby's distaste for a food which may contain a dose of medicine he very much dislikes. If this food is one as important as milk or fruit juice, it would be calamitous to destroy baby's liking for it by the addition of the oil.

Most babies, if oil is started early in their lives, do not dislike it. They can swallow their daily portions as well alone as with something. Afterwards, if the parent wishes to wash away the oil-taste with fruit juice, there is no objection to that.

A worried mother evidently has been in the habit of giving the oil in a fruit juice. "My 5-months-old baby breaks out in a terrible rash every time I give fruit juices. Now in what can I give her cod liver oil? It's nasty to take alone and I want her to have it all winter. I stopped it during the summer."

I think the description of "nasty" is your estimation of it. I know children who like Scottish cod liver oil. If they do dislike it intensely there are all kinds of other ways in which vitamin D can be administered, either in combinations of plain oils and viosterol; or viosterol alone. These bland concentrated vitamin D's are administered in drop doses and go down easily.

If your baby has a sensitivity toward fruit juices, ask your doctor for the proper dosage of ascorbic acid tablets. Ascorbic acid provides vitamin C.

Mrs. R.H.D. You are quite right to point out that there are variable proportions of both vitamin A and D in the commercial oils. One brand of cod liver oil may seem to offer more for the same price, but taking its vitamin A and D content into account, it may be more expensive than some other. Mothers should read the labels on the bottles and compare the relative amounts of these vital vitamins which are present and for which they are paying their money.

Our leaflet, "Rickets and the Anti-Rachitics," will explain the nature of this nutritional disease and the methods of combating it. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Newsman Killed On Way to Get Biggest Story

By WES GALLAGHER

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, Jan. 27.—(AP)—En route to cover the biggest story of his career, 32-year-old war correspondent Edouard Baudry of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was killed by anti-aircraft fire over Spanish Morocco when the plane in which he was riding with other correspondents became lost in bad weather.

Baudry was in the group of correspondents attached to the Allied forces in North Africa that was flown in three transport planes half way across Africa for the Allied Transgaurentes to cover the momentous meeting of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

WEATHER BAD

The plane in which Baudry was a passenger encountered bad weather and flew over a city in Spanish Morocco. Ground defences opened fire and a machine-gun bullet struck the Canadian as the pilot turned the plane out to sea. An emergency landing was made at Port Lyautey but Baudry died a few hours later in hospital.

He was buried with full military honors at Port Lyautey with his fellow correspondents and Brig.-Gen. Robert McClure, United States army officer in charge of the area, in attendance.

One member of the crew of the transport plane was injured but the rest of the correspondents escaped injury.

At the press conference that followed their conferences, President Roosevelt, in behalf of Mr. Churchill and himself, expressed regret at the death of the CBC correspondent. A wreath was placed on Baudry's grave by the President's personal direction.

The correspondents at Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters were notified suddenly to board planes and then were rushed 800 miles to Casablanca where they stayed three days while the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences were going on.

FEW GUESSED TRUTH

While many Frenchmen could not help but notice the unusual precautions being taken in a certain section of the city, few guessed that the Prime Minister and President were in the party.

If any did guess, they kept quiet about it as from all indications nothing drifted across the border into metropolitan Morocco where Germans are still staying.

Canada Army Has Had Part In Victories

LONDON, Jan. 27. — (CP) — Presence of the Canadian Army in Britain helped the 8th Army save Egypt and ling Field Marshal Erwin Rommel beyond the farthest boundaries he was sent to defend, C. Sewell of the Daily Telegraph wrote today after a tour of the Dominion's overseas formations.

"Historians may even give some oblique credit to the Canadian 1st Army for the Soviet victories in the Donets and Stalingrad," he said.

He called the army "an army in being" after the last war's "fleet in being," a powerful naval force which had the job of simply existing and waiting, and said it is still a mystery in the war as they were which in 1940 and 1941 stood ready to engage Hitler's divisions if they attempted the coolly but tempting coup of invasion.

He added: "The same army now is crouched in his rear, belonging and ready to spring. It struck once at Dieppe, and sent a shiver through the entire Nazi army of occupation. Its next spring may be the beginning of the end of the war."

COUNTY'S OLDEST LANDLORD

SAXSTEAD, Eng. — (CP) — Suffolk's oldest landlord, Robert Berry, who for more than 50 years kept the village inn in this town, near Ipswich, is dead. The 83-year-old man also was village blacksmith.

Local Manager

G. F. Hagelstein, manager of the Edmonton branch of The Great-West Life Assurance Company, which reports a satisfactory year of business just completed. Elsewhere in this issue the company, which is entering its 51st year of business, shows highlights from its year's annual report.

Progress Made By Great-West Life Company

The report on another year's operations under wartime conditions released by The Great-West Life Assurance Company serves to underline the fact that life insurance is valued even more highly in war than in peace.

The company has just completed a most satisfactory year. New business placed amounted to $78,910,602, total insurance in force reached $698,010,493, assets now amount to $189,297,807. The large total of $15,178,088 was paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries during the year. Of this, $4,854,857 was paid to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders — while $10,323,231 went to living policyholders — money used to keep homes together and educate children—to allow older persons to retire without financial worry.

H. W. Manning, general manager of the Great-West Life, in commenting on the preliminary figures said: "Life insurance is helping Canada's great war effort in many ways. Canadian life insurance companies, for example, pooling small investments of hundreds of thousands of policyholders, purchased over $150,000,000 in Canada's 3rd Victory Loan—15% of the total loan. One result of these individual investments in life insurance is to divert funds from non-essential civilian purchases, thus having a direct effect in controlling possible inflation—and in addition, releasing manpower and woman-power from factories producing such goods." Mr. Manning also stated that one-quarter of the company's entire male staff has joined the armed services since war was declared.

Women Shoot Man With Whom They Shared Their Lives

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Caproni and Mrs. Pearl Leonard, each comely and middle-aged, pleaded not guilty to murder charges in the hospital bedside trial of Mrs. Caproni's husband —and admitted freely that both had shared the same bed at times which had the job of simply existing and waiting, and said it is still a mystery in the war as they were which in 1940 and 1941 stood ready to engage Hitler's divisions if they attempted the coolly but tempting coup of invasion.

He added: "The same army now is crouched in his rear, belonging and ready to spring. It struck once at Dieppe, and sent a shiver through the entire Nazi army of occupation. Its next spring may be the beginning of the end of the war."

Mrs. Caproni is alleged to have shot Caproni Sunday night and Mrs. Leonard is accused of the hospital slaying.

DRAMA IN WARTIME

LONDON. — (CP) — War has revived amateur drama in Britain. It is figured there are about 5,000 amateur societies, compared with 2,000 before the war.

Organization Moves in War Said Danger

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27.—(CP)—In ordinary times groups are free to organize to press their claims for recognition but in wartime such pressures endanger the safety of the nation, Donald Gordon, prices board chairman, said in an address prepared for delivery Tuesday night to Vancouver Board of Trade.

The chief Canadian price-control officer said there is a mistaken idea abroad that a price ceiling should be imposed so that profit margins of pre-war standards can be maintained.

DEVELOPS FRICTION

"When the impact of war restrictions begins to be noticed there may be a tendency among groups to compare or contrast what they consider to be their sacrifices or hardships with those of other individuals or groups, with the result that friction and resentment develop," he said.

"In ordinary times every interest, every group or class in the community is free to organize in order to press its claim for recognition, but the plain fact is that in times of war such pressures endanger the safety of the nation.

"No concession wrung by one class from another under pressure of vital wartime necessity is going to be of any use if the Japs or the Huns are going to be the ones who decide which had the better of the argument. No person has the right to use the war for his greater personal gain," he said.

Ask War Captives For Farm Labor

CALGARY, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Italians, held prisoners of war in Africa, will be brought to Canada to work on farms, if the federal government accepts a suggestion contained in a resolution passed by the board of directors of the United Farmers of Alberta at its annual meeting here yesterday.

Consideration of resolutions occupied the concluding sessions of the meeting which takes place of the annual convention of the U.F.A., cancelled for 1942.

The resolution stated that Canadian manpower supply was inadequate to meet the requirements of agriculture. There were 300,000 Italians held prisoners in Africa and it was suggested that the United Nations agree to arrangements whereby a number of these persons would be given the opportunity of volunteering for work on Canadian farms.

Another resolution on debt legislation called for reconsideration by the federal government of the "Dunning Mortgage Legislation" which was passed in 1937 on the break of the present war. In absence of such legislation, the U.F.A. recommended that a flat number per cent of present valuation and interest be limited to a maximum of three per cent.

Resignation Talk Is Said Without Any Foundation

REGINA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Suggestion that he might resign the leadership of the Liberal party in Saskatchewan in favor of Hon. J. Gordon Taggart was described by Premier Wm. J. Patterson, Tuesday, as a "rumor absolutely without foundation."

Announcement that Mr. Taggart was giving up his position as administrator at Ottawa and returning to his position as minister of agriculture in the provincial cabinet and a number of wild predictions circulating in provincial political circles

Members of the Saskatchewan cabinet Tuesday scoffed at the rumors and declared there was no basis for them. They denied that Premier Patterson would be leaving the leadership or that he was even contemplating such an action.

Annual Report

J. A. McLeod. The 111th annual statement of the Bank of Nova Scotia, of which Mr. McLeod is President, shows the usual strong position.

Higher Assets Shown by Bank Of Nova Scotia

The 111th annual statement of the Bank of Nova Scotia as at December 31, 1942, shows an increase in assets of over $30,000,000, bringing the total to an all-time high figure of $410,467,055. Profits show a moderate decrease following enlarged tax payments, and the usual strong position is well maintained.

Interesting items include increases of approximately $12,000,000 in total deposits, an increase of some $28,000,000 in investment accounts, and a net increase of between $17,000,000 in loans. All increases are the result of the wartime activity of business and government, and include the participation of the bank in short-term financing for the Dominion Government.

Public clearings and balances due from other banks, $89,102,721, represent 23.8 per cent of total liabilities to the public. Total quick assets which include the above together with investment and call and short loans secured by stocks and bonds amount to $248,182,200 and represent 68.10 per cent of liabilities to the public. This latter figure compares with 68.10 per cent a year ago.

INVESTMENTS UP $28,000,000

Investment account now aggregates $160,531,400 of which total 85 per cent is due within nine and one-half years, and 47 per cent of the total is in dominion and provincial securities maturing within two years. Investments also include $9,035,620 in municipal securities, $3,691,794 in public securities other than Canadian and $10,482,058 in other bonds and stocks.

Loans other than call loans total $126,727,447, a net increase in the year of $9,083,393. Of this total $110,120,660 represents current loans in Canada, and $14,708,509 current loans elsewhere, the bulk of which show increases. A reduction is shown in loans to provincial and municipal governments.

A reduction of $10,237,500 in acceptances and letters of credit reflects reduced opportunities for foreign trade and the running off of special transactions.

NEW HIGH TOTALS

Total deposits of $343,901,552 are increased by $41,727,251. Of this total non-interest-bearing deposits of the public, $130,587,963, are up $29,017,492. Interest-bearing deposits of the public, $184,113,570, are practically unchanged from a year ago notwithstanding the substantial withdrawals made during the year for two Victory Loan campaigns. Deposits of Dominion and Provincial governments, $28,500,846, are increased $17,001,918. As indicated, increases are in business and government deposits and reflect the wartime activity.

Net earnings for the year, $1,860,262, after taxes of $1,357,773, compare with last year's figures of $1,935,602, after taxes of $1,001,949.

Butter as Sold With Other Goods Now Disallowed

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The Canadian merchant has lost the right to make sale of butter conditional on the sale of other groceries, the Prices Board said Tuesday.

Due to the scarcity of butter prior to rationing which was made effective last month retailers were making the sale of butter subject to regular customers buying supplies of tea they could get. Some grocers refused to sell butter unless it was part of a larger order, and certain grocers demanded a total order valued at least at $1.

Board officials said this practice was not frowned upon at the time since "shopping around" usually was a practice of the hoarder.

Veteran Trade Union Leader Dies, 82 Years

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Ben Tillett, veteran trade union leader and former member of parliament, died in a London hospital today. He was 82.

He was co-leader with John Burns, who died last sunday, of the London dock strike of 1889. It took 10,000 dock workers out and the entire traffic of the Port of London was paralyzed until the longshoremen were promised six pence an hour extra.

What Officials Think of Parley

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — AP — State Secretary Cordell Hull last night expressed gratification over the decisions of the North African conference, which he described as "most wise and timely," and added that he would comment soon on some of the more vital phases of the historic parley.

Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, said: "Casablanca speaks for itself, and the Axis will learn what it means through 1943."

Senator Gerald Nye (R-N.D.): "I had hoped that we were going to hear of the unveiling of the North African political tangle. I had hoped that a united French front could have been announced as a fact."

Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem.-Mont.): "Of course it was a very spectacular thing for the president to do, but there was nothing new in the press release given out that wasn't already known to the American people. What effect this meeting between the president and Churchill will have on the winning of the war remains to be seen."

RAT FOOD FOR DANES

LONDON — (CP) — The Danish newspaper "Finanstidende" says the only thing unrationed in Denmark is rat flesh, and publishes an order issued by the Nazi occupation authorities to encourage rat eating as "tasty and nourishing."

Dairymen Rap Price Control Under Gordon

CALGARY, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The dairy industry is being used as a "guinea pig" for anti-inflationary experiments of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said C. F. Christiansen, Vancouver, general manager of the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool, at the opening sessions of the annual meeting of the dairy farmers of Canada here yesterday.

Further comment of the prime control administrator came from delegates representing the dairy industry throughout Canada, during a discussion which came after the address of the president of the dairy farmers' organization. Adverse effects of the price control policy were reported by chairman of the dairy farmer commodity group.

"DEPRIVED OF FOOD"

"Control has done no anti-inflation job so far," said one speaker, "but it has deprived us of food." Mr. Christenson continued.

Reporting for the cheese producers' section, it was stated the present winter's cheese make would be reduced considerably because of the price structure.

Edmonton Y.M.C.A. Marks 34th Year of Service at Annual Banquet Meeting

A well-attended annual meeting of Edmonton Young Men's Christian Association last night heard H. W. Kingerley, "Y" War Services Area Secretary for Alberta and Western Saskatchewan, outline services rendered men of the armed forces by Y.M.C.A. officers wherever Allied soldiers may be found.

The meeting, 34th Annual of the Y.M.C.A. in Edmonton, was held at headquarters, 10030 102A Avenue.

First "Y" services in wartime, on the North American continent, Mr. Kingerley stated, were at the battle of Gettysburg, in the American Civil War. From this beginning, and through the First Great War, the Y.M.C.A. has developed in this conflict, in Canada alone, a budget demanding a budget of $2,500,000 annually.

Right after war was declared," Mr. Kingerley added, "all 'Y' facilities in the country were placed at the disposal of the armed services.

GOVERNMENT FINANCED

"In that first year of the war, we spent $1,250,000 in war services. The next year, it was $1,500,000; and now the sum spent is $2,500,000." The financing, at first done by "Y" officials themselves, is now done by the government, with officials being on hand to raise the huge sums needed to finance the cost of war.

"An important feature of wartime Y.M.C.A. work is the War Prisoners' Aid group, which employs 46 secretaries who visit men in prison camps throughout the world. The secretaries supply prisoners with music, musical instruments, books, writing material, and other equipment allowed by regulations.

"The present president of the War Prisoners' Aid in Canada, Sir Ernest MacMillan, of Toronto, was able to continue musical studies while a prisoner during the first Great War, through books supplied by the 'Y'."

MANAGE CANTEENS

The British government asked the Canadian Y.M.C.A. to establish posts in six Canadian stations of the Royal Air Force, and to manage the canteens there. Three canteens alone do a business of $1 000 000 a year. In addition, the "Y" operates in 100 other air force centres in Canada, as well as army posts and naval barracks.

The Beaver Club in London, the largest Y.M.C.A. operation, Mr. Kingerley declared, served four million meals a year, sometimes 12,000 a day.

Elected to board of directors for a three-year term were John L. Irwin, Thornton Graham, John Irwin, John McClary, M. F. Palmer and S. B. Smith. Other directors are: W. H. Hall, honorary; Walter Gainer, vice-president; J. O. Budd, treasurer; G. E. H. Smith, assistant treasurer; H. H. Taylor, John Denison, Reg. Godson, Allan Porter and B. W. Webster.

TAXED TO CAPACITY

Report of Waldo F. Empey, president revealed assets of $75,877 in 1942. The Y.M.C.A. residence, he added, has been taxed to capacity in the past year, and revenue from it has more than doubled. A total of 89 men can be accommodated nightly and 1942 occupancy totalled 22,961 bed nights. Another service to Edmonton citizens are Y.M. maintained of available rooms, with and without board, in the community. A list of overnight accommodation is also on hand.

General Secretary Clark Ready paid tribute to members of the local "Y" staff, and to 15 members of the organization who lost their lives in the armed services during 1942.

Head-table guests at the banquet were: Mrs. B. T. Rose, Mrs. O. C. MacIntyre, Rev. H. Wakelin, president, Ministerial Association of Edmonton; Mrs. E. P. Wellwood, general secretary, Y.W.C.A.; C. Gainer, vice-president, Y.M.C.A.; Mrs. W. F. Empey, Acting Mayor Guy Patterson, H. W. Kingerley, W. F. Empey, Mrs. G. Paterson, O. C. MacIntyre, Mrs. M. C. McCannell president, Y.W.C.A.; Reg. Rose former general secretary; Mrs. J. H. Morris, vice-president, United Services Y.M.C.A. Club, and Mrs. C. Gainer.

Y.M.C.A. FOUNDER'S PORTRAIT UNVEILED

The portrait is a full-color reproduction of a painting by Sir Frank Trimm. It shows Mr. Williams as a young man at the time he founded the organization in 1844, when soon spread through the Christian world.

The founder, later knighted by the British government, is shown standing in an upstairs room in London, where he held his first meeting. At his side, on a table, is an opened copy of the Bible, and a map of the world, signifying the source of all inspiration for service and the world as a field for its application.

The upper room, over a London dry-goods store, was demolished in the German air blitz on London. Until that time, it had been an international shrine of Y.M.C.A. [Mr. MacIntyre told the meeting.

Secretary

Clark Ready, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., who delivered his report on the organization's activities at its 34th annual meeting held Tuesday night.

Police Start To Investigate Speeding Autos

As the result of numerous complaints received by the city police department from pedestrians and motorists, Chief Constable Matthew Blackwood has issued special instructions to the traffic squad to make a check of alleged infringements of speed and other traffic by-laws by operators of trucks and cars. High speed through school zones has been alleged on occasions. Trucks are said to have turned between intersections.

Chief Blackwood pointed out that it is reasonable to assume that reported violators of speed, and driving laws operating these cars, are not numerous but in the interests of safety he found it necessary to institute a checkup.

ICY STREETS

Icy street conditions as well as the presence of snow banks along many curbs, has made driving this winter very precarious, with the result that three fatalities and numerous less serious accidents this winter, have been attributed directly to the condition of the streets.

In the interests of public safety and for the benefit of those motorists who do take necessary precautions, Chief Blackwood decided that steps must be taken to lessen the menace created by the few careless ones.

He warns that unless city traffic by-laws are rigidly adhered to, the offenders will be prosecuted.

Varsity Alumni Meeting Jan. 30

The annual meeting of the council of the University of Alberta Alumni Association will be held in the Arts Building on Saturday, Jan. 30. Reports on the operations of 1942 will be received from the executive officers and plans will be made for 1943, particularly with regard to the financing of the association's share in "The New Trail" and with the relations between the association and its sub-organizations.

The personnel of the council is as follows: honorary president, Dr. Robert Newton, president of the university; executive committee: Dr. G. B. Sanford, president; H. J. Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A., vice-president; W. E. Bowser, treasurer; G. B. Taylor, secretary; E. R. Lewis, Wainwright, executive member.

Additional members: Mrs. C. A. Brine, Edmonton; Miss Esther Mitchell, Edmonton; Miss Betty Mitchell, Calgary; Dr. K. F. Argue, Edmonton; L. Y. Cairns, K.C., Edmonton; J. T. Cayley, Medicine Hat; Dr. C. D. Husband, Red Deer; E. W. S. Kane, Edmonton; N. G. Lewis, Calgary; Dr. A. C. McGugan, Edmonton; J. W. C. Markle, Camrose; N. F. Priestley, Calgary; F. A. Rudd, Lethbridge; K. W. Tookey, Caddomin; H. Wilton-Clark, Mercoal.

Oppose Retention Workers Reaching Age of Retirement

Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, at a meeting with international union officials held at the Masonic Temple Tuesday, expressed opposition to the principle of men reaching the retiring age of 65 being retained in the service.

While expressing opposition to the continuance in service of men who have reached the retirement age, no formal vote was taken on the question.

The meeting was addressed by C. L. Malone, Winnipeg, general chairman C.N.R. unions, western line. Other officials at the meeting were C. Kennedy, Minneapolis, international vice-president of the unions, and Mr. Burges of Winnipeg.

Finds Butterfly in Basement

By MOLLY SHIRLEY

This is a story of the reporter who's had to write all the stories about the blizzards and weather blitzes.

Arriving at the office with teeth chattering I have been greeted by a stern city editor who fixed me with a glittering eye and the remark "Now we want a good weather story today — don't leave out any of the details."

So every morning I have written a dour story of "way below zero" weather, frozen fingers, nipped noses, stalled street cars and all the gruesome experiences through which Edmonton has just—we hope—passed.

This morning however, on our arrival at the office, we looked the city editor straight in the eye and said, "No winter weather story today — I found a butterfly in our basement last night."

FLUTTER, LITTLE BUTTERFLY

And so I did. Not a dead butterfly but a live one with fluttering wings and looking as if he positively enjoyed life.

There's a moral to this story—if a butterfly can take what we've just been through we guess anybody can.

P.S.—I've always wanted to see one of those people who come proudly to the newspaper office to say I had seen a robin or a butterfly—or something in January, so there!

And the fact I was doing the washing at the time, in no way detracted from my pleasure.

Dependents to Receive Bonus In Next Cheque

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The defence department announced late last night that the cost-of-living bonus effective from Jan. 1 for servicemen's dependents will be included in dependents' allowance cheques for January.

The announcement said the bonus amounts to $1.40 monthly for a wife without children and $2.60 for a wife with children for whom dependents' allowances are paid.

The increase in dependents' allowance for the third and fourth child, amounting to $1.00 and $2.60 respectively, per month, and the increase authorized for dependent mothers, will also be included in the January cheque.

The department said the increased amount of dependents' allowance for families of five and six children will be issued by supplementary cheque during the next 10 days, providing the dependent has completed and returned to the dependents' allowance board at Ottawa the form forwarded to dependents during the past few weeks.

It added that any increase in assignment of pay, due to recent pay increases, dates from Feb. 1 and will be included in the cheque to be received by the dependent at the end of February, or by supplementary cheque at the end of February or early in March.

Dependents were requested in the announcement to refrain from communicating with Ottawa until the necessary adjustments were involved.

Power Production Reveals Decrease

Total power production at Edmonton's power plant from Jan. 1 to Jan. 24 was 6,167,000 kilowatt hours compared with 7,153,960 for the same period last year, a decrease of 5,984,960 kilowatt hours, it was disclosed in a report submitted to the city commissioners Wednesday by R. G. Watson, power superintendent.

Production at the plant for Edmonton's consumption totalled 7,061,000 kilowatt hours compared to 6,288,240 for the same period last year, an increase of 772,960 kilowatt hours.

The electric light department consumes 5,552,800 kilowatt hours of this production; the street railway 945,700 and the water pumping plant 562,500.

Roosevelt Receives Message from King

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP)—The King sent a personal message to President Roosevelt by Mr. Churchill when the Prime Minister obtained the usual formal permission to leave the United Kingdom for the Casablanca rendezvous, it was learned today.

Before the States and Britures was adopted, there were some two dozens Colonial flags.

8th Army Just Like Mary's Lamb Churchill Jokes

CASABLANCA, Jan. 24 — (Delayed but—(AP)—Winston Churchill used an old nursery rhyme today to describe the rout of Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps. Referring to Rommel as a fugitive from Egypt, Churchill said the Eighth Army had chased him 1,500 miles. It was like Mary and her little lamb, he said. Everywhere that Rommel went the Eighth Army was sure to follow.

Name Edmontonian O.C. at Lethbridge

An Edmonton-born man will become commanding officer at No. 8 R.C.A.F. bombing and gunnery school, Lethbridge, as a result of changes announced Wednesday from No. 4 air command headquarters at Calgary.

He is Group Captain Murray D. Lister. 30. Group Captain Lister received his early schooling in Calgary and is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston. He joined the R.C.A.F. on graduation in 1935.

He went overseas in 1939 for a special course, and has been stationed recently at Mountain View, Ont. Group Capt. Lister succeeds Group Capt. W. A. Jones to the command of No. 8 school. The latter will be on the staff officer at western air command headquarters.

7 Alberta Girls Leave For East

Seven central Alberta girls were in a group of recruits for the women's division of the R.C.A.F. that left Tuesday night for No. 7 "M" Depot at Rockliffe.

Bernice McDonald, 9816 77 avenue, was the only Edmonton girl. Along with Mary Hughes, Androssan, she will serve as a parachute rigger.

Others in the group are: Irene Armstrong, Veteran; and Kimelis Krashanitz, St. Paul, enlisted as standard tradeswomen: Eunice Hazzard, Morrin, teleprinter; Alice Johnson, Rockford Heights; and Sandra Greisson, Willingdon, general duties.

Irene Armstrong is the third of three girls in the Armstrong family to enter service with Canada's armed forces. One sister is already with the air force at Gander (Nfld.) Newfoundland and another is with the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service at Ottawa.

Dairy Farmers Name Officers

Temperatures in Edmonton despite a fairly stiff breeze and what appeared likely to develop into a heavy blizzard, remained fairly stationary with a maximum, on Tuesday of one below zero, and a minimum Wednesday morning of five below.

Shortly after noon on Tuesday, snow began to fall and it seemed likely that a heavy blizzard would develop. Later in the evening however, the weather cleared and the snow ceased falling.

A tie-up of street cars that occurred at 5 p.m. Tuesday evening just as employees were making their way home, was not due to the snowfall but to a car which broke a pole in the 97 street subway. It was reported from the airport that there was .04 snowfall.

Funeral Is Held Civic Official

Funeral services for the late Benjamin Jones, 62, of 12012 58 street took place Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in the funeral chapel of Foster and McGarvey with the Rev. C. F. A. Pocock officiating.

A native of England, Mr. Jones came to Edmonton in 1912 and entered the employ of the city water works department, a position he held until three years ago when he was obliged retire due to ill health.

To survive him Mr. Jones leaves his wife, two daughters, Mrs. H. Davis and Frances, both of Edmonton and one son, Sidney, serving with the Edmonton Regiment.

Four brothers also survive. They are Harry and Alfred of Edmonton and Thomas and Albert of England. Two sisters who survive also live in England. They are Mrs. F. E. Cooper and Mrs. Bailey.

Burial was in Edmonton cemetery.

Variety of Cases In Police Court

Pleas of guilty on vagrancy counts brought a 30 days imprisonment term and a $40 and costs fine, to Marion Parks and George Acheson, respectively, when they appeared before Magistrate Harold Hawe, K.C., in city police court Wednesday.

Acheson's fine carried with it an optional 15 sentence of two months at hard labor.

Eugene Laboucane, George Rickard and William Hurley each were fined $50 and costs after pleading guilty to charges of intoxication and three others guilty of a similar offence were fined the minimum $20 and costs.

William Boyd Manning received a suspended sentence of six months after pleading guilty to the theft of $15 from a "girl friend" and was ordered to make restitution within the six months. He was freed on his own recognizance of $200.

Following preliminary hearing of the theft case against Ralph Hermiston, the accused was ordered to appear for trial at the next supreme court sitting. Hermiston is charged with the theft of a dual wheel truck trailer from the Crown Coal Company.

EARLY SAFETY FIRSTER

Joins R.C.A.F.

J. R. "Pat" Patenaude, well-known sportsman and member of the city ticket office staff of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who has joined the R.C.A.F.

Pat Patenaude, City Sportsman, Joins R.C.A.F.

Well known city sportsman, and a member of the Canadian Pacific Railways passenger department for 15 years, Joseph Roland (Pat) Patenaude, has joined the R.C.A.F.

Mr. Patenaude leaves on Jan. 31 for Montreal "M" depot for basic training. He has enlisted as a clerk accountant.

For several years Mr. Patenaude has been soliciting passenger agent for the C.P.R. here.

The new airman was born in Edmonton, the son of Mr. Antoinette Patenaude and the late H. E. Patenaude. His father, a well known city grocer for many years, died last July.

SKI ENTHUSIAST

He has been an active member of the Knights of Columbus club, and is prominent in Junior Chamber of Commerce affairs.

It is in sport circles, however, that he is best known. He is chairman of the Northern Alberta Ski zone and was one of the early organizers of the Edmonton Voyageurs Canoe club. He has been an official of the canoe club for many years.

Mr. Patenaude was co-organizer of the annual ski excursion trains to Banff, which are crowded each year with ski enthusiasts.

Stresses Need For Change in World System

Although the present economic system worked in the 19th century it is useless to attempt to make it work now, and there must be a change, Dr. W. G. Hardy, head of the classics department, University of Alberta, stated in an address given at the regular meeting of the Edmonton C.C.F. party, Tuesday.

Held in the I.O.O.F. Hall, 103 street, the meeting was under the chairmanship of H. D. Ainlay, president.

Dr. Hardy stressed the fact that "we are travelling the same road, followed by the Roman Empire before it collapsed." Possibly, he continued, the war came soon enough to put back into people the toughness and virility necessary to build a civilization. The real problem lies in whether the decadence of the present system has been checked.

He warned that the job is to be Canadians, and in any new system people tried should be a Canadian product and not follow too closely the systems of other countries.

REASON FOR FAILURE

He attributed the fall of the Roman Empire to the failure to solve the distribution of wealth when the country's wealth was concentrated in the hands of less than five per cent of the people. Today, he continued, the wealth of Canada is centred around Toronto and Montreal, and not more than 10 per cent of the people have in their possession most of the wealth.

In three centuries Rome became masters of the civilized world and then collapsed. This was because the attempt was made to make a system suitable for governing a city-state, to govern an empire. The same problem exists today, he asserted.

Salvage Sought as Excelsior For S.A.

Newspapers and magazines, including telephone books are urgently needed by the Edmonton headquarters of the Salvation Army, Major R. Shaw, stated Wednesday.

Mr. Shaw explained that permission had been granted the Salvation Army by the national salvage headquarters to collect newspapers, magazines and telephone books to enable them to carry on their excelsior making industry.

He stated that the Edmonton plant, sponsored by the Salvation Army, is helping business concerns in the city with their packing problems and at the same time is contributing towards a noble service for humanity in the way of reclamation and emancipation.

At the same time the Salvation Army is busy collecting old clothes, rags, rubber, metals, fats and bones and any other salvage material, in its effort to push this war to victory, Major Shaw stated.

The Salvation Army leader asks that citizens fold the newspapers and magazines flat, and tie them in bundles, to minimize handling. The collected salvage will be picked up by a Salvation Army truck if the donor phones 26875 or the salvage may be left at the Salvation Army and Thorsby, and heavy snow at Cherhill.

Acting Mayor

Ald. Guy Patterson, K.C., who is occupying the mayoral chair during the absence of Mayor John W. Fry, who left Tuesday evening for Ottawa to present a brief to the Dominion government seeking the erection of 500 homes here to relieve the acute housing shortage in the city.

City Police Incorporate Credit Union

A credit union unique in the records of the movement here was announced Wednesday by W. D. King, deputy minister of trade and industry, upon formation of the Edmonton City Policemen's Savings and Credit Union Ltd.

The group is third among city employees, and 20th in Edmonton. Other groups now operating include firemen, street railwaymen, industrial workers, railwaymen, and employees of provincial and Dominion governments.

Provisional secretary of the policemen's credit union is J. H. Cookson. Membership, open to policemen and members of their families, is expected to reach 50 in the near future.

ROAD REPORT

A.M.A. Safety Slogan: Don't game your life for a mere right-of-way.

Wednesday's road report: Roads are good at Cherhill, Waskatenau, Viking, Athabasca and Peace River. The weather is clear at all those points except Waskatenau. The road at Two Hills is open to St. Paul. At Bashaw the road is open to that point but blocked at Donalda, while at Thorsby it is passable. There has been light snow at Waskatenau, Two Hills, Viking and Thorsby, and heavy snow at Cherhill.

'I Am a Murderer'

BY MORRIS MARKEY

THE STORY: This is the story of the perfect crime—the murder of Col. Wesley Hope Merriwether in the library of the Long Island estate, and of the events leading up to it. At the moment a party is in progress at the Colonel's house. Present are his attractive daughter Cynthia, Fred West, a half-hearted suitor; Mitchell Grace, the Colonel's secretary, and others of their polo-playing set. An unexpected arrival is Vaughan Dunbar, a foreign correspondent who brings a message from one of Cynthia's close friends.

CHAPTER VI

VAUGHAN Dunbar spoke slowly and earnestly, in a very low tone, with just the faintest memory of the Scotch Highlands in his phrases. He lounged back in the half-light, his fingertips together, his smooth black hair catching a gleam now and again from the electric bulbs which shone upon the swimming pool hard by.

Cynthia liked him. She though to herself that for some absurd reason she was pleased that he had not thought to apologize for the rather elaborate formality of his white tie and tailcoat. That was, she thought, the way things were done in Europe — and why should those ways be changed merely because the country night was warm?

"Bill told me," he said, "of the wonderful things you did for him—that time."

"I did little enough. The darling . . ."

"Yes. That is really the word for old Bill. He is a darling chap — whether in the savage heat of North Africa or the wretchedness of a bistro in Sofia. But a tough one, too. I can tell you that, Miss Merriwether."

"Go on. Please do. What does he say? Does he ever get ill? Is he drinking very much? Is there enough to eat?"

Vaughan Dunbar's low voice launched out. He chose his phrases with care and with great deliberation, and drew the portrait of Bill Stewart's life in Europe and Africa and the Near East. Cynthia listened, enthralled—until Vaughan Dunbar seemed hardly a presence at all, but a mirror reflecting Old Bill, as he wound his strong, devil-may-care way through the bitter mazes of pain and death.

She was startled when Fred West spoke to her. And she was not pleased.

"What goes?" Fred West inquired. "I have some weird memory that this was supposed to be a celebration."

"Oh, Fred," she said. "You startled me."

"Happy indeed to learn I can make some sort of impression on you."

Vaughan Dunbar was standing. "I really did not mean to monopolize Miss Merriwether."

Fred looked at him. The look was not that of a friend. Fred said to Cynthia, "Colonel Merriwether would like to see Mr. Dunbar. Something about getting the low-down on the European situation."

They walked toward the house, and Vaughan Dunbar sat down beside Colonel Merriwether's desk, and lighted one of the Colonel's cigars, and Fred took a not altogether willing Cynthia off to the dance floor. The musicians had warmed by now and were giving out more lively tunes, and the wine had sown the seeds of merriment.

For something beyand an hour Vaughan Dunbar conversed with Colonel Merriwether, as others of the guests came in and listened a while and moved out again—telling the tale of European anguish of veiled hopes in Vichy and Norway and Holland, of fear in the lands whose cities bear such queer and juicy names, of incredible strength in Germany and incredible valor in England.

But despite the fact that certain of these guests found seats and remained in the library, there was no general discussion. For that was not the manner of the Colonel's library at Stone House.

Toward midnight Vaughan Dunbar arose to go, and Penny Hunter (who saw this happen) told Mitchell Grace to fetch Cynthia (her word being "pronto") and Cynthia came hurrying.

"But Mr. Dunbar will stay with us—mustn't he, Colonel?"

But before the Colonel could give his measured answer, Dunbar hastened to say that he could not think of remaining as house guest. Delightful hospitality, profoundly appreciated—but he had his quarters in the city and certain work which would . . .

"Then you will come back very soon?" a most disappointed Cynthia answered. And Colonel Merriwether spoke also, saying that he would be grateful for further opportunity to share Mr. Dunbar's company and to receive more enlightenment upon the continued events abroad—that Mr. Dunbar was more than welcome to make himself at home at Stone House.

"You are most kind," said Vaughan Dunbar. He seemed, for an astonishing moment, to be confused, or taken aback. But that was for only the most fleeting breath of time.

"If you like any sort of riding, next time you come, we're fresh in with horses," Cynthia said.

Dunbar said, without smiling, "I am afraid I should cut a rather sorry figure. My early education was neglected in that direction."

"But we shall expect you back again."

"Delighted—if I may. You have been so very kind, Miss Merriwether."

"Even a creditor, if he's Bill Stewart's pal, is a friend around here."

"Then I am happy to believe that Bill's debtors are welcome also."

Sunday is the polo final. You'll be with us then—and no arguments. Please."

"I will be most happy."

Cynthia walked with him to his car, which stood in the driveway. She shook hands with him and thanked him for coming with such wonderful news of Bill Stewart. He said that he would have the wit to telephone before doing such a thing again. She said it would not be all that formal, unless he insisted upon making it so. And he got into his roadster and drove away toward the city.

Cynthia Merriwether was to be forgiven, perhaps, for the relish with which she told Henry Prentiss of Vaughan Dunbar's arrival upon the scene at Gull Point. The idea of stirring a twinge of jealousy within the breast of that cavalier soul was, of course, beside the point. But he had run out on the party—the pig. And he had been downright abrupt concerning the reasons for that running out. If only he had used a little diplomacy—like business duties, or seeing the doctor, or even an old college chum.

Lack of iodine is the essential cause of that form of thyroid enlargement known as simple goiter. This disorder is prevalent in certain districts which have come to be called goiter belts; is more common in women than in men; and is most likely to appear during certain periods of life. Thus, it is most often found during adolescence when important changes are taking place in the ductless glands, or during the child-bearing period, or during middle age.

The increase in the size of the thyroid may take place very slowly and the only complaint from the patient may be that the unsightly gain in size produces a disfigurement.

The thyroid is one of the family of ductless glands and produces a very powerful substance called thyroxin. The secretion of this substance is apparently disturbed by lack of iodine. When the amount of available iodine is reduced so that the gland is not able to supply enough thyroid secretion, it is common for the gland itself to increase in size, and this increase then becomes visible as the noticeable swelling at the front of the throat.

The thyroid may enlarge as the result of several causes. In goiter belts such enlargement is the direct result of failing to secure enough iodine. Or, the enlargement may be the result of an increased demand on the part of the body for thyroxin. I am convinced there is still another cause and that is the patient not getting enough iodine—not because it is lacking in the food, but because it is not being used properly in the body after iodine-bearing foods are taken.

Goiter has been found even in districts near the seashore, where natural food iodine is plentiful in the diet. Many times it is true that one person in a family will develop goiter and this one individual will be found to use the same amount of iodine-bearing foods as the other members of the family who do not develop goiters. In such cases, it seems to me that instead of the cause being not enough iodine, the cause is the presence of something which is interfering with the normal use of iodine being supplied.

It has been my experience that the most probable cause of cases of simple iodine is the over-use of starches in the diet. I am therefore firmly convinced that the most satisfactory way of causing the enlarged thyroid to grow smaller is to control the amount of starch used by the patient.

The patient is told to leave out starches and sugars from the dietary, being allowed to do on using all of the other foods to which he is accustomed. Within several weeks the gland is usually much smaller. In my own practice I have been able to secure good results with this method, but I find that reducing the thyroid is much more rapid when the patient starts the treatment by using a fast. The gland generally reduces satisfactorily under the fast, and changes are so great that it is much better to try the fast first instead of waiting for the slower change which would come from the simple elimination of the starches and sugars. Most cases respond to this type of treatment; although in those instances where there has been a marked overgrowth of fibrous tissue the thyroid may not be influenced to lessen in size.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

"Pincers on Axis Europe" Title of New Offering

Allied Drive in Africa Presented in Dramatic Film

These two Canadian airmen were among the fighting fliers of the United Nations who helped light the fuse that exploded Hitler's pipe-dream. They were part of a bomber crew which flew with the air forces, keeping Rommel's Africa Corps in frantic retreat. Advance Canadian personnel have arrived in North Africa for special training. The National Film Board's latest film in the "Canada Carries On" series, "Pincers on Axis Europe," gives a full report of the North Africa operation, from the landing of the vast United Nations force to the race across the desert after Rommel's fleeing army. Importance of the move to the United Nations offensive, in its relationship to the struggle on the Russian front is dramatically presented.

American and British bombers laid patterns of death on fleeing Axis troop columns and supply depots. Combat planes sweeping ahead of heavy bombers knocked the Luftwaffe from the skies. "Pincers on Axis Europe" gives a full report of the North Africa operation, from the landing of the vast United Nations force to the race across the desert after Rommel's fleeing army. Importance of the move to the United Nations offensive, in its relationship to the struggle on the Russian front is dramatically presented.

"Greatest Armada in the history of the world," describes the mammoth Allied Convoy that landed on North African shores the mightiest sea-borne invasion of all time. Meeting in rendezvous on the high seas were 850 ships of the United Nations, 500 merchantmen and transports guarded by an escort of 350 warships.

Canada's contribution to the successful North African campaign was delivery of 75% of all motorized equipment used by General Montgomery's 8th Army in the offensive that shattered Rommel's Afrika Korps. Aiding the task of escorting the gigantic convoy were Canadian corvettes, built in east and west coast shipyards and manned by fighting Canadian seamen.

"Pincer on Axis Europe," newest release by the National Film Board in the Canada Carries On series, tells in film the story of how the southern arm of the strategic pincers gripped Casablanca, Oran and Algiers. Opening on the Soviet battlefront where the Russians are using Stalingrad as a fulcrum to close the northern jaw of the trap, "Pincer on Axis Europe" spans across frozen steppes, and Libyan deserts to a climatic impact of bombing raids over the Alps on Turin and Genoa, nerve-centre of Italy's tottering war machine.

Elaborate devices were employed in deceiving the German high command as to where the new front would be opened. Carefully planted reports of heavy Arctic equipment being issued led the Nazis to the mistaken belief the Allied attack would come by way of Norway. Our Russian ally, secretly informed of the Allied plan by Prime Minister Churchill during his dramatic visit to Moscow, led the Axis further astray by published appeals for a "second front."

Early in 1942, the basis for the history-making campaign was first discussed. In June, military leaders of the United Nations, meeting in conclave in Washington, laid the plans for the new offensive and delegated to U.S. Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower supreme command of the unified forces.

Under the inspired leadership of General Montgomery the British 8th army covered by the greatest weight of armor Africa had ever known broke the backbone of the Italian and German armies at El Alamein. Hailed by Winston Churchill as "The Thunderbolt" this task force of 50,000 picked shock-troops concentrated upon Hitler's elite Afrika Korps a greater firepower of guns than was used at Verdun in World War I.

Unleashing the pent-up power of democracies in arms the Royal Navy opened the Mediterranean while the R.A.F. co-operating with American combat and bomber planes swept the Luftwaffe from the skies. The coastal roads were open and American, British and Free French soldiers fighting side by side after a quarter of a century, were driving upon the great Axis-occupied ports of Tunis and Bizerte.

Pincers are closing on the land mass of Nazi-held Europe. Canadians take pride in the knowledge that equipment, weapons and machines built in Canada speed the day of liberation for conquered countries. Mighty blows have been struck at the chains that once held millions of captive peoples in spiritual and economic slavery. Many more such strokes of war are in the making.

Eleanor Parker—Cleveland, Ohio beauty—was one of two children chosen at ten to be apprenticed to her home town Playhouse. After high school she spent several summers in stock at Martha's Vineyard, paying her tuition by waiting on tables. After she was graduated she made a bee line for the Pasadena Players. A movie scout saw her in a play there on Monday—on Tuesday she was tested—said 'yes' on Wednesday, and on Thursday, her nineteenth birthday, she was granted a long term contract. One of her charms is her husky Ethel Barrymore voice. She is five feet and one-half inches tall and weighs one hundred and eighteen pounds. She appears in support of Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan and Joan Leslie in Warners' "The Hard Way."

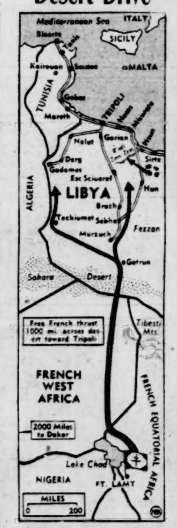
Desert Drive



As lengthy as the British sweep from El Alamein to Sirte is this trans-Sahara drive of the Fighting French from Lake Chad. The French forces are now approaching the Mediterranean on two main routes from the south.

EATON'S WARTIME SHOWING of Furniture and House Furnishings

Begins Thursday, January 28th

With wartime housing and other accommodation for war workers, a major problem in the war effort, it very naturally follows that furnitu re and housefurnishings should be of interest through necessity.

Everybody, of course, knows that many furniture factories have been curtailed in their production—but you will still find a very reasonable choice to help to "keep the home fires burning" and so give a valuable lift to morale—make your home a haven of comfort for family, friends, and those you wish to cheer—to help them carry on the job they have to do.

Edmonton, in particular, is faced with an acute shortage of housing and other forms of accommodation. You are being urged to open your homes to war workers—to make use of those "spare rooms" to take care of our overflow population. You will find many thrifty suggestions for fixing up those rooms—in this Wartime Showing of Furniture.
